BREVET.

Captain Henry George Delafosse, Bengal Infantry, to be Major in the Army. Dated 12th September 1861.

War Office, 25*th February* 1862.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to signify Her intention to confer the decoration of the Victoria Cross on the undermentioned Officers and Non-Commissioned Officer, whose claims to the same have been submitted for Her Majesty's approval, on account of Acts of Bravery performed by them in India, as recorded against their several names, viz.:—

Regiment or Corps.	Rank and Names.	Act of Bravery for which recommended.
Bombay Artillery (now of the Staff Corps.)	Major Richard Harte Keatinge. Date of Act of Bravery, March 17th, 1858.	For having rendered most efficient aid at the assault of Chundairee, in voluntarily leading the Column through the breach, which was protected by a heavy cross fire. He was one of the foremost to enter, and was severely wounded in the breach. The Column was saved from a serious loss that would probably have resulted but for Major Keatinge's knowledge of the small path leading across the ditch, which had been examined during the night by himself and a servant, who declined, when required, to lead the Column without his master. Having cleared the breach, he led into the Fort, where he was struck down by another dangerous wound. The Commander-in-Chief in India states that the success at Chundairee was mainly owing to this Officer, whose gallantry, really brilliant, he considers was equalled by his ability and devotion. Major Keatinge was at the time a Political Officer with the 2nd Brigade of the Central India Field Force.
2nd Bombay Light Cavalry	Captain James Blair. Date of Acts of Bravery, August 12th, and October 23rd, 1857.	For having, on two occasions, distinguished himself by his gallant and daring conduct:— 1. On the night of the 12th of August 1857, at Neemuch, in volunteering to apprehend seven or eight armed Mutineers who had shut themselves up for defence in a house, the door of which he burst open. He then rushed in among them and forced them to escape through the roof; in this encounter he was severely wounded. In spite of his wounds he pursued the fugitives, but was unable to come up with them in consequence of the darkness of the night. 2. On the 23rd of October 1857, at Jeerum, in fighting his way most gallantly through a body of Rebels who had literally surrounded him. After breaking the end of his sword on one of their heads, and receiving a severe sword-cut on his right arm, he re-joined his Troop. In this wounded condition, and with no other weapon than the hilt of his broken sword, he put himself at the head of his men, charged the Rebels most effectually, and dispersed them.

Regiment or Corps.	Rank and Names.	Act of Bravery for which recommended.
Bengal Police Battalion ...	Lieutenant Charles George Baker. Date of Act of Bravery, September 27th, 1858.	For gallant conduct on the occasion of an attack on the Rebels at Suhejnee, near Peroo, on the 27th September 1858, which is thus described in this Officer's own words.—" The enemy (at the time supposed to have mustered from 900 to 1,000 strong in Infantry, with fifty Cavalry), advanced. Without exchanging a shot, I at once retired slowly, followed up steadily by the Rebel line for 100 yards clear of village or jungle, when suddenly wheeling about my divisions into line, with a hearty cheer, we charged into and through the centre of the enemy's line, Lieutenant Broughton, with his Detachment, immediately following up the movement, with excellent effect, from his position upon the enemy's left. The Rebel right wing, of about 300 men, broke at once, but the centre and left, observing the great labor of the horses in crossing the heavy ground, stood, and, receiving the charge with repeated volleys, were cut down, or broke only a few yards a head of the Cavalry. From this moment the pursuit was limited to the strongest and best horses of the Force, numbering some sixty of all ranks, who, dashing into and swimming a deep and wide nullah, followed the flying enemy through the village of Russowlee and its sugar-cane khêts, over two miles of swamp, and 500 yards into the thick jungles near Peroo, when, both men and horses being completely exhausted, I sounded the halt and assembly, and, collecting my wounded, returned to Camp at Munjhaen about 6 P. M." The charge ended in the utter defeat of the enemy, and is referred to by Lord Clyde "as deserving of the highest encomium, on account both of conception and execution." It is also described as having been "as gallant as any during the war."
25th Bombay Light Infantry.	Lieutenant William Francis Frederick Waller. Date of Act of Bravery, June 20th, 1858.	For great gallantry at the capture by storm of the Fortress of Gwalior, on the 20th June 1858. He and Lieutenant Rose, who was killed, were the only Europeans present, and, with a mere handful of men, they attacked the Fortress, climbed on the roof of a house, shot the Gunners opposed to them, carried all before them, and took the Fort, killing every man in it.
11th (late 70th) Bengal Native Infanry.	Lieutenant John Charles Campbell Daunt. Date of Acts of Bravery, October 2nd, and November 2nd, 1857.	Lieutenant Daunt and Serjeant Dynon are recommended for conspicuous gallantry in action, on the 2nd of October 1857, with the Mutineers of the Ramghur Battalion at Chota Behar, in capturing two Guns, particularly the last, when they rushed at and captured it by pistoling the Gunners, who were mowing the Detachment down with grape, one-third of which was hors-de-combat at the time.

Regiment or Corps.	Rank and Names.	Act of Bravery for which recommended.
53rd Regiment ...	No. 2165, Serjeant Denis Dynon. Date of Act of Bravery, October 2nd, 1857.	Lieutenant Daunt is also recommended for chasing, on the 2nd of November following, the Mutineers of the 32nd Bengal Native Infantry across a plain into a rich cultivation, into which he followed them with a few of Rattray's Sikhs. He was dangerously wounded in the attempt to drive out a large body of these Mutineers from an enclosure, the preservation of many of his party, on this occasion, being attributed to his gallantry.
Ordnance Department, Bengal.	Conductor James Miller. Date of Act of Bravery, October 28th, 1857.	For having, on the 28th of October 1857, at great personal risk, gone to the assistance of, and carried out of action, a wounded Officer, Lieutenant Glubb, of the late 38th Regiment of Bengal Native Infantry. He was himself subsequently wounded and sent to Agra. Conductor Miller was at the time employed with heavy Howitzers and Ordnance Stores attached to a Detachment of Troops, commanded by the late Colonel Cotton, C B., in the attack, on the abovementioned date, on the Rebels who had taken up their position in the Serai at Futtehpore Sikra, near Agra.

Abstract of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor-General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament 24 and 25 Vic., c. 67.

THE Council met at Government House on Wednesday, the 2nd April 1862.

PRESENT :

Hist Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India, presiding.
His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.
The Hon'ble Sir H. B. E. Frere, K. C. B.
The Hon'ble Cecil Beadon.
Major-General the Hon'ble Sir R. Napier, K. C. B.

The Hon'ble H. B. Harington.
The Hon'ble H. Forbes.
The Hon'ble C. J. Erskine.
The Hon'ble W. S. Fitzwilliam.
The Hon'ble D. Cowie.
The Hon'ble Rajah Deo Narain Singh Bahadoor.
The Hon'ble Rajah Dinkar Rao Rugonauth Moontazim Bahadoor.

The Hon'ble MR. BEADON moved for leave to bring in a Bill to repeal in part Act II. of 1835. He stated that, after the first Burmese war, when the Provinces of Assam, Arracan, and Tenasserim were ceded to the British Government, separate Commissioners were appointed for those Provinces, who were under the general control of the Government of Bengal. Subsequently, in 1835, Act II. of that year was passed, giving the superintendence and control of the Officers of those Provinces, in Civil and Criminal matters, to the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut and Nizamut Adawlut, and in Revenue matters to the Board of Revenue, and that Act was in operation at the present time. In the meantime Tenasserim had been placed under the direct authority of the Government of India, and recently it had been determined to place the three Provinces of Arracan, Tenasserim, and Pegu under a Chief Commissioner, as Chief Commissioner of British Burmah, who, under the Civil and Criminal Codes, might exercise the authority of the highest Courts of Civil and Criminal jurisdiction. It would be inconvenient, under such circumstances, to allow appeals to the Sudder Courts passing by his authority. The present Bill would leave Assam as it stood, but would remove Arracan and Tenasserim from the jurisdiction exercised under Act II. of 1835 by the Sudder Court of Bengal.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned till Wednesday, the 9th instant, at 11 A. M.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

THE following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend Act X of 1859, with the Bill as revised by the Select Committee, is, by order of the President, published for general information :—

We, the Select Committee appointed to consider the Bill to amend Act X of 1859 (to amend the law relating to the recovery of rent in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), have the honor to make our Report annexing a copy of the Bill as revised by us. The Bill, as it now stands, is very different from the Bill read in Council, for we have found it necessary to make many alterations and additions.

By Section I we repeal all the Sections of Act X of 1859, which are repealed by this Bill.

Section II empowers the Court to allow damages not exceeding twenty-five per cent. on the amount of rent decreed to any plaintiff in a suit for rent, when it appears that the defendant has, without reasonable cause, refused or neglected to pay or to deposit in Court the amount due, and a proviso has been added that the amount decreed shall carry interest at twelve per cent. from the date of decree to the date of payment. Section III is the converse of Section II. It appears to us that if a defendant who improperly defends a suit is made liable to damages to the amount of twenty-five per cent. in addition to the debt and costs decreed against him, there is every reason why a corresponding liability should be imposed upon a plaintiff who improperly institutes a suit.

Sections IV and V are new Sections, which ought, we think, to operate greatly to the relief and protection of the ryot. By them we enable the ryot (if he has made a tender of the full amount of rent due from him, and such tender has been refused,) to pay the amount due from him into the Collector's Office, to the credit of the person to whom it is due. On making the deposit the ryot will have to make a declaration that it is the whole amount due, and to specify the particular period for which it has accrued. The Collector will then issue a notice to the person to whose credit the amount has been paid in, and will, on demand, pay him the money deposited. But the remedy provided by Sections IV and V would, we think, be incomplete without Section VI. Under Sections IV and V a ryot might make payment of all that he believed to be due, but still he would remain liable to be sued, at any time not beyond the limits laid down by the ordinary rules of limitation of suits, for any further sum or sums the Zemindar might claim. We think it of the highest importance that disputes between ryots and their landlords should be settled with as little delay as possible, and that disputed accounts should not be kept hanging over a man's head when there is no good reason for their not being at once settled either one way or other. When a ryot comes forward and actually deposits all that he alleges to be due, it appears to us no hardship to the Zemindar to call upon him at once either to accept the amount paid in, as in full of all his claims upon the particular account in respect of which it is paid, or to proceed forthwith to enforce any further claim which he may set up. We have therefore by Section VI declared that when a deposit has been made under Sections IV and V no suit for a further balance shall be instituted except within six months from the date of the service, on the Zemindar, of notice of the deposit.

Sections VII and VIII dispose of the question of costs in cases when money is paid into Court after action brought. We think they will in practice prove useful; but no new principle is involved in them, and they need no comment from us.

In Section IX we have very considerably modified and we trust improved Section XXVI of Act X of 1859. We think that in Section IX, as it now stands, we have defined with more precision and distinctness, than are to be found in Section XXVI of Act X of 1859, who the persons are who have the right of surveying and measuring lands. In other respects Section IX is a mere re-enactment of Section XXVI of Act X of 1859, except in the concluding Clause which enacts that, if a ryot after due notice does, not attend and point out the land, he shall not be permitted to contest the measurement made in his absence or any of the proceedings therewith connected.

The question dealt with in Section X is perhaps the most difficult of the many difficult questions we have had to consider. The object of that Section is to enable the proprietor of an estate to have a survey and measurement made of his estate even when he does not know and cannot ascertain who are the persons liable to pay the rent. We think that the Section which the Bill as read in Council contains is insufficient for the object in view, while in some respects it is too stringent upon the ryot. We have attempted to give a more efficient remedy and at the same time to guard more effectually against injustice to an innocent though absent ryot.

By Section XI we enact that all measurements shall be made by the standard pole of the Pergunnah. We have adopted this as the standard, as none other seemed likely to be generally acceptable, the pole varying in almost every Pergunnah throughout Bengal, and the Government pole not being in general use.

Section XII, as it stands, is merely a slight modification of Section XL of Act X of 1859.

In Section XIII will be found the Section contained in the Bill as read in Council, allowing fees to Agents and Mooktears to be charged as part of the costs of suit. We have added a Clause providing, as the justice of the case seems to require, that the Collector may also add as part of the costs of a suit the expenses of any witnesses whose attendance he may have thought necessary.

Sections XIV to XVIII are Sections which are contained in the Bill as read in Council scarcely (if at all) altered.

Section XIX is entirely new: and is introduced for the purpose of checking frivolous and unnecesary appeals, as well as for the protection of persons who have obtained a decree and are kept out of their money by reason of the pendency of an appeal. We propose that where a decree has gone against a defendant, no appeal shall in any case be allowed unless the appellant pays into Court the full amount of debt and costs decreed against him. The debt and costs are to be paid over to the plaintiff on his giving the Court security for their refund if his decree is set aside. If the appellant is successful, all that he has paid is to be refunded to him with interest. This provision seems to us to be fair and reasonable, and likely to be attended with good results.

In Sections XX, XXI, and XXII no new provisions are contained.

The Schedules give merely the forms of the declarations to be made by a ryot who deposits money in Court before action brought, and of the notice to be thereupon issued by the Court to the person to whose credit the payment is made.

During our sittings one or two communications on the subject of the Bill have been laid before us. They have all been fully considered by us. But we incline to think that the revised Bill, which we now present, contains all the amendments of Act X of 1859, and all the additions to it, which it is desirable to make at present.

AMENDED BILL.

A Bill to Amend Act X of 1859 (to amend the law relating to the recovery of Rent in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal.)

Preamble.

Whereas it is expedient to amend Act X of 1859, so far as the same relates to the Provinces subject to the Government of Bengal; it is enacted as follows: —

Repeals Sections XXVI, XL, LXXIV, LXXIX, LXXXVI, CL and CLXII, of Act X of 1859.

I. Sections XXVI, XL, LXXIV, LXXIX, LXXXVI, CL, and CLXII, of Act X of 1859 are hereby repealed, except as regards suits under the said Act X of 1859 instituted prior to the passing of this Act.

The Court may in certain cases award to the plaintiff additional damages not exceeding 25 per cent.

II. In any suit hereafter to be brought for rent under Act X of 1859, if it shall appear to the Court that the defendant has, without reasonable or probable cause, neglected or refused to pay the amount due by him and that he has not before the institution of the suit tendered such amount to the plaintiff or his duly authorized Agent, or, in case of refusal of the plaintiff or such Agent to receive the amount tendered, has not deposited such amount with the Collector before the institution of the suit in manner hereinafter mentioned, it shall be lawful for the Court to award to the plaintiff, in addition to the amount decreed for rent and costs, such damages, not exceeding twenty-five per cent on the amount of rent decreed, as the Court may think fit. These damages if awarded, as well as the amount of rent and costs decreed in the suit, shall carry interest at the rate of twelve per cent per annum from the date of decree until payment thereof, and shall be recoverable from the defendant in like manner as sums decreed to be paid by defendants under Act X of 1859 are recoverable.

The Court may award compensation, not exceeding 25 per cent on the amount sued for, to a defendant improperly sued.

III. In any suit hereafter to be brought for rent under Act X of 1859, if it shall appear to the Court that the plaintiff has instituted the suit against the defendant without reasonable or probable cause, or that the defendant before the institution of the suit duly deposited with the Collector in the manner hereinafter mentioned the full amount which the Court shall find to have been due to the plaintiff at the date of such deposit, it shall be lawful for the Court to award to the defendant by way of compensation such sum not exceeding twenty-five per cent on the whole amount claimed by the plaintiff, as the Court may think fit, and such sum with interest at the rate of twelve per cent per annum, until payment thereof, shall be recoverable from the plaintiff in like manner as sums decreed to be paid by defendants under Act X of 1859 are recoverable.

Ryot may after tender, &c, pay into Court, without any action being brought against him, what he admits to be due to his Zemindar, &c.

IV. If a ryot shall at the Mal Kutcherry for the receipt of rents or other place where the rents of the land held or cultivated by him are usually payable, tender payment of what he shall consider to be the full amount of rent due from him at the date of the tender to the Zemindar, or other person in receipt of the rent of such land, and if the amount so tendered shall not be accepted, and a receipt in full forthwith granted, it shall be lawful for the ryot, without any suit having been instituted against him, to deposit such amount in the Collector's Court, to the credit of the Zemindar or other person aforesaid, and such deposit shall, so far as the ryot and all persons claiming through or under him are concerned, in all respects' operate as and have the full effect of a payment then made by the ryot of the amount deposited to such Zemindar or other person.

Payment into Court to have effect of payment to Zemindar or other persons entitled.

Proceedings as to making a payment into Court and the drawing out the money.

V. The Collector shall receive such deposit on the application of the ryot, or his agent, made in writing upon paper bearing a stamp of such value as would be necessary on the institution of a suit for arrears of rent under Section XXXVII of Act X of 1859 for an amount equal to that which it is intended to deposit, and on the ryot or his agent making a declaration in the form, or as nearly as circumstances will admit in the form, set forth in the Schedule (A) hereto annexed, and the Collector shall give a receipt for the same. Upon receiving the money so deposited, the Collector shall issue a notice to the person to whose credit it has been deposited, in the form set forth in the Schedule (B) hereto annexed, and such notice shall be served either upon the person to whom it is addressed or upon his Naib, Gomasta, or other Agent, and in the absence of any such Agent, it shall be served by sticking up a copy of the same in the office of the Collector and another copy at the Mal Kutcherry for the receipt of rents' or other place where the rents are usually paid for the land in respect of which the money has been deposited. If the person to whom such notice is issued or his duly authorized Agent shall appear and apply that the money in deposit be paid to him, it shall be immediately made over to him.

Suit for further balance to be instituted within six months of service of notice of deposit.

VI. Whenever a deposit shall have been made under the provisions of this Act, no suit shall be brought against the person making the deposit or his representatives on account of any rent which accrued due prior to the date of the deposit, unless such suit is insitituted within six months from the date of the service of the notice in the fifth Section of this Act mentioned.

After action brought defendant may pay into Court, without costs, money tendered before action brought.

VII. The defendant in any suit under this Act or under Act X of 1859 instituted after the passing of this Act may, if he have duly tendered the same to the plaintiff before the institution of the suit, pay into Court such sum of money as he shall consider to be due to the plaintiff, wihout paying in any costs incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sum shall be immediately paid out of Court to the plaintiff. If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the plaintiff shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit incurred by the defendant; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit.

Costs if plaintiff goes on and recover no more.

If no previous tender made, defendant may pay into Court what he admits to be due with costs on that sum.

VIII. The defendant in any suit under this Act or under Act X of 1859 instituted after the passing of this Act may, without having made any tender before action brought, pay into Court such sum of money as he shall consider to be due to the plaintiff, together with the costs (as of a suit originally instituted for the amount so paid into Court) incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sum shall immediately be paid out of Court to the plaintiff. If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, he shall be charged with all costs incurred by the defendant subsequently to such payment; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall (including the sum paid into Court by him in the first instance on account of costs) be charged with costs as upon a suit originally instituted for the whole amount for which the plaintiff ultimately obtains a decree.

Costs if plaintiff goes on with the suit.

Survey and measurement of lands.

IX. Every proprietor of an estate or tenure or other person in receipt of the rents of an estate or tenure has a right of making a general survey and measurement of the lands comprised in such estate or tenure or any part thereof, unless restrained from doing so by express engagement with the occupants of the lands. If any person intending to measure any land which he has a right to measure, is opposed in making such measurement by the occupant of the land; or if any under-tenant or ryot, having received notice of the intended measurement of land held or cultivated by him which is liable to such measurement, refuses to attend and point out such land, such person may make application to the Collector and the Collector shall thereupon proceed to enquire into the case in the manner provided for suits under Act X of 1859, and shall pass an order either allowing or disallowing the measurement, and, if the case so require, enjoining or excusing the attendance of any such under-tenant or ryot. If any under-tenant or ryot after the issue of an order enjoining his attendance neglects to attend and to point out the land, it shall not be competent to him to contest the correctness of the measurement made or any of the proceedings held in his absence.

Measurement of lands, where it cannot be ascertained who the ryots are.

X. If the proprietor of an estate or other person entitled to receive the rents of an estate is unable to measure the same or any part thereof by reason that he cannot ascertain who are the persons liable to pay rent in respect of the lands or any part of the lands comprised therein, such proprietor or other person may petition the Collector in respect of the lands which he cannot measure as aforesaid, and the Collector shall thereupon and on the necessary costs being deposited with him by the applicant, proceed to ascertain, determine, and register the tenures and under-tenures, the rates of rent payable in respect of such lands, and the persons by whom respectively the rents are payable. The provisions of Section LXVII of Act X of 1859 shall apply to any proceeding of the Collector instituted under this Section. If after enquiry and examination of Witnessess (when available) the Collector shall be unable to ascertain who are the persons having tenures or under-tenures in such lands or any part thereof, he may declare the same to have lapsed to the party on whose petition he has made the enquiry. The decision of the Collector on all matters enquired into and determined by him as aforesaid shall be final unless the same shall be reversed on appeal to the Civil Court. Provided that no appeal shall lie against any decision of a Collector under this Section, unless such appeal shall be presented within one month after such decision shall have been given.

Measurements to be made by the Pergunnah pole.

XI. All measurements made under this Act shall be made by the Standard pole of measurement of the Pergunnah in which the land is situated. The proper length of such pole shall, in every case, be determined and specified by the Collector.

Form of Plaint in suits for arrears of rent.

XII. In any suit hereafter to be brought for the recovery of an arrear of rent the statement shall specify the name of the village and estate and of the Pergunnah or other local division in which the land is situate, the yearly rent of the land, the amount (if any) received on account of the year for which the claim is made, the amount in arrear, and the time in respect of which it is alleged to be due. If the arrear is alleged to be due from any ryot, the statement shall further specify the quantity of land, and where fields have been numbered in a Government Survey the number (if it be possible to give it) of each field.

Fees to Agents and Mooktears and expenses of witnesses to be allowed as costs of suit.

XIII. So much of Section LXXI of Act X of 1859 as directs that no fee for any Agent shall be charged as part of the costs of suit in any case under the Act, is hereby repealed. In awarding costs to either party in any suit hereafter to be brought under the said Act or under this Act, it shall be competent for the Collector to award to such party, on account of the fees of any Agent or Mooktear employed by him, such a sum, not exceeding the rate of fee chargeable under the provisions of Section VII of Act I of 1846 for Pleaders in the Civil Courts, as the Collector may direct. It shall be also competent to such Collector to include in the costs to be so awarded, such sums as may appear to him to be reasonable for the expenses of witnesses who may have been summoned to give evidence in any suit or proceeding under the said Act X of 1859 or under this Act.

Language in which the Collector is to write his judgment.

XIV. The Collector shall pronounce judgment in all cases tried under this Act or under Act X of 1859 in open Court. The judgment shall be written in the vernacular language of the Collector and shall contain the reasons for the same, and shall be dated and signed by the Collector at the time when it is pronounced. Provided that if the vernacular language of the Collector be not English and the Collector be sufficiently conversant with the English lauguage to be able to write a clear and intelligible decision in that language, and prefer to write his judgment in it, the judgment may be written in English.

XV. The provisions relating to attachment before judgment contained in Sections LXXXI to XC, both inclusive, of Act VIII of 1859 (for simplifying the procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature not established by Royal Charter) are hereby extended to all suits hereafter to be brought under this Act or Act X of 1859.

Execution to issue at time of decree on oral application: afterwards on application in writing.

XVI. Process of execution in any suit hereafter to be instituted under this Act or under Act X of 1859 may be issued against either the person or the property of a judgment debtor, but process shall not be issued simultaneously against both person and property. It may be issued on the oral application of the judgment creditor, his Agent, or Mooktear, made at the time the judgment is pronounced, or thereafter upon the written application of the judgment creditor, his Agent, or Mooktear, addressed to the Court by which the judgment was given. Process of execution against the person or moveable property of a debtor shall be in the form (E) or the form (F) contained in the Schedule to Act X of 1859 or in a form as nearly resembling those forms as the circumstances of the case may admit.

If person is arrested under Section CXLV of Act X of 1859, case to be disposed of at once.

XVII. If any person shall after the date of the passing of this Act be arrested under Section CXLV of the said Act X of 1859, he shall be brought before the Collector with all convenient speed, and the Collector shall proceed forthwith to try the case. If the case cannot be at once heard and determined, the Collector may, if he think fit, require the person arrested to give security for his appearance whenever the same is required. In default of such security the person arrested shall be committed to the Civil Jail till the case is heard.

Deputy Collector's powers.

XVIII. All the powers vested in the Collector by any of the Sections of this Act or of Act X of 1859, may be exercised by any Deputy Collector in cases referred to him by a Collector, and in all cases without such reference by any Deputy Collector placed in charge of any Sub-Division of a District or who is specially authorized by Government to receive such cases; and all applications and reports allowed or required by the said Act X of 1859 or by this Act to be made to the Collector, may be made to any Deputy Collector having such local jurisdiction or such special authority as aforesaid.

No Appeal shall lie, unless appellant pays into Court the amount of principal money and costs, &c.

XIX. No appeal shall lie from any decision under this Act, or under Act X of 1859, unless the appellant shall first pay into the Court whose decision is appealed against, the amount of principal money or costs, or both, that may have been given against him by that Court: and such amount so paid in shall be paid to the person in whose favor such decision shall have been given, on his giving security to the satisfaction of such Court for the refund of the amount so received by him with interest at the rate of twelve per cent per annum if the said decision shall be reversed.

Special Appeal from Zillah Judge.

XX. Whenever any suit under this Act or the said Act X of 1859 shall be brought by appeal before a Zillah Judge, a special appeal shall lie against the decision of such Judge subject and according to the provisions with regard to special appeals contained in Chapter X of Act VIII of 1859.

In what Court suits are to be instituted.

XXI. Suits under this Act or under Act X of 1859 shall be preferred in the Revenue Office of the District, or when a Sub-Division of a District has been placed under the jurisdiction of a Deputy Collector, in the Revenue Office of the Sub-Division in which the cause of action shall have arisen, or when the cause of action shall have arisen within the limits of the local jurisdiction of any Deputy Collector not in charge of a Sub-Division but who has been specially authorized by Government to receive such suits, then in the Office of such last mentioned Deputy Collector. Provided always that the Collector may withdraw any suit from any Deputy Collector, and try it himself, or refer it to another Deputy Collector. If the lands comprised in any talook, farm, or other tenure, or any lands held under one lease or engagement, or at one entire rent in respect of which arrears of rent may be due, are situated in more than one District or Sub-Division, or within the local limits of the jurisdiction of more than one Deputy Collector so specially authorized as aforesaid, the District or Sub-Division or local limits in which the greater part of such lands is situate, shall be held to be the District or Sub-Division or local limits in which the cause of action has arisen, and if any question shall be raised respecting the District, or Sub-Division, or local limits within which the greater part of the lands is situate, the Board of Revenue, or, if all the lands be situate in one District, the Collector of the District shall decide the question, and such decision shall be conclusive on the point of jurisdiction.

XXII. This Act shall be read with and taken as part of Act X of 1859 except as regards suits instituted thereunder before the passing of this Act.

E. DRUMMOND,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of India.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

Fort William, the 8th April 1862.

No. 398 of 1862.—The leave of absence to Europe on Sick Certificate for fifteen months, granted to Lieutenant A. G. Owen, of the Bengal Staff Corps, Second in Command, 16th Bengal Cavalry, in Government General Order No. 396 of the 3rd May 1861, is extended for a period of five months.

No. 399 of 1862.—His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct the publication, for general information, of the following paragraphs of a Military Letter from the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India, No. 81 of the 28th February last, and of the General Order issued by His Royal Highness the General Commanding-in-Chief, therein referred to, No. 807, dated 19th February 1862 :—

Para. 1.—I FORWARD with this Despatch copy of a General Order which has been published by His Royal Highness the General Commanding-in-Chief, with my concurrence, establishing the Regulations under which Officers of the Indian Army will enter Regiments of the Line. You will observe that it has been determined that an Officer joining a purchase Regiment from the Indian Service (which he may do under the provisions of my Despatch No. 154 of 8th April 1861) will be placed on the same footing in all respects with the rest of the Officers of that Regiment.

2. In giving my assent to the arrangement I was not unmindful of paragraph 31 of my Despatch, No. 319 of the 10th August 1861, in which it was laid down that the privilege of reckoning full time, wherever employed for Indian Pension, should be granted to Officers of Cavalry and Infantry who might be appointed, under the provisions of my Despatch No. 154 of 8th April, to fill vacancies in Line Regiments caused by the transfer of Officers from those Begiments to the Staff Corps.

3. Upon further consideration of this subject, it appeared to me not desirable that an Officer joining a purchase Regiment of the Line should enjoy advantages differing either in kind or degree from those allowed to his brother Officers.

4. Instead, therefore, of continuing to such Officer a claim to India Pension (which, under the Despatch above quoted, was allowed only so long as he remained with the Regiment he first joined), and denying him the privilege of purchase and of retirement on full or half pay under the Rules of Her Majesty's Service, it has been determined to place such Officer on precisely the same footing in all these respects as the rest of the Officers of his Corps.

5. You will therefore cause Paragraph 31, Clause 3, of the Despatch No. 319, to be cancelled, at the same time that the accompanying General Order is published for the information of the Army.

6. Such Officers as may have made application or transfer to a Line Regiment under the circumstances now referred to, must be afforded the opportunity of re-considering the subject.

No. 807.

GENERAL ORDER.

HORSE GUARDS, S. W.
The 19*th February* 1862.

With regard to the addition of twelve non-purchase Regiments of the Line to the British Army, His Royal Highness the General Commanding-in-Chief is pleased, with the concurrence of the Right Hon'ble the Secretaries of State for War and for India, to establish the following Regulations :—

1. In non-purchase Corps of the Line no Officers can sell their Commissions.

Those who enter from the Indian Service retain their claim to Indian Pension, and all others are entitled, with Her Majesty's approval, to retire on full or half pay, according to the terms of Her Majesty's Warrants of the 14th October 1858 and 28th March 1861.

2. An Officer joining a purchase Regiment from the Indian Service will be placed on the same footing in all respects with the rest of the Officers of that Regiment.

Having forfeited all claim to Indian Pension, he will become entitled to retire on full pay or half pay under the Warrants above specified.

Non-purchase Officers of such Regiments have the privilege of receiving, subject to the consent in each case of the General Commanding-in-Chief and of the Secretary of State for War (which is liable to be withheld if the retirement results from misconduct), an allowance, on retirement, of £100 for each year's service, whether in the British or Indian Army, provided the total amount does not exceed the price of the Commission resigned.

By Order of His Royal Highness,
The General Commanding-in-Chief,

(Sd.) JAMES YORKE SCARLETT,
Adjutant-General.

Public Works Department.

Opening of Railway between Lahore and Umritsur.

From CAPTAIN G. SIM, Under-Secretary to the Government of Punjab, Public Works Department, Railway Branch, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department,—(dated the 4th March 1862.)

WITH reference to my telegram of this date, and previous announcement made in my letter to your address, No. 47, dated 22nd ultimo, I am now directed by the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor to report, for the information and satisfaction of the Supreme Government, that the Section of the Punjab Railway between Lahore and Umritsur (thirty-two miles in length) was officially opened by His Honor, on the 1st instant, with perfect success, and without accident, interruption, or disappointment of any description.

2. The Consulting Engineer to this Government, in company with the Chief Engineer, Agent, and Locomotive Superintendent of the Railway, had made several trials of the line and works as soon as possible after the single Locomotive (whose arrival at Lahore was lately reported to you) had been set up in working order; the Engine itself also required to be tried carefully. But the final inspection and trials of those Officers were completed by the 28th ultimo, after a small Train had been twice run throughout between the Termini, when the line and Engine were found to be in excellent order; and on the evening of that day a Report was made to the Lieutenant-Governor that every thing was ready for the official opening fixed for the following day.

3. Accordingly at 11 A. M., on the 1st instant, a Train, composed of two 2nd and three 3rd Class Carriages, with two low-sided waggons, started from the platform of the Lahore Passenger Station, and arrived at Umritsur at 12-30 P. M., after stopping for a few minutes for passengers, &c., at the intermediate Stations of Meean Meer and Attaree. On its return the Train left Umritsur at 4 P. M., reaching Lahore at 5-25 P. M.; the journey being performed for the greater part of the distance at a speed of about thirty miles per hour, but on the return trip a speed of from thirty-five to forty miles was for a short time attained more as a trial of the Locomotive. The Locomotive (a Goods' Engine) had been that day named the "John Lawrence" in compliment to the late Lieutenant-Governor, who had turned the first sod of the Punjab Railway.

4. Besides His Honor and Personal Suite, the passengers consisted of several Members of this Government, the Heads of every Official Department, with their Chief Assistants and employès, and a number of Military Officers, Railway Staff, and non-official residents of Lahore, Meean Meer, and other neighbouring Stations, accompanied in many cases by their families. The Rajah of Furreedkote was also a passenger, while one carriage was appropriated for the conveyance of several Sirdars and Chiefs of this part of the Punjab, and Native Gentlemen who, equally with the European community, had received cards of invitation from the Agent to be present on the occasion. There were about 252 passengers in all, and under the special instructions of the Lieutenant-Governor the day was kept as a Holiday by all classes.

5. I am desired to state that, in the opinion of His Honor and of those passengers who have been accustomed to Railway travelling, no Train could have run more smoothly, or a journey by rail been performed in a more satisfactory manner. It was evident to all that the line was both well laid and well gauged, and the carriages were pronounced to be roomy, well built, and altogether free from shaking.

6. And now the Lieutenant-Governor directs me to place on record His Honor's opinion that the opening of this important Section of the Railway could not have been more successfully arranged or carried out by the Railway Officers concerned; while the Civil and Police Authorities of this Government, both at Lahore and Umritsur, took the most complete measures to secure safety for the multitudes assembled, as well as eclât for an occasion that may be truly said to mark the commencement of a new era in the land of the five rivers. No Railway in India, it was thought by many who were present, could have been inaugurated with better encouragement for its future prosperity than this short line, which so thoroughly unites the Political and Commercial Capitals of the Punjab.

7. At the Lahore Terminus some thousands of inhabitants were seen thronging every part of the Lahore Station plot and alongside of the rails; some had mounted to the roofs of the Workshops, while others stood on the heaps of ballast, or perched themselves like birds amidst the branches of the wood fuel, roughly put up into somewhat lofty stacks; but amongst all, the excitement was intense to witness the accomplishment of what,—in consequence of the tardy arrival of any of the Engines, &c., to explain to them the mystery of that which alone they had seen, viz., a straight earth-bank covered with broken bricks, and raised across the country with two lines of thin strange looking iron fixed on its surface,—they had begun to deride, or at least disbelieve.

8. But if there were crowds assembled at Lahore, the multitudes at the Umritsur Terminus swarmed to such an extent, that it seemed as if every man and boy of that commercial emporium of Northern India had turned out to welcome the Train, as well as witness the great sight they had been taught to look forward to as the harbinger of greater success in the development of the trade of their city, than could have been brought about by any other means. There could not have been less than 30,000 people then collected, although higher estimates of the number were made at the time. Along the temporary fence on each side of the line they stood and sat four or five deep for at least a mile and a half, to say nothing of the crowds gathered near the platform and the tents where addresses were presented, one to the Lieutenant-Governor by the non-official European community, and a second to the Agent of the Railway, which was read out by the City representatives of the Native traders as the expression of their gratification at the completion of this line. In fine, at Umritsur, it was a perfect ovation, for there, more than in any other part of the Punjab, the Railway has excited the liveliest interest from the very first, which promises well for the future traffic of the line.

9. In conclusion, I have Sir Robert Montgomery's express injunctions to add that it would have caused him deep regret had he been unable to take part in the proceedings of a day to which al classes had assigned such an important meaning, and which resulted so auspiciously. He feels confident that the Government of India will join with him in expressing gratification in the knowledge that the line from Lahore to Umritsur has been at length opened. and also that, in spite of frequent impediments and unavoidable delays in bringing up from the seaboard to Lahore the requisite supplies of materials and rolling stock, the promise made by the Chief Engineer and Agent, when they arrived to take charge last year, that it should be ready for opening in twelve months after a commencement of plate-laying could be made, has been actually fulfilled.

10. His Honor therefore ventures to recommend that the acknowledgments of the Supreme Government may be extended to the Agent, Mr. Stevens, for his zeal in this particular instance, and strenuous administration of the affairs of the Punjab Railway generally, and especially to the Chief Engineer, Mr. Harrison, and to the Staff and Assistants of all grades who have been employed under his directions on this Section, for the skill, intelligence, and persevering energy in all seasons of the year, with which the construction and completion of the works on it have been brought by them to the successful result now reported.

From LIEUTENANT-COLONEL R. STRACHEY, Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department, to the Under Secretary to the Government of the Punjab, Railway Department,—(dated Fort William, the 27th March 1862.)

SIR,—I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letters Nos. 61 and 66 of the 4th and 7th instant, reporting the successful opening of the Punjab Railway between Lahore and Umritsur, and forwarding copy of the Railway Agent's report of that event to his Board. These papers have been laid before His Excellency the Governor General in Council, and I am directed to request that His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab will communicate to the Railway Agent Mr. R. W. Stevens, to the Chief Engineer Mr. Joseph Harrison, and to his Staff and Assistants of all grades who have been employed under his directions on this Section, information of the satisfaction with which His excellency in Council has received the report by His Honor of their meritorious exertions in furtherance of the important work in which they have been engaged.

LEGISLATIVE.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th April 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a fortnight:—

A Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure in regard to the extension thereof to any parts of the Territories not subject to the General Regulations; It is enacted as follows:—

With what restrictions, &c., Code of Criminal Procedure may be extended to a Non-Regulation Province.

I. When, under the provisions of Section 445 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the said Code shall be extended to any part of the Territories not subject to the General Regulations of Bengal, Madras, or Bombay, it shall be lawful for the Governor-General in Council or for the local Government to which such Territory is subordinate and by which it shall be so extended as aforesaid, to declare that the Code shall take effect therein subject to any restriction, limitation, or proviso which the Governor-General in Council or the local Government may think fit in respect of any of the following particulars, that is to say—

1st.—In respect of Section 22 of the said Code, and the 7th column of the Schedule thereto annexed, so far as relates to the Courts and Officers competent to try and to pass sentence in respect of the offences specified in that Schedule, and the limits within which they are competent to pass sentence.

2nd.—In respect of Chapter IX of the said Code "of the preliminary enquiry by the Police."

3rd.—In respect of Sections 323 and 324 of the said Code.

4th.—In respect of Sections 398, 401, and 420 of the said Code, providing for the hearing of certain cases, and the signing or passing certain sentences or orders by at least two Judges of the Sudder Court.

5th.—In respect of Section 399, and the confirmation of a sentence of death referred to a Sudder Court, by rendering necessary the concurrence of the Chief Commissioner or the Chief Executive Authority of the Province or Lieutenant-Governorship to such confirmations before the same can be carried into execution.

6th.—In respect of Section 434, and of the power of revision by Courts other than the Sudder Court of any sentence, order, or judicial proceedings in or of the Criminal Courts within the jurisdiction or subordinate to them, and of the power of such other Courts to alter sentences or orders of a subordinate Court otherwise than upon appeal duly made under Chapter XXX of the said Code.

Proviso.

II. Provided that it shall not be lawful for the Governor-General in Council or the local Government, by any such restriction, limitation, or proviso, to increase the powers given by the said 9th Chapter of the said Code to any Officer of Police with regard to the preliminary enquiry, or to empower any Court which shall revise the proceedings of a subordinate Court, to alter or reverse a verdict or judgment of acquittal, or to enhance the punishment awarded by any order or sentence of the subordinate Court.

The restrictions, &c., to be inserted in the declaration or notification of extension.

III. When the said Code shall be extended to any Territory subject to any restriction, limitation, or proviso introduced under this Act, the restriction, limitation, or proviso shall be inserted in the declaration or notification of such extension.

Restrictions by local Government to receive the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council.

IV. When the Code shall be extended by the local Government to any Territory subordinate to it, and such extension is made subject to any restriction, limitation, or proviso, the previous sanction of the Governor-General of India in Council shall be requisite.

Construction.

V. This Act shall be taken and read as part of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill was prepared by the late Mr. Ritchie, and his remarks on the 19th February, in moving for leave to introduce it, were thus reported :—

"He stated that the object of this Bill was to enable the Government, when it extended the Code of Criminal Procedure to Non-Regulation Provinces, to accompany it by some special provisions. After the Code of Civil Procedure was passed, the Government was authorized (by Act IV of 1860), in extending it to a Non-Regulation Province, to declare any restrictions, limitations, or provisoes it might think necessary. It was not intended to give the same power in respect of the Criminal Procedure which embodied very much of substantive Criminal Law But it was necessary to authorize the Government to adapt the Code to the existing state of things in Non-Regulation Provinces, so far as the machinery for putting it in force was concerned. The alterations proposed would be of five descriptions; 1st, in regard to the Courts by which offences might be tried and sentences passed; 2ndly, with regard to preliminary enquiries by the Police, but the Government would be restricted from enlarging the powers given by the Code; 3rdly, with regard to the number of the Judges necessary to pass a sentence of death or penal servitude; 4thly, with respect to the power of revision by the several Criminal Courts over the Subordinate Courts; and 5thly, in regard to the confirmation of sentences of death by the Chief Commissioners."

The Bill is based on the recommendations of many of the principal Officers of the Non-Regulation Provinces. A paper containing an abstract of their opinions will be laid before the Select Committee.

M. WYLIE,
Depy. Secy. to the Govt. of India,
Home Department.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th April 1862, and was referred to a Select Committtee who will make a report thereon after the 12th July next :—

A Bill to provide for the dissolution of the Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund, and the distribution of the funds belonging thereto.

Preamble.

WHEREAS, by certain Regulations prepared and adopted by certain members of the Subordinate Medical Department, a Society was established at Ferozepore, in 1852, for raising a Fund called "The Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund," the interest, dividends, and proceeds of which Fund were directed to be applied in making provision at certain specified rates for the widows and children of the subscribers: and it was directed that such provision should be made solely out of the interest and dividends of the said Fund; and whereas a petition has been presented to His Excellency the Governor-General in Council by certain subscribers and members of the said Society, stating that no subscriptions have been contributed to the said Fund since the year 1857, and that in consequence thereof and of the deaths of several of the subscribers to the said Fund, no steps have or can be taken to make the provision intended by the Regulations of the said Fund, and that no pensions whatever have, since the year 1857, been paid to any of the persons entitled to the benefits of the said Fund and that therefore the expectations of the founders of the Fund have been disappointed and the objects for which such Fund was established have failed; and praying that an Act may be passed to wind-up the affairs of the said Fund; and whereas no provision is made in the Regulations of such Fund for the dissolution thereof or the distribution of the funds belonging thereto, and it is expedient to make provision for the same by law; It is enacted as follows :—

On petition, the Supreme Court may order the winding-up of the Fund.

I. On the petition to the Supreme Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, of a majority of the subscribers of the said Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund, or of any ten subscribers of the Society and pensionaries on the said Fund, praying for the dissolution of the said Society, and the winding-up of the affairs of the said Fund, it shall be lawful for the said Supreme Court to make order for the same on the said petition, as fully as if the petitioners proceeded by information or bill, and as if there were parties defendants; and as fully as if the Regulations of the said Fund provided for the winding-up of the said Fund; and it shall belawful for the said Court to make order for ascertaining and declaring the rights which attach on the said Fund, and for taking the accounts of the said Fund, and for the apportionment, division, and distribution of the said Fund; and for the ascertainment of the nature and numbers of the different claims on the said Fund, and of the persons having or entitled to make the said claims; and for the payment of the proper costs of the subscribers of the said Society, and of all parties conducting or otherwise concerned in the matter of the said petition and subsequent proceedings for winding-up the said Fund.

Accountant or Actuary may be employed.

II. It shall be lawful for the said Court, in such way as they may think fit, to obtain the assistance of an Accountant or Actuary the better to enable the Court to determine any matter relating to the division and distribution of the Fund, and to act upon the certificate of such person; and in case it shall be deemed necessary to make any reference to the Master in Equity of the said Court in the matter of such petition, it shall be lawful for the said Court to order that the Master in Equity shall be at liberty in like manner to obtain the assistance of an Accountant or Actuary.

Pensions may be commuted.

III. In the cases of pensioners or persons entitled to become pensioners who shall consent to commute their pensions, it shall be lawful for the Court to order that the amounts to be paid in commutation, shall be settled, invested, or paid, in such manner as will give the several persons therein interested the full benefit thereof.

Money may be invested or other arrangement made to pay pensions.

IV. In the cases of pensioners or persons entitled to become pensioners, who shall refuse to commute their pensions, it shall be lawful for the Court to order a sufficient sum to be set apart out of the said Fund to provide for the due payment of such pensions The said Court may also sanction and give effect to any arrangement which it may deem just and sufficient for the future payment of any commuted sum or uncommuted pensions, by any Life Insurance Company willing to undertake the payment of such pensions.

Case of minors entitled to pensions.

V. Guardians of minors, pensioners, and of minors, if any, entitled to become pensioners on the said Fund, shall have full power and authority to consent on their behalf to commute the pensions of the minors for a fixed sum; and the said Court shall have full power and authority to give effect to such consent, and to make such order as the said Court may deem just for the application of the said commuted sum for the future benefit of the infant; and if there be no guardian, the mother, during her widowhood, may act as guardian, unless the Court shall otherwise order; and, if necessary, the Court may appoint a guardian for any minor.

Every part of the Fund may be applied.

VI. In dividing and distributing the said Fund, every part thereof which shall not be awarded by the Court to members or representatives of deceased members, may, if the Court shall think fit, be applied for the benefit of pensioners or persons entitled to become pensioners, whether they shall consent to commute their interests or not.

Dividend may be made in anticipation.

VII. With a view to expedite the distribution of the surplus of the said Fund, and above what may probably be necessary to provide for the pensions established by said Court shall have full power and authority shall at any time to order payment of a dividend on the said probable surplus, to the persons or more entitled to the same, although the exact surplus against the exact amount of charges may not then be ascertained.

Mode of bringing in claimants.

VIII. For the purpose of winding-up the said Fund, and finally closing the accounts thereof, the like proceedings shall be had for the bringing in of claimants on the said Fund, as in ordinary administration suits for bringing in creditors and other persons; and claimants being pensioners or entitled to be pensioners, who may neglect to come in, in due course, or within the time limited for that purpose, shall be deemed to have consented to commute their pensions; and a final distribution may be made of the said Fund.

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

The explanation given by the late Mr. Ritchie on moving for leave to bring in the Bill on the 5th of March 1862, was thus reported:—

"He stated the Society which it was intended to dissolve was established by the Subordinate Medical Officers of Government in 1852, at Ferozepore, the object being to provide for their Widows and Orphans and the pensions were to be payable out of the interest on the Capital. But during the mutiny all subscriptions stopped, and the affairs of the Society fell into so much confusion, that it was now necessary to afford relief by winding-up the affairs through the medium of the Supreme Court, in the manner adopted in 1856 in the case of the Bengal Mariners' and General Widows' Fund."

The Bill strictly follows the precedent of the Act XXIV of 1856 for winding-up the Fund mentioned by Mr. Ritchie, and is adapted to meet a case which appears to be of a very similar description. After the Bill is introduced into the Council, its publication will afford an opportunity to any subscriber who may not have been previously consulted, to consider its provisions.

Depy. Secy. to the Govt. of India,
Home Department.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th April 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon within a week:—

A Bill to repeal in part Act II of 1835.

Preamble.

Whereas the Provinces of Arracan and Tenasserim have been united with the Provinces of Pegu and Martaban in one general administration under a Chief Commissioner of British Burmah, and it is no longer expedient that the functionaries who are or may be appointed in the said Provinces should be under the control and superintendence of the Court of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, or of the Board of Revenue; It is enacted as follows:—

Repeal of Act II of 1835 as regards Arracan and Tenasserim.

Proviso.

I. So much of Act II of 1835 as relates to the said Provinces of Arracan and Tenasserim is hereby repealed: provided that any appeals or other matters relating to the said Provinces, and now pending before the Court of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, or before the Board of Revenue, shall be heard and determined as if this Act had not been passed.

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

The objects and reasons of this Bill are stated in the Preamble.

The Governor-General in Council having, by a Resolution dated the 31st January last, united the Provinces of Pegu, Martaban, Tenasserim, and Arracan in one general administration under the authority of a high Officer, styled the Chief Commissioner of British Burmah, and vested with the powers of a Judicial Commissioner in the said Provinces, it is no longer necessary or expedient that the Court of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, or the Board of Revenue, at Calcutta, should exercise any control or supervision over the Officers employed in the two Provinces of Tenasserim and Arracan, as they are required to do by Act II of 1835.

These functions will in future be performed in respect to Tenasserim and Arracan, as they are now in respect to Pegu and Martaban, by the Chief Commissioner.

The appeals and other cases now pending before the said Court or Board will be more conveniently disposed of by the Court or Board than by the Chief Commissioner, and authority is therefore reserved to dispose of such cases as if the Bill were not passed.

The 26th March 1862.

M. Wylie,
Depy. Secy. to the Govt. of India,
Home Department.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th April 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee who will make a report thereon after the 12th July next :—

A Bill to amend Act X of 1859 (to amend the law relating to the Recovery of Rent in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) so far as it relates to the Territories under the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Act X of 1859 (to amend the law relating to the Recovery of Rent in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) so far as it relates to the Territories under the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces; It is enacted as follows :—

Suits cognizable by Collectors in addition to those specified in Sections XXIII and XXIV of Act X of 1859.

I. In addition to the suits specified in Sections XXIII and XXIV of Act X of 1859, the following suits shall be cognizable by the Collectors of Land Revenue under the provisions of the said Act, and, except in the way of appeal as provided in the said Act, shall not be cognizable in any other Court or by any other Officer or in any other manner (that is to say) —

1st.—Suits by Lumberdars for arrears of Government Revenue payable through them by the co-sharers whom they represent.

2nd.—Suits by co-sharers in a joint undivided estate for their share of the profits of the estate after payment of the Government Revenue and village expenses, or for a settlement of accounts.

Limitation of suits under preceding Section.

II. Suits instituted under the preceding Section shall be instituted within three years from the date when the arrear of Revenue or the amount of profits claimed shall have become due, or if the suit be for an arrear of Revenue or for profits due at the passing of this Act, it shall be instituted within three years after the passing of this Act, or within the period now allowed for the institution of such suits in the Civil Court, whichever may first expire. If the suit be for a settlement of accounts the suit shall be brought within one year after the expiration of the year to which the accounts relate, or in the case of any claims for such settlement now existing within one year from the passing of this Act, or within the period now allowed for the institution of such suits in the Civil Court, whichever may first expire.

Collector to make arrangement for satisfaction of award in such suits, instead of proceeding to a sale of the share of the Estate belonging to the party against whom the award is made.

III. In any suit falling under Section I of this Act in which the Collector shall award a sum of money on account either of an arrear of Government Revenue or of profits, if the Collector shall consider that the sale of the share of the estate belonging to the party against whom the award is made is objectionable, and that satisfaction of the award may be made by a temporary alienation of such share, it shall be competent to the Collector to make provision for the satisfaction of the award by transferring the share of the estate of the judgment debtor to any of the other co-sharers for such period and on such terms as he may think proper, or he may make such other arrangement for the satisfaction of the award as the circumstances of the case will admit of, instead of proceeding to a sale of such share.

Orders of Collector under preceding Section subject to revision by Commissioner, but not open to appeal to Civil Court.

IV. Orders passed by a Collector under the last preceding Section shall be subject to revision by the Commissioner of the Division, but shall not be open to appeal to the Civil Court.

Execution to issue on oral application at the time the decree is made and on written application thereafter.

V. From the date of the passing of this Act, Section LXXXVI of the said Act X of 1859 shall cease to have effect in the Territories under the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, and the following Section is enacted in lieu thereof :—

"Process of execution may be issued against either the person or the property of a judgment debtor, but process shall not be issued simultaneously against both person and property. Such process may be issued on the oral application of the judgment creditor, his agent, or mooktear, made at the time the decree is passed, or thereafter upon the written application of the judgment creditor, his agent, or mooktear. Process of execution against the person or moveable property of a debtor shall be in the form (E) or (F) contained in the Schedule to the said Act X of 1859, or to the like effect."

Addition to Section CXII of Act X of 1859.

VI. Section CXII of the said Act X of 1859 shall be read as if the words "where the rent of a puttee is collected by a lumberdar, from the putteedar who is entitled to collect the rent" were added at the end of such Section.

Special appeal from decisions of Zillah Judge under Act X of 1859.

VII. Doubts having been entertained as to whether the decisions passed by a Zillah Judge in regular appeal under Act X of 1859 are open to special appeal, it is hereby declared that it was the intention of the said Act that such decisions should be open to special appeal to the Sudder Court in the same manner, and subject to the same rules as the decisions of Zillah Judges passed in regular appeal are open to special appeal under the Code of Civil Procedure.

Procedure on arrest of person under Section CXLV of Act X of 1859.

VIII. If any person shall be arrested under Section CXLV of the said Act X of 1859, he shall be brought before the Collector with all convenient speed, and the Collector shall proceed forthwith to try the case. If the case cannot be at once heard and determined, the Collector may, if he think fit, require the party arrested to give security for his person whenever the same may be required. In default of such security, the party arrested may be committed to the Civil Jail until the case is tried.

Construction of Act.

IX. This Act shall be read and taken, in the Territories under the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, as part of the said Act X of 1859.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

ACT X of 1859, which this Bill proposes to amend, confers original jurisdiction on the Revenue Courts in Bengal in all cases of dispute arising between landlord and tenant and between landlord and agent; but there is another class of cases of a somewhat analogous character which, as the Act is now framed, are not embraced by it. I allude to disputes arising in joint undivided estates between the lumberdar who is the recognised representative of the other sharers in such estates and as such pays the dues of Government, and the co-sharers whom he represents, whether on account of the portion of Government revenue payable by such co-sharers, or any of them, or relating to the adjustment and distribution amongst the several sharers of the profits of the estate after payment of the Government revenue and the village expenses. The reasons which induced the Legislature to vest the Revenue Courts in Bengal with jurisdiction in the cases brought within their cognizance as Courts of first instance by the Act of 1859, seem to apply with nearly equal force to cases such as those just mentioned. The omission to include such cases in the Act was, I have reason to believe, simply an inadvertence The omission was discovered by the Board of Revenue for the North-Western Provinces before Act X of 1859 became law, but it was not brought to my notice until after the passing of the Act, and there were particular reasons at the time which appeared to render it unadvisable to apply to the Legislature for an immediate alteration of the law. The first Section of the Bill is intended to supply the omission.

Section 112 of Act X of 1859, which applies to distraint, provides first, that no sharer in a joint undivided estate, shall exercise the powers of distraint except through a manager authorised to collect the rents of the estate on behalf of all the sharers; and, secondly, that in putteedaree estates in the North-Western Provinces distraint shall be made only through a lumberdar. The object of these restrictions is obviously to prevent two or more processes of distraint being taken out against the same crop by different shareholders possessing, not a separate, but only a joint interest in the land on which the crop is growing or was grown, and there can be no doubt that the restrictions are very proper. But the Board of Revenue for the North-Western Provinces have pointed out that, while it would not be expedient to vest the powers of distraint in all putteedars, its limitation to lumberdars only is in some instances productive of inconvenience; that although the lumberdars are invariably responsible for the revenue which is paid through them, there are putteedaree estates in the North-Western Provinces containing puttees of which the rents are not collected by a lumberdar, but by putteedars who are responsible to the lumberdar for their quota of the revenue and of the village expenses; that it would seem equitable that the power of distraint should be conferred on those who are entitled to collect the rent, and that, to this end, it would be sufficient to add to Section 112 the following words: viz., "or where the rent of a puttee is not collected by a lumberdar through the putteedar who is entitled to collect the rent" I concur with the Board and in the sixth Section of the Bill I propose to amend the existing law in the manner recommended by them.

The seventh Section is of a declaratory character, and has for its object to remove doubts which have arisen as to whether it was intended that the decisions passed by Zillah Judges in regular appeal under Sections 160 and 161 of Act X of 1859, from decisions of the Revenue Courts, should be open to special appeal to the Sudder Court. The point has, I understand, been determined in the affirmative by the Sudder Courts at Calcutta and at Agra, and I think there can be no doubt as to the correctness of their decision. An amendment of Act X of 1859 being found necessary, it is considered advisable to give the force of law to the ruling of the Courts.

The only other Section of the Bill which I deem it necessary particularly to notice, is the one which proposes to give to the Revenue Courts, when making an award for an arrear of rent or revenue, power to grant immediate execution on the verbal application of the judgment creditor. This power has lately been given to the Civil Courts in all cases of debt, damage, and the like to the amount of 500 Rupees, and it is considered that the same power may be properly possessed by the Revenue Courts in suits falling within their cognizance under Act X of 1859

Provisions similar to the last two mentioned by me are contained in a Bill to amend Act X of 1859 now before the Legislative Council of Bengal That Bill contains other provisions, some of them of a penal character, the extension of which to the North-Western Provinces is, I am happy to think, not called for by anything in the state of that part of the country.

It only remains for me to mention that it is proposed to restrict the Bill in its application to the Territories under the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IN the preparation of this Bill the provisions of the several projects of law on the subject of Registration which have been from time to time published for general information, and the various communications which have been received concerning those projects, have been consulted.

The expediency of a law to compel Registration of all transfers of land was suggested by the Court of Directors in a Despatch* addressed to the Governor-General in Council, shortly after the passing of the Charter Act 3 and 4 William IV c. 85 in the following terms—" We would also suggest the establishment of Offices for the Registration of all transfers of land or any interest in land, such Registration to be compulsory under such penalties as may appear to you requisite."

* No. 44 of 1834, dated 10th December.

Since that time the subject of a Registration law frequently received great consideration in the Legislative Council, either in the form of proposed amendments of the various Regulations already in operation in the several Presidencies, or in the form of a new or consolidated law.

During the years 1841-42, a Draft Act "for consolidating, amending, and extending the law relating to the Registration of Assurances" was prepared by Mr. Amos. This Draft Act, after having been published and re-published and finally revised with great care, was laid aside, with the exception of one of its provisions, which was passed into law as Act I of 1843.

In 1849, the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces forwarded the draft of a law prepared by the Judges of the Sudder Court, proposing various amendments in the existing Registration Laws of the Bengal Presidency. No steps were taken upon this draft, because it was at that time in contemplation to revise and consolidate the several Regulations and Acts then in force.

In 1852, the subject was again brought forward, and an elaborate and comprehensive scheme was proposed by Sir Charles Jackson, then Officiating as Fourth Ordinary Member of Council, in the shape of a Draft Act "for the Registration of Assurances in the Territories under the Government of the East India Company," which was published for general information.

In 1853, an investigation into the system and practice of Registration of Deeds in the North-Western Provinces, undertaken by Mr. C. B. Thornhill pursuant to instructions from the Lieutenant-Governor resulted in the preparation by that gentleman of a new Registry Law adapted to the requirements of the North-Western Provinces.

In 1855, a petition* was presented to the Legislative Council by Mr. Archibald Grant, the Solicitor to the East India Company, praying that a Draft Act for the Registration of Assurances prepared by him and which accompanied his petition might be passed.

* Dated 27th June.

Lastly, in 1858, the Judges of the Sudder Court at Madras prepared the draft of a law on this subject.

The several projects of law which have been enumerated differ considerably from each other in their scope and object. Some of them are confined to a registry of transfers of immoveable property, others include also transfers of moveable property, and further extend to Decrees and Orders of Courts, to Wills and authorities to adopt. Registration is in express terms made compulsory by some of these projects; others provide that documents not registered shall not be admissible in evidence in Courts of Justice; while by others certain advantages are conferred on registered documents, but Registration is not made essential to their validity. In the conflict of the many opinions which have been elicited by these several proposals, it is difficult to determine with certainty what are the principles on which a Registration Law for British India should be based, and by what detailed provisions the beneficial operation of such a law may be secured. The present Bill contains various provisions taken from these several projects of law, and the following are the leading principles on which the measure is framed.

It is clear that even under the present laws Registry Offices have not been established in sufficient numbers to prevent inconvenience and loss of time to persons who desire to register documents. To what extent such Offices ought to be multiplied under the new law must depend in great measure on the extent to which Registration is to be made compulsory. If Registration be made necessary to the admission in evidence of any Instrument affecting the transfer of immoveable property above the value of 100 Rupees and if the limit of time within which an action can be brought on any unregistered Instrument affecting any property moveable or immoveable be reduced, it is essential that persons making contracts concerning such property should have convenient means to regis-

The question dealt with in Section X is perhaps the most difficult of the many difficult questions we have had to consider. The object of that Section is to enable the proprietor of an estate to have a survey and measurement made of his estate even when he does not know and cannot ascertain who are the persons liable to pay the rent. We think that the Section which the Bill as read in Council contains is insufficient for the object in view, while in some respects it is too stringent upon the ryot. We have attempted to give a more efficient remedy and at the same time to guard more effectually against injustice to an innocent though absent ryot.

By Section XI we enact that all measurements shall be made by the standard pole of the Pergunnah. We have adopted this as the standard, as none other seemed likely to be generally acceptable, the pole varying in almost every Pergunnah throughout Bengal, and the Government pole not being in general use.

Section XII, as it stands, is merely a slight modification of Section XL of Act X of 1859.

In Section XIII will be found the Section contained in the Bill as read in Council, allowing fees to Agents and Mooktears to be charged as part of the costs of suit. We have added a Clause providing, as the justice of the case seems to require, that the Collector may also add as part of the costs of a suit the expenses of any witnesses whose attendance he may have thought necessary.

Sections XIV to XVIII are Sections which are contained in the Bill as read in Council scarcely (if at all) altered.

Section XIX is entirely new. and is introduced for the purpose of checking frivolous and unnecesary appeals, as well as for the protection of persons who have obtained a decree and are kept out of their money by reason of the pendency of an appeal. We propose that where a decree has gone against a defendant, no appeal shall in any case be allowed unless the appellant pays into Court the full amount of debt and costs decreed against him. The debt and costs are to be paid over to the plaintiff on his giving the Court security for their refund if his decree is set aside. If the appellant is successful, all that he has paid is to be refunded to him with interest. This provision seems to us to be fair and reasonable, and likely to be attended with good results.

In Sections XX, XXI, and XXII no new provisions are contained.

The Schedules give merely the forms of the declarations to be made by a ryot who deposits money in Court before action brought, and of the notice to be thereupon issued by the Court to the person to whose credit the payment is made.

Petition of the Landholders' and Commercial Association of British India, dated 14th March 1862.

Correspondence between the Bengal Government and the Landholders' Association regarding the difficulties experienced by Mr. J. White Smith in collecting his rents.

Letter from the Judge of the 24-Pergunnahs, dated 18th March 1862.

During our sittings one or two communications on the subject of the Bill have been laid before us. They have all been fully considered by us. But we incline to think that the revised Bill, which we now present, contains all the amendments of Act X of 1859, and all the additions to it, which it is desirable to make at present.

Upon receiving the money so deposited, the Collector shall issue a notice to the person to whose credit it has been deposited, in the form set forth in the Schedule (B) hereto annexed, and such notice shall be served either upon the person to whom it is addressed or upon his Naib, Gomasta, or other Agent, and in the absence of any such Agent, it shall be served by sticking up a copy of the same in the office of the Collector and another copy at the Mal Kutcherry for the receipt of rents or other place where the rents are usually paid for the land in respect of which the money has been deposited. If the person to whom such notice is issued or his duly authorized Agent shall appear and apply that the money in deposit be paid to him, it shall be immediately made over to him.

VI. VII. The defendant in any suit under this Act or under Act X of 1859 instituted after the passing of this Act may, if he have duly tendered the same to the plaintiff before the institution of the suit, pay into Court such sum of money as he shall consider to be due to the plaintiff, wihout paying in any costs incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sum shall be immediately paid out of Court to the plaintiff. If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the plaintiff shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit incurred by the defendant; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit.

If no previous tender made, defendant may pay into Court what he admits to be due with costs on that sum.

VIII. The defendant in any suit under this Act or under Act X of 1859 instituted after the passing of this Act may, without having made any tender before action brought, pay into Court such sum of money as he shall consider to be due to the plaintiff, together with the costs (as of a suit originally instituted for the amount so paid into Court) incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sum shall immediately be paid out of Court to the plaintiff. If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, he shall be charged with all costs incurred by the defendant subsequently to such payment; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall (including the sum paid into Court by him in the first instance on account of costs) be charged with costs as upon a suit originally instituted for the whole amount for which the plaintiff ultimately obtains a decree.

Costs if plaintiff goes on with the suit.

Survey and measurement of lands.

IX. Every proprietor of an estate or tenure or other person in receipt of the rents of an estate or tenure has a right of making a general survey and measurement of the lands comprised in such estate or tenure or any part thereof, unless restrained from doing so by express engagement with the occupants of the lands. If any person intending to measure any land which he has a right to measure, is opposed in making such measurement by the occupant of the land; or if any under-tenant or ryot, having received notice of the intended measurement of land held or cultivated by him which is liable to such measurement, refuses to attend and point out such land, such person may make application to the Collector and the Collector shall thereupon proceed to enquire into the case in the manner provided for suits under Act X of 1859, and shall pass an order either allowing or disallowing the measurement, and, if the case so require, enjoining or excusing the attendance of any such under-tenant or ryot. If any under-tenant or ryot after the issue of an order enjoining his attendance neglects to attend and to point out the land, it shall not be competent to him to contest the correctness of the measurement made or any of the proceedings held in his absence.

Measurement of lands, where it cannot be ascertained who the ryots are.

X. If the proprietor of an estate or other person entitled to receive the rents of an estate is unable to measure the same or any part thereof by reason that he cannot ascertain who are the persons liable to pay rent in respect of the lands or any part of the lands comprised therein, such proprietor or other person may petition the Collector in respect of the lands which he cannot measure as aforesaid, and the Collector shall thereupon and on the necessary costs being deposited with him by the applicant, proceed to ascertain, determine, and register the tenures and under-tenures, the rates of rent payable in respect of such lands, and the persons by whom respectively the rents are payable. The provisions of Section LXVII of Act X of 1859 shall apply to any proceeding of the Collector instituted under this Section. If after enquiry and examination of Witnessess (when available) the Collector shall be unable to ascertain who are the persons having tenures or under-tenures in such lands or any part thereof, he may declare the same to have lapsed to the party on whose petition he has made the enquiry. The decision of the Collector on all matters enquired into and determined by him as aforesaid shall be final unless the same shall be reversed on appeal to the Civil Court. Provided that no appeal shall lie against any decision of a Collector under this Section, unless such appeal shall be presented within one month after such decision shall have been given.

Measurements to be made by the Pergunnah pole.

XI. All measurements mad under this Act shall be mad by the Standard pole of measurement of the Pergunnah in which the land is situated. The proper length of such pole shall, in every case, be determined and specified by the Collector.

Form of Plaint in suits for arrears of rent.

XII. In any suit hereafter to be brought for the recovery of an arrear of rent, the statement shall specify the name of the village and estate and of the Pergunnah or other local division in which the land is situate, the yearly rent of the land, the amount (if any) received on account of the year for which the claim is made, the amount in arrear, and the time in respect of which it is alleged to be due. If the arrear is alleged to be due from any ryot, the statement shall further specify the quantity of land, and where fields have been numbered in a Government Survey the number (if it be possible to give it) of each field.

Fees to Agents and Mooktears and expenses of witnesses to be allowed as costs of suit.

XIII. So much of Section LXXI of Act X of 1859 as directs that no fee for any Agent shall be charged as part of the costs of suit in any case under the Act, is hereby repealed. In awarding costs to either party in any suit hereafter to be brought under the said Act or under this Act, it shall be competent for the Collector to award to such party, on account of the fees of any Agent or Mooktear employed by him, such a sum, not exceeding the rate of fee chargeable under the provisions of Section VII of Act I of 1846 for Pleaders in the Civil Courts, as the Collector may direct. It shall be also competent to such Collector to include in the costs to be so awarded, such sums as may appear to him to be reasonable for the expenses of witnesses who may have been summoned to give evidence in any suit or proceeding under the said Act X of 1859 or under this Act.

Language in which the Collector is to write his judgment.

XIV. The Collector shall pronounce judgment in all cases tried under this Act or under Act X of 1859 in open Court. The judgment shall be written in the vernacular language of the Collector and shall contain the reasons for the same, and shall be dated and signed by the Collector at the time when it is pronounced. Provided that if the vernacular language of the Collector be not English and the Collector be sufficiently conversant with the English lauguage to be able to write a clear and intelligible decision in that language, and prefer to write his judgment in it, the judgment may be written in English.

XV. The provisions relating to attachment before judgment contained in Sections LXXXI to XC, both inclusive, of Act VIII of 1859 (for simplifying the procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature not established by Royal Charter) are hereby extended to all suits hereafter to be brought under this Act or Act X of 1859.

Execution to issue at time of decree on oral application: afterwards on application in writing.

XVI. Process of execution in any suit hereafter to be iustituted under this Act or under Act X of 1859 may be issued against either the person or the property of a judgment debtor, but process shall not be issued simultaneously against both person and property. It may be issued on the oral application of the judgment creditor, his Agent, or Mooktear, made at the time the judgment is pronounced, or thereafter upon the written application of the judgment creditor, his Agent, or Mooktear, addressed to the Court by which the judgment was given. Process of execution against the person or moveable property of a debtor shall be in the form (E) or the form (F) contained in the Schedule to Act X of 1859 or in a form as nearly resembling those forms as the circumstances of the case may admit.

If person is arrested under Section CXLV of Act X of 1859, case to be disposed of at once.

XVII. If any person shall after the date of the passing of this Act be arrested under Section CXLV of the said Act X of 1859, he shall be brought before the Collector with all convenient speed, and the Collector shall proceed forthwith to try the case. If the case cannot be at once heard and determined, the Collector may, if he think fit, require the person arrested to give security for his appearance whenever the same is required. In default of such security the person arrested shall be committed to the Civil Jail till the case is heard.

Deputy Collector's powers.

XVIII. All the powers vested in the Collector by any of the Sections of this Act or of Act X of 1859, may be exercised by any Deputy Collector in cases referred to him by a Collector, and in all cases without such reference by any Deputy Collector placed in charge of any Sub-Division of a District or who is specially authorized by Government to receive such cases; and all applications and reports allowed or required by the said Act X of 1859 or by this Act to be made to the Collector, may be made to any Deputy Collector having such local jurisdiction or such special authority as aforesaid.

No Appeal shall lie, unless appellant pays into Court the amount of principal money and costs, &c.

XIX. No appeal shall lie from any decision under this Act, or under Act X of 1859, unless the appellant shall first pay into the Court whose decision is appealed against, the amount of principal money or costs, or both, that may have been given against him by that Court: and such amount so paid in shall be paid to the person in whose favor such decision shall have been given, on his giving security to the satisfaction of such Court for the refund of the amount so received by him with interest at the rate of twelve per cent per annum if the said decision shall be reversed.

Special Appeal from Zillah Judge.

XX. Whenever any suit under this Act or the said Act X of 1859 shall be brought by appeal before a Zillah Judge, a special appeal shall lie against the decision of such Judge subject and according to the provisions with regard to special appeals contained in Chapter X of Act VIII of 1859.

In what Court suits are to be instituted.

XXI. Suits under this Act or under Act X of 1859 shall be preferred in the Revenue Office of the District, or when a Sub-Division of a District has been placed under the jurisdiction of a Deputy Collector, in the Revenue Office of the Sub-Division in which the cause of action shall have arisen, or when the cause of action shall have arisen within the limits of the local jurisdiction of any Deputy Collector not in charge of a Sub-Division but who has been specially authorized by Government to receive such suits, then in the Office of such last mentioned Deputy Collector. Provided always that the Collector may withdraw any suit from any Deputy Collector, and try it himself, or refer it to another Deputy Collector. If the lands comprised in any talook, farm, or other tenure, or any lands held under one lease or engagement, or at one entire rent in respect of which arrears of rent may be due, are situated in more than one District or Sub-Division, or within the local limits of the jurisdiction of more than one Deputy Collector so specially authorized as aforesaid, the District or Sub-Division or local limits in which the greater part of such lands is situate, shall be held to be the District or Sub-Division or local limits in which the cause of action has arisen, and if any question shall be raised respecting the District, or Sub-Division, or local limits within which the greater part of the lands is situate, the Board of Revenue, or, if all the lands be situate in one District, the Collector of the District shall decide the question, and such decision shall be conclusive on the point of jurisdiction.

XXII. This Act shall be read with and taken as part of Act X of 1859 except as regards suits instituted thereunder before the passing of this Act.

Government of India.

Abstract of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor-General of India assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament 24 and 25 Vic., c. 67.

THE Council met at Government House on Wednesday, the 9th April 1862.

PRESENT :

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India, presiding.
His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.
The Hon'ble Cecil Beadon.
Major-General the Hon'ble Sir R. Napier, K. C. B
The Hon'ble S. Laing.
The Hon'ble H. B. Harington.
The Hon'ble H. Forbes.
The Hon'ble C. J. Erskine.
The Hon'ble W. S. Fitzwilliam.
The Hon'ble D. Cowie.
The Hon'ble Rajah Deo Narain Singh Bahadoor.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Stamp Duties be adopted, and that the amendments of which notice had been given be made in the Bill.

His Excellency the PRESIDENT suggested that, in conformity with the Rules of the Council, the Motion should be that the Report of the Committee be taken into consideration, and that the amendments of which notice had been given be made in the Bill.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON then made his Motion in that form. He stated that the greater part of the amendments he had proposed were purely verbal, adapted to remove doubts, and, in some instances, simply to alter the structure of sentences. The amendment in Section XII was designed to check frauds in post-dating Bills in order to avoid the payment of the proper amount of Stamp Duty. It was reported from the North-Western Provinces, and elsewhere, that a custom prevailed of dating Bills on the date on which they were paid to make them appear payable at sight. The alterations in the Sections from XXXIV to XLVI respecting Stamp Vendors, were proposed in consequence of the present law having worked inconveniently, and having a tendency to prevent persons from taking the office. An important reduction would be made by the amendments in the amount of Stamp Duty payable on bonds. Instead of the Stamp of four annas now payable on all bonds under 50 Rupees, which was an amount that pressed severely on some classes and led to evasions of the law, the duty would be fixed at two annas on bonds for sums not exceeding 25 Rupees. Considerable discussion had taken place respecting the amount of Stamp Duty chargeable on plaints in suits for rent. The Bill provided that, in suits for arrears of rent under Act X of 1859, the statement of claim should be written on paper bearing a Stamp of one-fourth the value prescribed for suits instituted in the Civil Courts, and, in all other suits instituted in the Courts of Collectors and Deputy Collectors under that Act, the statement of claim should be written on paper bearing a Stamp of the value of eight annas. This Rule had been adopted to enable the Zemindars to recover the rents which they required in order to pay their Government revenue. But it had been provided that, after a decree was passed, the full amount of Stamp Duty might be charged to the party cast, and might be recovered by the Collector of the District. On the strong recommendation of the Board of Revenue in the North-Western Provinces, it had been deemed desirable to give up that proviso.

The Hon'ble Mr. Beadon enquired if the Bill provided for cases in which Vendors purchased Stamps for sale instead of receiving them on commission, and suggested that it was not desirable that such restrictions and conditions should be imposed on that class of Vendors as on others, but that, if possible, they should be encouraged.

The Hon'ble Mr. Harington referred to Section XXXIV as proposed to be amended, and to the Section proposed to be introduced after Section XLVI.

The Hon'ble Mr Erskine, with the permission of His Excellency the President, under Rule 26, proposed amendments of which notice had not been given:—1st, the insertion after the words "into force" in line 2 of Section I, of the words and figures "Regulation XII. 1830, of the Bombay Code" This Regulation would be superseded by this Bill, and the Bombay Government were favorable to its repeal. 2nd, at page 26 of Schedule A, in the "Exemption for the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay" at the end of Article 9, the omission of all the words after the words "with respect to," and the substitution of the words "suits cognizable by Collectors in the Presidency of Bombay." This change was necessary, because Regulation VI of 1828 of the Bombay Code had already been repealed. And, 3rdly, at page 30 of Schedule B, the omission of the words "as above" in the last line but one of the "Special Rule for the Presidency of Bombay." The words were redundant and created an ambiguity.

The Motions of the Hon'ble Mr. Erskine were severally put and agreed to.

The amendments proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Harington were then put and agreed to as follows:—

Section I.—The addition of the following words:—

"In respect of any such Deed, Instrument, or Writing, the provisions of the Acts and Regulations which were in force at the time such Deed, Instrument, or Writing shall have been made or executed, or such proceeding or matter shall have taken place, shall be applicable in the same manner as if this Act had not been passed"

The Hon'ble MR. BEADON introduced the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee. He stated that this Bill had been prepared by Mr. Ritchie, in order to enable the Governor-General in Council, in extending the Code of Criminal Procedure under Section 445 of that Code, to make some necessary modifications. These modifications had been explained by Mr. Ritchie as follows :—1st, in regard to the Courts by which offences might be tried and sentences passed, 2ndly, with regard to preliminary enquiries by the Police, but the Government would be restricted from enlarging the powers given by the Code; 3rdly, with regard to the number of the Judges necessary to pass a sentence of death or penal servitude; 4*thly*, with respect to the power of revision by the several Criminal Courts over the subordinate Courts; and 5*thly*, in regard to the confirmation of sentences of death by the Chief Commissioners.

There might be a difference of opinion with respect to the details of some of these points, but he thought that they would be best considered in Select Committee. The Council were only now called upon to affirm the principle that, in extending the Code of Criminal Procedure to Non-Regulation Provinces, the Governor-General in Council might make certain modifications adapted to the Courts and systems of administration of those Provinces.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Beadon then moved that it be an instruction to the Committee to report in a fortnight.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Beadon introduced the Bill for the dissolution of the Subordinate Medical Officers', Widows', and Orphans' Fund, and the distribution of the Funds belonging thereto, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee. He stated that this Bill was also prepared by Mr. Ritchie, who explained its object when he moved for leave to bring it in.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Beadon introduced the Bill to repeal in part Act II of 1835, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee. He stated that the Bill was purely a matter of form, and therefore he would propose that the Committee be instructed to report in a week.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Harington introduced the Bill to amend Act X of 1859 (to amend the law relating to the recovery of rent in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) so far as it relates to the territories under the Govenment of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Forbes introduced the Bill to provide for the Registration of Assurances, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee. He stated that, when he first undertook to introduce a Bill on this subject, he had obtained from the late Legislative Council the appointment of a Select Committee to prepare it. The Bill so prepared had been submitted to that Council and read a first and second time, and on the latter occasion had elicited comments from the learned Chief Justice. It was then referred to another Select Committee and published. Many suggestions were received, and the Bill was presented to the Council as settled by that Committee with many amendments and modifications. It had then been carefully reviewed by the late Mr. Ritchie, who, while he fully approved of its principle, had made several amendments in the arrangement of its provisions. The Bill, therefore, had been prepared by one Select Committee, and, after being revised by another, was now presented to the Council with further amendments suggested by their late Hon'ble colleague. This statement would relieve him (Mr. Forbes) from the charge of presumption in proposing a measure of so much importance.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Laing moved for leave to bring in a Bill to amend Act XIV of 1859 (to provide for the limitation of suits.) He said that the subject of this Bill had been considered on the last occasion when Mr. Ritchie attended a Meeting of Council. Without entering into a discussion on the principle of the Limitation Act, there appeared to be a fair claim for a special provision in respect of Tradesmens' Bill, which had been incurred before the passing of that Act. Those debts had subsequently, in many instances, been transferred in new adjustments of business transactions, in the expectation that the old period of limitation would continue. The Bill would make a special exception in respect of such debts up to the 1st January 1865, which would be the period of nearly six years from the passing of the Act of 1859.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Harington moved for leave to bring in a Bill to repeal Act XVI of 1852 in those parts of British India in which the Indian Penal Code is in force, and to re-enact some of the provisions thereof with amendments, and further to improve the administration of Criminal justice in Her Majesty's Supreme Courts of Judicature. He said that the learned Chief Justice at Calcutta had done him the honor of asking him to move for leave to introduce this Bill. He could have wished that the task of introducing the Bill had devolved on some person learned in the law of England and having a practical acquaintance with the manner in which Criminal trials were held in the Supreme Courts. Their late lamented colleague, the Hon'ble Mr. Ritchie, had undertaken to introduce the Bill, and, had his valuable life been spared, there could be no doubt that in his hands the Bill would have had ample justice done to it, and that the Council would have benefitted by his large legal experience and knowledge in disposing of any points of difficulty arising in the consideration of the Bill. The principal object of the Bill was to adapt the procedure of the Supreme Courts to the trial of offences punishable under the Indian Penal Code. On the 1st January last the substantive Criminal Law relating to offences and persons within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Courts had undergone the same complete change as in places beyond the limits of the jurisdiction of those Courts. There was now one uniform substantive Criminal Law for all India, viz., the Indian Penal Code; but while, contemporaneously with the introduction of the Indian Penal Code, a Code of Criminal Procedure had been given to the Mofussil Courts which had been prepared in reference to that Code and was well suited to carry out its provisions, the Code of Criminal Procedure previously in force in the Supreme Courts was still in force in those Courts Two Criminal Sessions for the trial of offences punishable under the Indian Penal Code had already been held at Calcutta, and he presumed that similar Sessions had been held at Madras and Bombay. In the course of the trials held in Calcutta the unsuitableness of the present law to offences falling under the Indian Penal Code was very apparent, and some inconvenience had been experienced. He might mention that the Judges of the Supreme Court of Judicature at Calcutta would some time ago have prepared a Code of Criminal Procedure for the conduct of trials in that Court under the Indian Penal Code had it not been for the receipt of instructions from home, which led them to defer taking any steps in the matter. It seemed to be supposed at home that the Code of Criminal Procedure which was now in force in the Mofussil Courts was equally well adapted to trials in the Supreme Courts of Judicature. This was the case as regarded many of the provisions of the Mofussil Code of Criminal Procedure, but it was not so as regarded all the provisions of that Code, and in some respects there was no doubt that, as regarded the Supreme Courts, the Mofussil Code was defective. The preparation, therefore, of a Code of Criminal Proceedure for the Supreme Courts in India, adapted to the trial of offences under the Indian Penal Code, in which such of the provisions of the Mofussil Code as were suitable could be embodied, seemed a necessity. He would not occupy the time of the Council by going through the provisions of the Bill which he had asked for leave to introduce, in detail. The Bill would be printed immediately, and copies of it would be circulated without delay. He would content himself with remarking that the Bill had been prepared by the Hon'ble and learned Chief Justice, Sir Barnes Peacock, who, although not himself the author of the Indian Penal Code, yet, from the part which he had taken in the revision of the Code, and in passing it through the late Legislative Council, occupied a position in regard to the Code scarcely second to that of the Noble and learned author of the Code, the late Lord Macaulay. In preparing the present Bill, the Hon'ble and learned Chief Justice had had the assistance of his Hon'ble and learned colleagues, and he (Mr. Harington) thought that a Bill thus prepared, and having for its object to provide a Code of Criminal Procedure for the Court presided over by the learned Judges, might be safely accepted by the Council and passed into law. He had referred to the inconvenience which had been experienced from the want of a suitable Procedure Code at the Sessions which had already been held at Calcutta for the trial of offences under the Indian Penal Code. Similar inconvenience would continue to be experienced until this Bill was passed, and he had been desired, therefore, when introducing the Bill, to ask for the suspension of the Rules of the Council with a view to the Bill being passed into law at once. With regard to Madras and Bombay, he might mention that, although the Bill was so framed as to make it of general application, it was proposed to leave the time at which the Bill should take effect in those Presidencies to be determined by the local Governments. This would give the Hon'ble and learned Judges of Her Majesty's Supreme Courts at Madras and Bombay, whom there was not time to consult, an opportunity of stating, in communication with the local Governmnts, any objections that they might have to any of the provisions of the Bill before the Bill came into operation in their Courts.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Laing moved that the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for a new Silver and a new Copper Coinage be instructed to report at the next Meeting of the Council. He stated that the Bill was one of a formal character, to legalize the Coinage with the new devices, and it was desirable that it should be passed without delay.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The following Select Committees were named:—

On the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure—the Hon'ble Messrs. Beadon, Harington, Forbes, and Erskine.

On the Bill for the dissolution of the Subordinate Medical Officers', Widows', and Orphans' Fund, and the distribution of the funds belonging thereto—the Hon'ble Messrs. Beadon, Harington, Forbes, and Erskine.

LEGISLATIVE.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th April 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a fortnight:—

A Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure in regard to the extension thereof to any parts of the Territories not subject to the General Regulations; It is enacted as follows:—

With what restrictions, &c., Code of Criminal Procedure may be extended to a Non-Regulation Province.

I. When, under the provisions of Section 445 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the said Code shall be extended to any part of the Territories not subject to the General Regulations of Bengal, Madras, or Bombay, it shall be lawful for the Governor-General in Council or for the local Government to which such Territory is subordinate and by which it shall be so extended as aforesaid, to declare that the Code shall take effect therein subject to any restriction, limitation, or proviso which the Governor-General in Council or the local Government may think fit in respect of any of the following particulars, that is to say—

1st.—In respect of Section 22 of the said Code, and the 7th column of the Schedule thereto annexed, so far as relates to the Courts and Officers competent to try and to pass sentence in respect of the offences specified in that Schedule, and the limits within which they are competent to pass sentence.

2nd.—In respect of Chapter IX of the said Code "of the preliminary enquiry by the Police."

3rd.—In respect of Sections 323 and 324 of the said Code.

4th.—In respect of Sections 398, 401, and 420 of the said Code, providing for the hearing of certain cases, and the signing or passing certain sentences or orders by at least two Judges of the Sudder Court.

5th.—In respect of Section 399, and the confirmation of a sentence of death referred to a Sudder Court, by rendering necessary the concurrence of the Chief Commissioner or the Chief Executive Authority of the Province or Lieutenant-Governorship to such confirmations before the same can be carried into execution.

6th.—In respect of Section 434, and of the power of revision by Courts other than the Sudder Court of any sentence, order, or judicial proceedings in or of the Criminal Courts within the jurisdiction or subordinate to them, and of the power of such other Courts to alter sentences or orders of a subordinate Court otherwise than upon appeal duly made under Chapter XXX of the said Code.

Proviso.

II. Provided that it shall not be lawful for the Governor-General in Council or the local Government, by any such restriction, limitation, or proviso, to increase the powers given by the said 9th Chapter of the said Code to any Officer of Police with regard to the preliminary enquiry, or to empower any Court which shall revise the proceedings of a subordinate Court, to alter or reverse a verdict or judgment of acquittal, or to enhance the punishment awarded by any order or sentence of the subordinate Court.

The restrictions, &c., to be inserted in the declaration or notification of extension.

III. When the said Code shall be extended to any Territory subject to any restriction, limitation, or proviso introduced under this Act, the restriction, limitation, or proviso shall be inserted in the declaration or notification of such extension.

Restrictions by local Government to receive the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council.

IV. When the Code shall be extended by the local Government to any Territory subordinate to it, and such extension is made subject to any restriction, limitation, or proviso, the previous sanction of the Governor-General of India in Council shall be requisite.

Construction.

V. This Act shall be taken and read as part of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill was prepared by the late Mr. Ritchie, and his remarks on the 19th February, in moving for leave to introduce it, were thus reported :—

"He stated that the object of this Bill was to enable the Government, when it extended the Code of Criminal Procedure to Non-Regulation Provinces, to accompany it by some special provisions. After the Code of Civil Procedure was passed, the Government was authorized (by Act IV of 1860), in extending it to a Non-Regulation Province, to declare any restrictions, limitations, or provisoes it might think necessary. It was not intended to give the same power in respect of the Criminal Procedure which embodied very much of substantive Criminal Law But it was necessary to authorize the Government to adapt the Code to the existing state of things in Non-Regulation Provinces, so far as the machinery for putting it in force was concerned. The alterations proposed would be of five descriptions; 1st, in regard to the Courts by which offences might be tried and sentences passed; 2ndly, with regard to preliminary enquiries by the Police, but the Government would be restricted from enlarging the powers given by the Code; 3rdly, with regard to the number of the Judges necessary to pass a sentence of death or penal servitude; 4thly, with respect to the power of revision by the several Criminal Courts over the Subordinate Courts; and 5thly, in regard to the confirmation of sentences of death by the Chief Commissioners."

The Bill is based on the recommendations of many of the principal Officers of the Non-Regulation Provinces. A paper containing an abstract of their opinions will be laid before the Select Committee.

M. WYLIE,
Depy. Secy. to the Govt. of India,
Home Department.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th April 1862, and was referred to a Select Committtee who will make a report thereon after the 12th July next:—

A Bill to provide for the dissolution of the Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund, and the distribution of the funds belonging thereto.

Preamble.

WHEREAS, by certain Regulations prepared and adopted by certain members of the Subordinate Medical Department, a Society was established at Ferozepore, in 1852, for raising a Fund called "The Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund," the interest, dividends, and proceeds of which Fund were directed to be applied in making provision at certain specified rates for the widows and children of the subscribers: and it was directed that such provision should be made solely out of the interest and dividends of the said Fund; and whereas a petition has been presented to His Excellency the Governor-General in Council by certain subscribers and members of the said Society, stating that no subscriptions have been contributed to the said Fund since the year 1857, and that in consequence thereof and of the deaths of several of the subscribers to the said Fund, no steps have or can be taken to make the provision intended by the Regulations of the said Fund, and that no pensions whatever have, since the year 1857, been paid to any of the persons entitled to the benefits of the said Fund and that therefore the expectations of the founders of the Fund have been disappointed and the objects for which such Fund was established have failed; and praying that an Act may be passed to wind-up the affairs of the said Fund; and whereas no provision is made in the Regulations of such Fund for the dissolution thereof or the distribution of the funds belonging thereto, and it is expedient to make provision for the same by law; It is enacted as follows:—

On petition, the Supreme Court may order the winding-up of the Fund.

I. On the petition to the Supreme Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, of a majority of the subscribers of the said Subordinate Medical Officers' Widows' and Orphans' Fund, or of any ten subscribers of the Society and pensionaries on the said Fund, praying for the dissolution of the said Society, and the winding-up of the affairs of the said Fund, it shall be lawful for the said Supreme Court to make order for the same on the said petition, as fully as if the petitioners proceeded by information or bill, and as if there were parties defendants; and as fully as if the Regulations of the said Fund provided for the winding-up of the said Fund; and it shall be lawful for the said Court to make order for ascertaining and declaring the rights which attach on the said Fund, and for taking the accounts of the said Fund, and for the apportionment, division, and distribution of the said Fund; and for the ascertainment of the nature and numbers of the different claims on the said Fund, and of the persons having or entitled to make the said claims; and for the payment of the proper costs of the subscribers of the said Society, and of all parties conducting or otherwise concerned in the matter of the said petition and subsequent proceedings for winding-up the said Fund.

Accountant or Actuary may be employed.

II. It shall be lawful for the said Court, in such way as they may think fit, to obtain the assistance of an Accountant or Actuary the better to enable the Court to determine any matter relating to the division and distribution of the Fund, and to act upon the certificate of such person; and in case it shall be deemed necessary to make any reference to the Master in Equity of the said Court in the matter of such petition, it shall be lawful for the said Court to order that the Master in Equity shall be at liberty in like manner to obtain the assistance of an Accountant or Actuary.

Pensions may be commuted.

III. In the cases of pensioners or persons entitled to become pensioners who shall consent to commute their pensions, it shall be lawful for the Court to order that the amounts to be paid in commutation, shall be settled, invested, or paid, in such manner as will give the several persons therein interested the full benefit thereof.

Money may be invested or other arrangement made to pay pensions.

IV. In the cases of pensioners or persons entitled to become pensioners, who shall refuse to commute their pensions, it shall be lawful for the Court to order a sufficient sum to be set apart out of the said Fund to provide for the due payment of such pensions. The said Court may also sanction and give effect to any arrangement which it may deem just and sufficient for the future payment of any commuted sum or uncommuted pensions, by any Life Insurance Company willing to undertake the payment of such pensions.

Case of minors entitled to pensions.

V. Guardians of minors, pensioners, and of minors, if any, entitled to become pensioners on the said Fund, shall have full power and authority to consent on their behalf to commute the pensions of the minors for a fixed sum; and the said Court shall have full power and authority to give effect to such consent, and to make such order as the said Court may deem just for the application of the said commuted sum for the future benefit of the infant; and if there be no guardian, the mother, during her widowhood, may act as guardian, unless the Court shall otherwise order; and, if necessary, the Court may appoint a guardian for any minor.

Every part of the Fund may be applied.

VI. In dividing and distributing the said Fund, every part thereof which shall not be awarded by the Court to members or representatives of deceased members, may, if the Court shall think fit, be applied for the benefit of pensioners or persons entitled to become pensioners, whether they shall consent to commute their interests or not.

Dividend may be made in anticipation.

VII. With a view to expedite the distribution of the surplus of the said Fund, over and above what may probably be necessary to provide for the pensions, the said Court shall have full power and authority at any time to order payment of a dividend of the said probable surplus, to the persons entitled to the same, although the exact surplus and the exact amount of charges may not then be ascertained.

Mode of bringing in claimants.

VIII. For the purpose of winding-up the said Fund, and finally closing the accounts thereof, the like proceedings shall be had for the bringing in of claimants on the said Fund, as in ordinary administration suits for bringing in creditors and other persons; and claimants being pensioners or entitled to be pensioners, who may neglect to come in, in due course, or within the time limited for that purpose, shall be deemed to have consented to commute their pensions; and a final distribution may be made of the said Fund.

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

The explanation given by the late Mr. Ritchie on moving for leave to bring in the Bill on the 5th of March 1862, was thus reported:—

"He stated the Society which it was intended to dissolve was established by the Subordinate Medical Officers of Government in 1852, at Ferozepore, the object being to provide for their Widows and Orphans and the pensions were to be payable out of the interest on the Capital. But during the mutiny all subscriptions stopped, and the affairs of the Society fell into so much confusion, that it was now necessary to afford relief by winding-up the affairs through the medium of the Supreme Court, in the manner adopted in 1856 in the case of the Bengal Mariners' and General Widows' Fund."

The Bill strictly follows the precedent of the Act XXIV of 1856 for winding-up the Fund mentioned by Mr. Ritchie, and is adapted to meet a case which appears to be of a very similar description. After the Bill is introduced into the Council, its publication will afford an opportunity to any subscriber who may not have been previously consulted, to consider its provisions.

M. Wylie,
Depy. Secy. to the Govt. of India,
Home Department.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th April 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon within a week:—

A Bill to repeal in part Act II of 1835.

Preamble.

Whereas the Provinces of Arracan and Tenasserim have been united with the Provinces of Pegu and Martaban in one general administration under a Chief Commissioner of British Burmah, and it is no longer expedient that the functionaries who are or may be appointed in the said Provinces should be under the control and superintendence of the Court of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, or of the Board of Revenue; It is enacted as follows:—

Repeal of Act II of 1835 as regards Arracan and Tenasserim.

Proviso.

I. So much of Act II of 1835 as relates to the said Provinces of Arracan and Tenasserim is hereby repealed: provided that any appeals or other matters relating to the said Provinces, and now pending before the Court of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, or before the Board of Revenue, shall be heard and determined as if this Act had not been passed.

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

The objects and reasons of this Bill are stated in the Preamble.

The Governor-General in Council having, by a Resolution dated the 31st January last, united the Provinces of Pegu, Martaban, Tenasserim, and Arracan in one general administration under the authority of a high Officer, styled the Chief Commissioner of British Burmah, and vested with the powers of a Judicial Commissioner in the said Provinces, it is no longer necessary or expedient that the Court of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, or the Board of Revenue, at Calcutta, should exercise any control or supervision over the Officers employed in the two Provinces of Tenasserim and Arracan, as they are required to do by Act II of 1835.

These functions will in future be performed in respect to Tenasserim and Arracan, as they are now in respect to Pegu and Martaban, by the Chief Commissioner.

The appeals and other cases now pending before the said Court or Board will be more conveniently disposed of by the Court or Board than by the Chief Commissioner, and authority is therefore reserved to dispose of such cases as if the Bill were not passed.

The 26th March 1862.

M. Wylie,
Depy. Secy. to the Govt. of India,
Home Department.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th April 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee who will make a report thereon after the 12th July next :—

A Bill to amend Act X of 1859 (to amend the law relating to the Recovery of Rent in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) so far as it relates to the Territories under the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Act X of 1859 (to amend the law relating to the Recovery of Rent in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) so far as it relates to the Territories under the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces; It is enacted as follows :—

Suits cognizable by Collectors in addition to those specified in Sections XXIII and XXIV of Act X of 1859.

I. In addition to the suits specified in Sections XXIII and XXIV of Act X of 1859, the following suits shall be cognizable by the Collectors of Land Revenue under the provisions of the said Act, and, except in the way of appeal as provided in the said Act, shall not be cognizable in any other Court or by any other Officer or in any other manner (that is to say) —

1st.—Suits by lumberdars for arrears of Government Revenue payable through them by the co-sharers whom they represent.

2nd.—Suits by co-sharers in a joint undivided estate for their share of the profits of the estate after payment of the Government Revenue and village expenses, or for a settlement of accounts.

Limitation of suits under preceding Section.

II. Suits instituted under the preceding Section shall be instituted within three years from the date when the arrear of Revenue or the amount of profits claimed shall have become due, or if the suit be for an arrear of Revenue or for profits due at the passing of this Act, it shall be instituted within three years after the passing of this Act, or within the period now allowed for the institution of such suits in the Civil Court, whichever may first expire. If the suit be for a settlement of accounts the suit shall be brought within one year after the expiration of the year to which the accounts relate, or in the case of any claims for such settlement now existing within one year from the passing of this Act, or within the period now allowed for the institution of such suits in the Civil Court, whichever may first expire.

Collector to make arrangement for satisfaction of award in such suits, instead of proceeding to a sale of the share of the Estate belonging to the party against whom the award is made.

III. In any suit falling under Section I of this Act in which the Collector shall award a sum of money on account either of an arrear of Government Revenue or of profits, if the Collector shall consider that the sale of the share of the estate belonging to the party against whom the award is made is objectionable, and that satisfaction of the award may be made by a temporary alienation of such share, it shall be competent to the Collector to make provision for the satisfaction of the award by transferring the share of the estate of the judgment debtor to any of the other co-sharers for such period and on such terms as he may think proper, or he may make such other arrangement for the satisfaction of the award as the circumstances of the case will admit of, instead of proceeding to a sale of such share.

Orders of Collector under preceding Section subject to revision by Commissioner, but not open to appeal to Civil Court.

IV. Orders passed by a Collector under the last preceding Section shall be subject to revision by the Commissioner of the Division, but shall not be open to appeal to the Civil Court.

Execution to issue on oral application at the time the decree is made and on written application thereafter.

V. From the date of the passing of this Act, Section LXXXVI of the said Act X of 1859 shall cease to have effect in the Territories under the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, and the following Section is enacted in lieu thereof :—

"Process of execution may be issued against either the person or the property of a judgment debtor, but process shall not be issued simultaneously against both person and property. Such process may be issued on the oral application of the judgment creditor, his agent, or mooktear, made at the time the decree is passed, or thereafter upon the written application of the judgment creditor, his agent, or mooktear. Process of execution against the person or moveable property of a debtor shall be in the form (E) or (F) contained in the Schedule to the said Act X of 1859, or to the like effect."

Addition to Section CXII of Act X of 1859.

VI. Section CXII of the said Act X of 1859 shall be read as if the words "or where the rent of a puttee is not collected by a lumberdar, through the putteedar who is entitled to collect the rent" were added at the end of such Section.

Special appeal from decisions of Zillah Judge under Act X of 1859.

VII. Doubts having been entertained as to whether the decisions passed by a Zillah Judge in regular appeal under Act X of 1859 are open to special appeal, it is hereby declared that it was the intention of the said Act that such decisions should be open to special appeal to the Sudder Court in the same manner, and subject to the same rules as the decisions of Zillah Judges passed in regular appeal are open to special appeal under the Code of Civil Procedure.

Procedure on arrest of person under Section CXLV of Act X of 1859.

VIII. If any person shall be arrested under Section CXLV of the said Act X of 1859, he shall be brought before the Collector with all convenient speed, and the Collector shall proceed forthwith to try the case. If the case cannot be at once heard and determined, the Collector may, if he think fit, require the party arrested to give security for his person whenever the same may be required. In default of such security, the party arrested may be committed to the Civil Jail until the case is tried.

Construction of Act.

IX. This Act shall be read and taken, in the Territories under the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, as part of the said Act X of 1859.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

ACT X of 1859, which this Bill proposes to amend, confers original jurisdiction on the Revenue Courts in Bengal in all cases of dispute arising between landlord and tenant and between landlord and agent; but there is another class of cases of a somewhat analogous character which. as the Act is now framed, are not embraced by it. I allude to disputes arising in joint undivided estates between the lumberdar who is the recognised representative of the other sharers in such estates and as such pays the dues of Government. and the co-sharers whom he represents, whether on account of the portion of Government Revenue payable by such co-sharers, or any of them, or relating to the adjustment and distribution amongst the several sharers of the profits of the estate after payment of the Government Revenue and the village expenses. The reasons which induced the Legislature to vest the Revenue Courts in Bengal with jurisdiction in the cases brought within their cognizance as Courts of first instance by the Act of 1859, seem to apply with nearly equal force to cases such as those just mentioned. The omission to include such cases in the Act was, I have reason to believe, simply an inadvertence The omission was discovered by the Board of Revenue for the North-Western Provinces before Act X of 1859 became law, but it was not brought to my notice until after the passing of the Act, and there were particular reasons at the time which appeared to render it unadvisable to apply to the Legislature for an immediate alteration of the law. The first Section of the Bill is intended to supply the omission.

Section 112 of Act X of 1859, which applies to distraint, provides first, that no sharer in a joint undivided estate. shall exercise the powers of distraint except through a manager authorised to collect the rents of the estate on behalf of all the sharers; and, secondly, that in putteedaree estates in the North-Western Provinces distraint shall be made only through a lumberdar. The object of these restrictions is obviously to prevent two or more processes of distraint being taken out against the same crop by different shareholders possessing, not a separate, but only a joint interest in the land on which the crop is growing or was grown, and there can be no doubt that the restrictions are very proper. But the Board of Revenue for the North-Western Provinces have pointed out that, while it would not be expedient to vest the powers of distraint in all putteedars, its limitation to lumberdars only is in some instances productive of inconvenience; that although the lumberdars are invariably responsible for the revenue which is paid through them, there are putteedaree estates in the North-Western Provinces containing puttees of which the rents are not collected by a lumberdar, but by putteedars who are responsible to the lumberdar for their quota of the revenue and of the village expenses; that it would seem equitable that the power of distraint should be conferred on those who are entitled to collect the rent, and that, to this end, it would be sufficient to add to Section 112 the following words: viz., "or where the rent of a puttee is not collected by a lumberdar through the putteedar who is entitled to collect the rent" I concur with the Board and in the sixth Section of the Bill I propose to amend the existing law in the manner recommended by them.

The seventh Section is of a declaratory character, and has for its object to remove doubts which have arisen as to whether it was intended that the decisions passed by Zillah Judges in regular appeal under Sections 160 and 161 of Act X of 1859, from decisions of the Revenue Courts, should be open to special appeal to the Sudder Court. The point has, I understand, been determined in the affirmative by the Sudder Courts at Calcutta and at Agra. and I think there can be no doubt as to the correctness of their decision. An amendment of Act X of 1859 being found necessary, it is considered advisable to give the force of law to the ruling of the Courts.

The only other Section of the Bill which I deem it necessary particularly to notice, is the one which proposes to give to the Revenue Courts, when making an award for an arrear of rent or revenue, power to grant immediate execution on the verbal application of the judgment creditor. This power has lately been given to the Civil Courts in all cases of debt, damage. and the like to the amount of 500 Rupees, and it is considered that the same power may be properly possessed by the Revenue Courts in suits falling within their cognizance under Act X of 1859

Provisions similar to the last two mentioned by me are contained in a Bill to amend Act X of 1859 now before the Legislative Council of Bengal. That Bill contains other provisions, some of them of a penal character, the extension of which to the North-Western Provinces is, I am happy to think, not called for by anything in the state of that part of the country.

It only remains for me to mention that it is proposed to restrict the Bill in its application to the Territories under the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North Western Provinces.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

IN the preparation of this Bill the provisions of the several projects of law on the subject of Registration which have been from time to time published for general information, and the various communications which have been received concerning those projects, have been consulted.

The expediency of a law to compel Registration of all transfers of land was suggested by the Court of Directors in a Despatch* addressed to the Governor-General in Council, shortly after the passing of the Charter Act 3 and 4 William IV c. 85 in the following terms—" We would also suggest the establishment of Offices for the Registration of all transfers of land or any interest in land, such Registration to be compulsory under such penalties as may appear to you requisite."

* No. 44 of 1834, dated 10th December.

Since that time the subject of a Registration law frequently received great consideration in the Legislative Council, either in the form of proposed amendments of the various Regulations already in operation in the several Presidencies, or in the form of a new or consolidated law.

During the years 1841 42, a Draft Act "for consolidating, amending, and extending the law relating to the Registration of Assurances" was prepared by Mr. Amos. This Draft Act, after having been published and re-published and finally revised with great care, was laid aside, with the exception of one of its provisions, which was passed into law as Act I of 1843.

In 1849, the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces forwarded the draft of a law prepared by the Judges of the Sudder Court, proposing various amendments in the existing Registration Laws of the Bengal Presidency. No steps were taken upon this draft, because it was at that time in contemplation to revise and consolidate the several Regulations and Acts then in force.

In 1852, the subject was again brought forward, and an elaborate and comprehensive scheme was proposed by Sir Charles Jackson, then Officiating as Fourth Ordinary Member of Council, in the shape of a Draft Act "for the Registration of Assurances in the Territories under the Government of the East India Company," which was published for general information.

In 1853, an investigation into the system and practice of Registration of Deeds in the North-Western Provinces, undertaken by Mr. C. B. Thornhill pursuant to instructions from the Lieutenant-Governor resulted in the preparation by that gentleman of a new Registry Law adapted to the requirements of the North-Western Provinces.

In 1855, a petition* was presented to the Legislative Council by Mr. Archibald Grant, the Solicitor to the East India Company, praying that a Draft Act for the Registration of Assurances prepared by him and which accompanied his petition might be passed.

* Dated 27th June.

Lastly, in 1858, the Judges of the Sudder Court at Madras prepared the draft of a law on this subject.

The several projects of law which have been enumerated differ considerably from each other in their scope and object Some of them are confined to a registry of transfers of immoveable property, others include also transfers of moveable property, and further extend to Decrees and Orders of Courts, to Wills and authorities to adopt. Registration is in express terms made compulsory by some of these projects; others provide that documents not registered shall not be admissible in evidence in Courts of Justice; while by others certain advantages are conferred on registered documents, but Registration is not made essential to their validity. In the conflict of the many opinions which have been elicited by these several proposals, it is difficult to determine with certainty what are the principles on which a Registration Law for British India should be based, and by what detailed provisions the beneficial operation of such a law may be secured. The present Bill contains various provisions taken from these several projects of law, and the following are the leading principles on which the measure is framed.

It is clear that even under the present laws Registry Offices have not been established in sufficient numbers to prevent inconvenience and loss of time to persons who desire to register documents. To what extent such Offices ought to be multiplied under the new law must depend in great measure on the extent to which Registration is to be made compulsory. If Registration be made necessary to the admission in evidence of any Instrument affecting the transfer of immoveable property above the value of 100 Rupees and if the limit of time within which an action can be brought on any unregistered Instrument affecting any property moveable or immoveable be reduced, it is essential that persons making contracts concerning such property should have convenient means to register them. Without the establishment of numerous Registry Offices such a law as is now proposed would not only fail of effect, but would occasion great mischief and hardship.

The Bill authorizes the local Governments to appoint District and Deputy Registrars; for the latter Office, not only Moonsiffs, Tuhseeldars, and other public Officers, but also persons not in the public service may be selected. A considerable multiplication of Registry Offices will call for the creation of some controlling authority (whether the Revenue Board, as the Bill suggests, or a single Officer) having power to make rules to secure uniformity in the proceedings of so numerous a body of Officers.

In the written communications to which reference has been made, there is a great preponderance of opinion in favor of a compulsory Registration of all documents relating to landed property; but on so important a matter it may be well to proceed tentatively, and the present Bill proposes only so far to make compulsory the Registration of Instruments affecting real property as to declare that no such unregistered Instrument shall be admitted in evidence in any Civil Court of Justice if the right or title transferred shall be of the amount of 100 Rupees. The Registration of leases for short terms, and of Instruments affecting real property of less value than 100 Rupees, will be optional, as will also that of Instruments affecting moveable property, but suits brought on the former class of Instruments if unregistered will under this Bill, be cognizable only if instituted within two years after the cause of action shall have arisen, and on the latter if brought within six months.

The reasons for a compulsory Registration of transactions relating to moveable property are to some extent the same as those advanced in favor of the Registration of transfers of land. It is of great importance, not only to the parties to contracts themselves, but to the public generally and to the due administration of justice, that there should exist some faithful written record of all such dealings as may ultimately become matters of litigation in Civil suits. At present, from the prevalence of forgery and perjury, and also it is to be feared from the degree of success which has been found to attend the use of fabricated evidence, no transaction, however honest in itself, can be deemed absolutely secure and free from the risk of being misrepresented or falsified when brought into a Court of Justice. If the Court is not imposed on by false evidence, the time of the Judges is needlessly occupied.

Adverting to the proposal of a compulsory Registration of all transactions and having in view especially the prevalence of forged bonds, Mr. Thornhill in his report observes :—" even if the proposed measure should entail some vexation on the poorer class of borrowers, it will be infinitely less than the ruin to which they are exposed by the present state of the law, and from which they would hereafter be protected.

" Now, it is only necessary for a Bunya to produce a bond, and bring forward two witnesses to its execution. The evidence is difficult to be refuted, and the defendant is cast. This could not occur if the public Registration of the bond soon after its execution, and by the party most interested, was necessary to its validity.

" But it is not necessary that the Registration of these small bonds should be vexatious, and all objection to the measure would probably be removed by the establishment of a Registry within an easy day's journey of every village."

But it has, on the whole, been thought better to moderate the stringency of the law of Registration on its first introduction, and to leave its extension to some future time when the people shall have become used to its provisions and sensible of its great advantages.

It is important that the act of Registration should follow closely upon the transaction itself which is to be recorded. The authenticity of the document is thus secured ; and all temptation to subsequent forgery and perjury is removed.

In the report just quoted, Mr. Thornhill observes, " that in many of the large mercantile Towns, transactions involving large sums of money are completed without the execution of any written Instrument whatever, the parties trust implicitly each to the good faith of the other, and consequently deem any additional security superfluous ; should any circumstances induce a subsequent want of confidence on the part of the lender, the only mode in which recovery of the debt can be had in a Civil Court is the fabrication of forged Instruments antedated to correspond with the period of the transaction and supported by the testimony of perjured witnesses.

" To such an extent is this system carried on that the purchase of stamp paper from the Government vendors, to be retailed for such occasions, has become a regular trade."

To check such frauds, a time should be limited within which the document must be registered ; the Bill allows three months for this purpose in the case of Instruments affecting real property of the value of 100 Rupees, and six months in all other cases.

Ordinarily the District within which the property or the larger portion of it is situate, should be the place of Registry for immoveable property ; but it is also necessary to provide for the case of a transfer made by persons at a distance from the transferred property, as when a purchase is made in one of the Presidency Towns of land situate in a remote province. But in every case, it should be an inflexible rule that every Deed or Instrument affecting lands, wherever such a document may be presented for Registration, should appear in the appropriate register book and indices of the District or place where the land is situate. The multiplication of Registry Offices will prove rather an obstruction than an aid to the investigation of the title of land, if sufficient provision be not made for bringing together in one Office in the District all registered documents concerning the same land.

Documents concerning moveable property may, by the Bill, be registered at any Office most convenient to the contracting parties : if they are not agreed, Registration may be effected at the place where the contract is entered into or at the place where the purchaser, grantee, &c., resides.

The personal attendance of the parties before the Registrar at the time when the Instrument is presented for Registration will tend to prevent frauds. It may be supposed, that Deputy Registrars will generally, from their own private knowledge, been abled to identify the parties thus appearing ; but if necessary such identity must be otherwise established. Provision is, however, made in the Bill for parties being represented by their duly authorized agents.

A document otherwise valid will, when registered, be preferred to all subsequently registered documents affecting the same land.

Provision is made in the Bill for the optional Registration of Wills, Codicils, and authorities to adopt a son, and as regards Wills, it is proposed to adopt the practice followed in England, and to retain the original of all registered Wills, so that they may at any future time be produced in Court if any dispute should arise as to their authenticity.

The fees for Registration, which are entered in a Schedule to the Bill, have been purposely fixed low; it is very important that Registration should be encouraged, and that the amount of fee should, in no case, tempt parties to run the risk of non-registration. It is desirable to afford facilities for a general Registration, and to provide such advantages to registered Instruments at the cost of so low a fee and of so little trouble and inconvenience that Registration may not be unpopular with any class of the community, and be generally resorted to even when left optional by the Law.

A Bill to Amend Act X of 1859 (to amend the Law relating to the recovery of Rent in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal.)

Preamble.

The Court may in certain cases award to the plaintiff additional damages not exceeding 25 per cent.

II. In any suit hereafter to be brought for rent under Act X of 1859, if it shall appear to the Court that the defendant has, without reasonable or probable cause, neglected or refused to pay the amount due by him, and that he has not, before the institution of the suit, tendered such amount to the plaintiff or his duly authorized Agent, or, in case of refusal of the plaintiff or such Agent to receive the amount tendered, has not deposited such amount with the Collector before the institution of the suit in manner hereinafter mentioned, it shall be lawful for the Court to award to the plaintiff, in addition to the amount decreed for rent and costs, such damages, not exceeding twenty-five per cent on the amount of rent decreed, as the Court may think fit. These damages if awarded, as well as the amount of rent and costs decreed in the suit, shall carry interest at the rate of twelve per cent per annum from the date of decree until payment thereof, and shall be recoverable from the defendant in like manner as sums decreed to be paid by defendants under Act X of 1859 are recoverable.

Upon receiving the money so deposited, the Collector shall issue a notice, to the person to whose credit it has been deposited, in the form set forth in the Schedule (B) hereto annexed, and such notice shall be served by the Collector, without the payment of any fee, either upon the person to whom it is addressed or upon his Naib, Gomasta, or other Agent, and in the absence of any such Agent, it shall be served by sticking up a copy of the same in the Office of the Collector, and another copy at the Mal Kutcherry for the receipt of rents or other place where the rents are usually paid for the land in respect of which the money has been deposited. If the person to whom such notice is issued, or his duly authorized Agent, shall appear and apply that the money in deposit be paid to him, it shall be immediately made over to him.

Suit for further balance to be instituted within six months of service of notice of deposit.

VI. Whenever a deposit shall have been made under the provisions of this Act, no suit shall be brought against the person making the deposit or his representatives on account of any rent which accrued due prior to the date of the deposit, unless such suit is instituted within six months from the date of the service of the notice in the fifth Section of this Act mentioned.

After action brought defendant may pay into Court, without costs, money tendered before action brought.

VII. The defendant in any suit under this Act or under Act X of 1859 instituted after the passing of this Act may, if he have duly tendered the same to the plaintiff before the institution of the suit, pay into Court such sum of money as he shall consider to be due to the plaintiff without paying in any costs incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sum shall be immediately paid out of Court to the plaintiff. If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the plaintiff shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit incurred by the defendant; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit.

Costs if plaintiff goes on and recovers no more.

If no previous tender made, defendant may pay into Court what he admits to be due with costs on that sum.

VIII. The defendant in any suit under this Act or under Act X of 1859 instituted after the passing of this Act may, without having made any tender before action brought, pay into Court such sum of money as he shall consider to be due to the plaintiff, together with the costs (as of a suit originally instituted for the amount so paid into Court) incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sum shall immediately be paid out of Court to the plaintiff. If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, he shall be charged with all costs incurred by the defendant subsequently to such payment; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall (including the sum paid into Court by him in the first instance on account of costs) be charged with costs as upon a suit originally instituted for the whole amount for which the plaintiff ultimately obtains a decree.

Costs if plaintiff goes on with the suit.

Survey and measurement of lands.

IX. Every proprietor of an estate or tenure or other person in receipt of the rents of an estate or tenure has a right of making a general survey and measurement of the lands comprised in such estate or tenure or any part thereof, unless restrained from doing so by express engagement with the occupants of the lands. If any person intending to measure any land which he has a right to measure is opposed in making such measurement by the occupant of the land; or if any under-tenant or ryot, having received notice of the intended measurement of land held or cultivated by him which is liable to such measurement, refuses to attend and point out such land, such person may make application to the Collector, and the Collector shall thereupon proceed to enquire into the case in the manner provided for suits under Act X of 1859, and shall pass an order either allowing or disallowing the measurement, and, if the case so require, enjoining or excusing the attendance of any such under-tenant or ryot. If any under-tenant or ryot, after the issue of an order enjoining his attendance, neglects to attend and to point out the land, it shall not be competent to him to contest the correctness of the measurement made or any of the proceedings held in his absence.

Measurement of lands where it cannot be ascertained who the ryots are.

X. If the proprietor of an estate or other person entitled to receive the rents of an estate is unable to measure the same or any part thereof by reason that he cannot ascertain who are the persons liable to pay rent in respect of the lands or any part of the lands comprised therein, such proprietor or other person may petition the Collector in respect of the lands which he cannot measure as aforesaid, and the Collector thereupon and on the necessary costs being deposited with him by the applicant, shall proceed to measure the land and to ascertain and record the names of the persons in occupation of the same, or, on the special application of the proprietor or other person aforesaid, but not otherwise, shall proceed to ascertain, determine, and record the tenures and under-tenures, the rates of rent payable in respect of such lands, and the persons by whom, respectively, the rents are payable. The provisions of Section LXVII of Act X of 1859 shall apply to any proceeding of the Collector instituted under this Section. If after due enquiry the Collector shall be unable to ascertain who are the persons having tenures or under-tenures in such lands or any part thereof, he may declare the same to have lapsed to the party on whose petition he has made the enquiry. If any person within fifteen days after the Collector shall have so declared a tenure to have lapsed shall appear and shew good and sufficient cause for his previous non-appearance, and shall satisfy the Collector that there has been a failure of justice, the Collector may, upon such terms or conditions as he may think proper, alter or rescind his declaration according to the justice of the case. Save as aforesaid the decision of the Collector on all matters enquired into and determined by him under this or the last preceding Section shall be final, unless the same shall be reversed on appeal therefrom to the Civil Court. Provided that no appeal shall lie against any decision of a Collector under this or the last preceding Section, unless such appeal shall be presented within one month after such decision shall have been given.

Measurements to be made by the Pergunnah Pole.

XI. All measurements made under this Act shall be made by the Standard Pole of measurement of the Pergunnah in which the land is situated.

Form of plaint in suits for arrears of rent.

XII. In any suit hereafter to be brought for the recovery of an arrear of rent the statement shall specify the name of the village and estate and of the Pergunnah or other local division in which the land is situate, the yearly rent of the land, the amount (if any) received on account of the year for which the claim is made, the amount in arrear, and the time in respect of which it is alleged to be due. If the arrear is alleged to be due from any ryot, the statement shall further specify the quantity of land, and, where fields have been numbered in a Government Survey, the number (if it be possible to give it) of each field.

Order to set aside judgment shall be final; but rejection of application to set it aside shall be appealable.

XIII. In all cases in which the Collector shall pass an order under Section LVIII of Act X of 1859 for setting aside a judgment, the order shall be final; but in all appealable cases in which the Collector shall reject the application, an appeal shall lie from the order of rejection to the tribunal to which the final decision in the suit would be appealable, provided that the appeal be preferred within the time allowed for an appeal from such final decision and be written upon Stamp Paper of the value prescribed for petitions to the Collector where a Stamp is required for petitions.

Fees to Agents and Mooktears, and expenses of witnesses to be allowed as costs of suit.

XIV. So much of Section LXXI of Act X of 1859 as directs that no fee for any Agent shall be charged as part of the costs of suit in any case under the Act is hereby repealed. In awarding costs to either party in any suit hereafter to be brought under the said Act or under this Act, it shall be competent for the Collector to award to such party, on account of the fees of any Agent or Mooktear employed by him, such a sum, not exceeding the rate of fee chargeable under the provisions of Section VII of Act I of 1846 for Pleaders in the Civil Courts, as the Collector may direct. It shall be also competent to such Collector to include in the costs to be so awarded such sums as may appear to him to be reasonable for the expenses of witnesses who may have been summoned to give evidence in any suit or proceeding under the said Act X of 1859 or under this Act.

Language in which the Collector is to write his judgment.

XV. The Collector shall pronounce judgment in all cases tried under this Act or under Act X of 1859 in open Court. The judgment shall be written in the vernacular language of the Collector and shall contain the reasons for the same, and shall be dated and signed by the Collector at the time when it is pronounced. Provided that if the vernacular language of the Collector be not English, and the Collector be sufficiently conversant with the English language to be able to write a clear and intelligible decision in that language, and prefer to write his judgment in it, the judgment may be written in English.

XVI. The provisions relating to attachment before judgment contained in Sections LXXXI to XC, both inclusive, of Act VIII of 1859 (for simplifying the procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature not established by Royal Charter), are hereby extended to all suits hereafter to be brought under this Act or Act X of 1859.

Execution to issue at time of decree on oral application: afterwards on application in writing.

XVII. Process of execution in any suit hereafter to be instituted under this Act or under Act X of 1859 may be issued against either the person or the property of a judgment debtor, but process shall not be issued simultaneously against both person and property. It may be issued on the oral application of the judgment creditor, his Agent, or Mooktear, made at the time the judgment is pronounced, or thereafter upon the written application of the judgment creditor, his Agent, or Mooktear, addressed to the Court by which the judgment was given. Process of execution against the person or moveable property of a debtor shall be in the form (E) or the form (F) contained in the Schedule to Act X of 1859 or in a form as nearly resembling those forms as the circumstances of the case may admit.

If person is arrested under Section CXLV of Act X of 1859, case to be disposed of at once.

XVIII. If any person shall, after the date of the passing of this Act, be arrested under Section CXLV of the said Act X of 1859, he shall be brought before the Collector with all convenient speed, and the Collector shall proceed forthwith to try the case. If the case cannot be at once heard and determined, the Collector may, if he think fit, require the person arrested to give security for his appearance whenever the same is required. In default of such security the person arrested shall be committed to the Civil Jail till the case is heard.

Deputy Collector's powers.

XIX. All the powers vested in the Collector by any of the Sections of this Act or of Act X of 1859 may be exercised by any Deputy Collector in cases referred to him by a Collector, and in all cases without such reference by any Deputy Collector placed in charge of any Sub-Division of a District or who is specially authorized by Government to receive such cases; and all applications and reports allowed or required by the said Act X of 1859 or by this Act to be made to the Collector, may be made to any Deputy Collector having such local jurisdiction or such special authority as aforesaid.

Special Appeal from Zillah Judge.

XX. Whenever any suit under this Act or the said Act X of 1859 shall be brought by appeal before a Zillah Judge, a special appeal shall lie against the decision of such Judge subject and according to the provisions with regard to special appeals contained in Chapter X of Act VIII of 1859.

In what Court suits are to be instituted.

XXI. Suits under this Act or under Act X of 1859 shall be preferred in the Revenue Office of the District, or when a Sub-Division of a District has been placed under the jurisdiction of a Deputy Collector, in the Revenue Office of the Sub-Division in which the cause of action shall have arisen, or when the cause of action shall have arisen within the limits of the local jurisdiction of any Deputy Collector not in charge of a Sub-Division, but who has been specially authorized by Government to receive such suits then in the Office of such last mentioned Deputy Collector. Provided always that the Collector may withdraw any suit from any Deputy Collector and try it himself or refer it to another Deputy Collector. If the lands comprised in any talook, farm, or other tenure, or any lands held under one lease or engagement, or at one entire rent in respect of which arrears of rent may be due, are situated in more than one District or Sub-Division, or within the local limits of the jurisdiction of more than one Deputy Collector so specially authorized as aforesaid, the District or Sub-Division or local limits in which the greater part of such lands is situate shall be held to be the District or Sub-Division or local limits in which the cause of action has arisen, and if any question shall be raised respecting the District or Sub-Division, or local limits within which the greater part of the lands is situate, the Board of Revenue, or, if all the lands be situate in one District, the Collector of the District, shall decide the question, and such decision shall be conclusive on the point of jurisdiction.

This Act to be read with Act X of 1859.

XXII. This Act shall be read with and taken as part of Act X of 1859 except as regards suits instituted thereunder before the passing of this Act.

Extract from the Records of Government.

Thibet in 1774.

* To the HON'BLE WARREN HASTINGS, Governor-General,—(dated Desherepgay, near Chamnamning, the 5th December 1774.)

HON'BLE SIR,—I HAD the honor to advise you of my arrival on the frontier of Thibet in a short address of the 26th October. I left Paridrong next day, accompanied by some Teshoo Lama's servants, and arrived here on the 12th ultimo.

The Lama received your letter and presents very graciously, and I have every reason to be satisfied with his reception.

Having represented to him your desire of opening a free intercourse of Trade, between the inhabitants of Bengal and this country, he has given me assurance of his ready endeavors to bring it about; but as he intends in a few days to return to Teshoo Loombo, his capital, where he will have an opportunity of consulting with the Merchants, he delays coming to any determination at present. In the meantime he has written to Lahassa on the subject, from which he expects the arrival of some Officers to congratulate him on his return.

Teshoo Lama's character and abilities, his having discovered and placed the present Delay Lama in the Chair at Potalo; his being favored by the Emperor of China, and his having obtained from him the appointment of Gesub Rembockay, the present Chief, give him great influence. The seat of Government, however, is at Lahassa. The Emperor of China is paramount Sovereign, and is represented by two Chinese Officers, who are changed every three years. These men are to report to their Court the state of the country; but I am told seldom interfere in the management of it, which, during Delay Lama's minority, is entrusted to Gesub and four Ministers. Teshoo Lama has a number of Villages and Monasteries belonging to him, which are scattered over Thibet and intermixed with those of the Delay Lama. To attempt to explain the nature of a Government where so many different interests are blended together, would oblige me to enter into details which my imperfect knowledge of the country might hardly justify, and which at present I would rather wish to avoid. I take the liberty of inclosing a Memorandum on the Trade of Thibet, and have the honor to be, &c., &c.,

(Sd) GEORGE BOGLE.

Memorandum, by MR. BOGLE, on the Trade of Thibet.

The Foreign Trade of Thibet is very considerable. Being mountainous, naturally barren, and but thinly peopled, it requires large supplies from other countries, and its valuable productions furnish it with the means of procuring them. It yields gold, musk, cow-tails, wool, and salt; coarse woollen cloth and narrow surge are almost its only manufactures. It produces no iron, nor fruit, nor spices; the nature of the soil and of the climate prevents the culture of silk, rice, and tobacco, of all which articles there is a great consumption, but the wants of the country will best appear from an account of its Trade. In this sketch, however, I propose only to give the outlines, which I will beg leave afterwards to fill up and correct.

The genius of this Government, like that of most of the ancient Kingdoms in Hindostan, is favorable to commerce; no duties are levied on goods, and Trade is protected and free from exactions. Many foreign Merchants, encouraged by these indulgences, or allured by the prospect of gain, have settled in Thibet. The Natives of Cashmere, who, like the Jews in Europe, or the Armenians in the Turkish Empire, scatter themselves over the Eastern Kingdoms of Asia and carry on an extensive traffic between the distant parts of it, have formed establishments at Lahassa and all the principal Towns in this country.

Their Agents, stationed on the Coast of Coromandel, in Bengal, Benares, Nepaul, and Cashmere, furnish them with the commodities of these different countries which they dispose of in Thibet, or forward to their associates at Seling, a Town on the borders of China. The Gossains, the trading pilgrims of India, resort hither in great numbers. Their humble deportment and holy character, heightened by the merit of distant pilgrimages, their accounts of unknown countries and remote regions, and above all their professions of high veneration for the Lamas, procure them not only ready admittance, but great favors. Though clad in the garb of poverty, there are many of them possessed of considerable wealth; their trade is confined chiefly to articles of great value and small bulk. It is carried on without noise or ostentation, and often by paths unfrequented by other Merchants. The Calmacks, who, with their wives and families annually repair in numerous tribes to pay their devotions at the Lama's shrines, bring their camels laden with fur and other Siberian goods The Booteeas and the other inhabitants of the mountains which form the Southern Frontier of Thibet, are enabled by their situation to supply it as well with the commodities of Bengal as the productions of their States. The people of Assam furnish it with the coarse manufactures of their Kingdom. The Chinese, to whose Empire this country is subject, have established themselves in great numbers at the Capital, and, by introducing the curious manufacturers and merchandise of China, are engaged in an extended and lucrative commerce, and thus Lahassa, being at the same time the seat of Government and the place of the Delay Lama's residence, is the resort of strangers and the centre of communication between distant parts of the world.

The most considerable branch of commerce is with China. It is carried on by the Natives of that Kingdom and by the Cashmerians and the Lama's Agents, who proceed to Seling and sometimes even to Pekin. The imports are coarse tea, of which the consumption is immense, flowered and brocaded satins of various kinds, Pelong handkerchiefs, silk, thread, fur, porcelain cups, glass, snuff boxes, knives, and other cutlery indents of silver and some tobacco. The returns are made in gold, pearls, coral, chalk, broad cloth, and a trifling quantity of Bengal cloths. The productions of Siberia are imported chiefly by the Calmacks or by the way of Seling. They consist of furs, red and black Bulgar hides, cow-tails, some dromedaries, bastard pearls, and silver ; and are bartered for broad cloth, coral, amber, beads, spices, and gold. The Cashmerians naturally ingross the Trade with their country. It is not considerable. The imports are chiefly sugar, dried raisins, and other fruits ; the exports are goats, wool, and gold. The imports from Assam are spices and timber, muggadooties, and other coarse manufactures of silk and linen. The Native productions of the Deb Rajah's country, brought into Thibet, are rice, wrought iron, coarse woollen cloth, and some munjech ; which are exchanged for tea and other Chinese commodities, rock salt, wool, sheep skins, and narrow frizes for their home consumption. The productions, imported from Nepaul, are chiefly iron and rice, but as these two countries have been the principal channels of communication between Bengal and Thibet, it is necessary to give a more particular account of them.

While Nepaul was divided among the different States of Catmaund, Pattan, Badgaund, and Goorka, and remained under the government of Rajahs independent of each other's authority, every encouragement was given to trade; a very moderate duty was levied on goods; the country, populous and well cultivated, easily furnished the means of transporting them; and the Merchants, free from spoil or exactions, settled in Nepaul and contributed to enrich it, at the same time that they improved their own fortunes. Some disputes arose among these petty Chiefs, they went to War, and Pertinarrain, Rajah of Goorka, was called in to take part in the quarrel. Having subdued the enemies, he turned his arms against his allies, and partly by treachery, partly by the exertion of superior abilities, has, after a War of twenty-five years, made himself master of the whole of the country and united it under one Government.

But although the wealth of Nepaul furnished Goorka with the means by which he rose, he neglected to cherish the source from whence it flowed; mistrustful of subjects disaffected to his Government, he entertained a number of Troops on regular pay. He disciplined them, he furnished them with firearms, he formed an Artillery, and left nothing undone to render himself formidable. The stated revenue of countries where a standing army had hitherto been unknown was unequal to these extraordinary expenses, and Goorka, among other expedients, had resource to imposing high duties on trade in order to defray them. The Merchants, subject to heavy and arbitrary fines upon the most frivolous pretences or obliged to purchase the protection of a tyrannical Government by presents, scarce less oppressive, quitted a country where they could no longer enjoy that freedom and security which is the life of commerce. The Gossains, who had formerly very extensive Establishments in Nepaul, having incurred Goorka's resentment by the assistance which they afforded his adversaries, were driven out of the Kingdom, and many of the most wealthy inhabitants being stripped of their possessions or exposed to the exactions of the conqueror likewise deserted it. Two Cashmerian houses only remain, and the Rajah afraid of their also abandoning him obliges them to give security for the return of such agents as they have occasion to send without the boundaries of his dominions.

The Trade between Bengal and Thibet, through the Deb Rajah's country, used formerly to be engrossed wholly by the Booteeas. Two of the Cashmerian houses, however, who fled from Nepaul being unwilling to forego the gainful commerce in which they had hitherto been concerned, settled at Lahassa, and having obtained permission from the Deb Rajah to transport their goods through his territories, established Agents in Bengal. As they are prohibited from trading in broad cloth and some other considerable articles, and as their traffic is carried on to no great extent and all other Merchants are excluded, it by no means compensates the loss which Bengal has sustained by the interruption of its commerce through Nepaul.

The commodities of Bengal used also to be conveyed into Thibet through Morung and a Province adjoining to it, which is subject to Lahassa and governed by a chief styled Dinro Jung. The Facquiers, when expelled Nepaul, generally frequented this road, but being esteemed unhealthy, it was not adopted by any creditable Merchants. Goorka, however, having extended his conquests over the first of these countries, and having lately invaded the other, all intercourse is at present interrrupted.

Besides these different communications there is a road leading from Benares and Mirzapore through the Mustang country and the hills to the northward of Bulwang Sing's territories, which are subject to Rajahs who still preserve their independence. The more valuable sorts of Bengal goods are sometimes imported into Thibet by this channel. But although the Merchants travel in perfect security, and receive every assistance from these petty Chiefs, the length of the way, the difficulty of the road through a mountainous and in several places uninhabited country, and the many intermediate profits upon the goods render it far from eligible. Of late years it has become more frequented on account of its being almost the only means of communication.

The principal articles of merchandize between Bengal and Thibet are broad cloth, otter skins, neel (indigo), pearls, coral, amber, and other beads, chalk, spices, tobacco, sugar, Malda striped satins, and a few white cloths, chiefly coarse. The returns are made in gold dust, musk, and cow-tails.

A knowledge of the current specie and of the proportional value of money in a country is of capital importance towards understanding the nature of its Trade; but the intricacy of the subject and the variety of circumstances requisite in forming a just notion of it oblige me at present to mention it only briefly. There are no Mints in Thibet, payments are made in talents of China and Tartary and in small bulses of gold dust, or in the coin of the former Rajahs of Catmaund and Pattan, which is the established specie of the Kingdom. The circulation of their Rupees, which were of a base standard, proved very beneficial to these Chiefs, and Goorka, as soon as he had firmly established his authority in Nepaul, endeavored to introduce his coin into Thibet. For this purpose he sent a deputation to Lahassa with a large sum in Rupees struck in his name, and desired the sanction of Government to circulate them through the country. The Merchants aware of Goorka's ill-faith refused to accept them, and the Government returned him this artful answer :—"We are willing to receive your coin, provided that you take back all the money of Nepaul which is now in circulation." This condition was neither for Goorka's interest nor in his power to comply with. Nothing since has been done in this important affair. The old specie continues to pass, but the channel by which it was introduced having been long stopped up, it has risen greatly above its former value, as well in proportion to the talents of silver as to the gold dust.

XV. Clause 1.—If any Deed, Instrument, or Writing requiring to be stamped under Section II of this Act, shall have been executed on paper not bearing the proper Stamp, the Collector of Stamp Revenue of the District, if satisfied that the omission or neglect to execute such Deed, Instrument, or Writing on paper bearing the proper Stamp did not arise from any intention to evade payment of the Stamp Duty prescribed by this Act for such Deed, Instrument, or Writing, or otherwise to defraud the Government, may, on payment of the proper Stamp Duty, or if the Deed, Instrument, or Writing shall be insufficiently stamped, on payment of such sum as with the amount of the Stamp upon such Deed, Instrument, or Writing, shall suffice to complete the prescribed amount and, as a penalty, double the amount required to make up the same, direct that such Deed, Instrument, or Writing be duly stamped; provided that such Deed, Instrument, or Writing be presented to such Collector for the purpose of having the proper Stamp affixed to or impressed upon it within six weeks from the date of its execution. If the Collector be satisfied that the omission or neglect to execute such Deed, Instrument, or Writing on paper bearing the proper Stamp arose solely from urgent necessity or unavoidable accident, he may remit the penalty prescribed by this Section.

Deeds inadvertently executed on paper not bearing proper Stamp may be duly stamped on payment of proper Stamp Duty and penalty, if brought to the Collector within six weeks.

Remission of penalty.

Clause 2.—If any Deed, Instrument, or Writing requiring to be stamped under Section II of this Act, which shall have been executed on unstamped or insufficiently stamped paper, shall be brought to such Collector for the purpose of being properly stamped after six weeks from the date of its execution, but within four months from that date, such Collector, if satisfied that the omission or neglect to execute such Deed, Instrument, or Writing on paper bearing the proper Stamp, did not arise from any intention to evade the payment of the Stamp Duty prescribed by this Act for such Deed, Instrument, or Writing, or otherwise to defraud the Government, may, on payment of a sum sufficient to make up the proper amount of Stamp Duty, and as a penalty treble the amount required to make up the same, direct that the requisite Stamp be impressed on such Deed, Instrument, or Writing; or if such Deed, Instrument, or Writing shall not be brought to such Collector until after the expiration of four months from the date of its execution, the requisite Stamp may be ordered to be impressed on payment of the sum required to make up the proper amount of Stamp Duty, and as a penalty twenty times the amount required to make up the same.

Penalty if executed on unstamped or insufficiently stamped paper and brought to be stamped after six weeks of execution but within four months of that date.

Penalty if brought after four months.

Clause 3.—It shall be the duty of the Collector of the Stamp Revenue of the District, to determine whether the requisite Stamp shall be impressed on any Deed, Instrument, or Writing falling under the last two preceding Clauses, which shall have been executed on unstamped or insufficiently stamped paper.

Collector to determine whether, on payment of penalty, a Deed, &c. executed on unstamped or insufficiently stamped paper shall be stamped.

Clause 4.—Whenever a doubt shall arise respecting the proper amount of the Stamp to be impressed under this Section on any Deed, Instrument, or Writing, the Collector of Stamp Revenue of the District shall determine the amount of Stamp to be impressed upon such Deed, Instrument, or Writing.

Collector to decide under the preceding Section the proper amount of Stamp Duty to be impressed upon any Deed, &c.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th April 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a week :—

A Bill to amend Act XIV of 1859 (to provide for the limitation of suits).

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to postpone the operation of so much of Act XIV of 1859 as limits the period for the commencement of suits for the amount of bills for articles sold by retail; It is enacted as follows :—

Suits now pending or instituted before 1st January 1865, for articles sold by retail, in cases wherein cause of action arose before the passing of Act XIV of 1859, to be tried and determined as if that Act had not been passed.

I. All suits that may now be pending or that shall be instituted before the 1st of January 1865, to recover the amount of bills for any articles sold by retail, shall, in all cases in which the cause of action arose before the passing of the said Act XIV of 1859, be tried and determined as if that Act had not been passed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to save from the operation of the new Law of Limitation (Act XIV of 1859) certain debts of the nature of Tradesmen's Bills specified in Clause 8 of Section I of that Act, if the suit be instituted before the 1st January 1865, and the cause of action in respect of them arose before the passing of that Act. Transfers of business, and new adjustments between retiring partners and the remaining partners or new partners, are commonly made on a calculation of the value of the Book-debts as well as of the stock of the firm, and it appears probable that many such arrangements may have been made in this Country on the faith of the expectation that the old period of limitation would apply to such debts as were outstanding prior to the passing of the Act of 1859. It was the intention of the late Mr. Ritchie therefore to introduce a Bill to meet this case, and the present Bill is designed to effect that purpose. It is confined to suits to recover debts of the nature mentioned.

A. G. MACPHERSON,
Secy to the Govt. of Bengal,
Legislative Department.

THE following Bill, as settled in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 12th April 1862, is hereby published for general information.—

A Bill to Amend Act X of 1859 (to amend the Law relating to the recovery of Rent in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal.)

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Act X of 1859, so far as the same relates to the Provinces subject to the Government of Bengal; It is enacted as follows:—

Repeals Sections XXVI, XL, LXXIV, LXXIX, LXXXVI, CL, and CLXII, of Act X of 1859.

I. Sections XXVI, XL, LXXIV, LXXIX, LXXXVI, CL, and CLXII, of Act X of 1859 are hereby repealed, except as regards suits under the said Act X of 1859 instituted prior to the passing of this Act.

The Court may in certain cases award to the plaintiff additional damages not exceeding 25 per cent.

II. In any suit hereafter to be brought for rent under Act X of 1859, if it shall appear to the Court that the defendant has, without reasonable or probable cause, neglected or refused to pay the amount due by him, and that he has not, before the institution of the suit, tendered such amount to the plaintiff or his duly authorized Agent, or, in case of refusal of the plaintiff or such Agent to receive the amount tendered, has not deposited such amount with the Collector before the institution of the suit in manner hereinafter mentioned, it shall be lawful for the Court to award to the plaintiff, in addition to the amount decreed for rent and costs, such damages, not exceeding twenty-five per cent on the amount of rent decreed, as the Court may think fit. These damages if awarded, as well as the amount of rent and costs decreed in the suit, shall carry interest at the rate of twelve per cent per annum from the date of decree until payment thereof, and shall be recoverable from the defendant in like manner as sums decreed to be paid by defendants under Act X of 1859 are recoverable.

The Court may award compensation, not exceeding 25 per cent on the amount sued for, to a defendant improperly sued.

III. In any suit hereafter to be brought for rent under Act X of 1859, if it shall appear to the Court that the plaintiff has instituted the suit against the defendant without reasonable or probable cause, or that the defendant, before the institution of the suit, duly deposited with the Collector, in the manner hereinafter mentioned, the full amount which the Court shall find to have been due to the plaintiff at the date of such deposit, it shall be lawful for the Court to award to the defendant by way of compensation such sum, not exceeding twenty-five per cent on the whole amount claimed by the plaintiff, as the Court may think fit, and such sum, with interest at the rate of twelve per cent per annum until payment thereof, shall be recoverable from the plaintiff in like manner as sums decreed to be paid by defendants under Act X of 1859 are recoverable.

Ryot may after tender, &c., pay into Court, without any action being brought against him, what he admits to be due to his Zemindar, &c.

IV. If a ryot shall, at the Mal Kutcherry for the receipt of rents, or other place where the rents of the land held or cultivated by him are usually payable, tender payment of what he shall consider to be the full amount of rent due from him at the date of the tender to the Zemindar, or other person in receipt of the rent of such land, and if the amount so tendered shall not be accepted, and a receipt in full forthwith granted, it shall be lawful for the ryot, without any suit having been instituted against him, to deposit such amount in the Collector's Court to the credit of the Zemindar or other person aforesaid, and such deposit shall, so far as the ryot and all persons claiming through or under him are concerned, in all respects operate as and have the full effect of a payment then made by the ryot of the amount deposited to such Zemindar or other person.

Payment into Court to have effect of payment to Zemindar or other person entitled.

Proceedings as to making a payment into Court and the drawing out the money.

V. The Collector shall receive such deposit on the application of the ryot or his agent made in writing upon paper bearing a stamp of such value as would be necessary on the institution of a suit for arrears of rent under Section XXXVII of Act X of 1859 for an amount equal to that which it is intended to deposit, and on the ryot or his agent making a declaration in the form, or as nearly as circumstances will admit in the form, set forth in the Schedule (A) hereto annexed, and the Collector shall give a receipt for the same. Upon receiving the money so deposited, the Collector shall issue a notice, to the person to whose credit it has been deposited, in the form set forth in the Schedule (B) hereto annexed, and such notice shall be served by the Collector, without the payment of any fee, either upon the person to whom it is addressed or upon his Naib, Gomasta, or other Agent, and in the absence of any such Agent, it shall be served by sticking up a copy of the same in the Office of the Collector, and another copy at the Mal Kutcherry for the receipt of rents or other place where the rents are usually paid for the land in respect of which the money has been deposited. If the person to whom such notice is issued, or his duly authorized Agent, shall appear and apply that the money in deposit be paid to him, it shall be immediately made over to him.

Suit for further balance to be instituted within six months of service of notice of deposit.

VI. Whenever a deposit shall have been made under the provisions of this Act, no suit shall be brought against the person making the deposit or his representatives on account of any rent which accrued due prior to the date of the deposit, unless such suit is instituted within six months from the date of the service of the notice in the fifth Section of this Act mentioned.

After action brought defendant may pay into Court, without costs, money tendered before action brought.

VII. The defendant in any suit under this Act or under Act X of 1859 instituted after the passing of this Act may, if he have duly tendered the same to the plaintiff before the institution of the suit, pay into Court such sum of money as he shall consider to be due to the plaintiff without paying in any costs incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sum shall be immediately paid out of Court to the plaintiff. If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the plaintiff shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit incurred by the defendant; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit.

Costs if plaintiff goes on and recovers no more.

If no previous tender made, defendant may pay into Court what he admits to be due with costs on that sum.

VIII. The defendant in any suit under this Act or under Act X of 1859 instituted after the passing of this Act may, without having made any tender before action brought, pay into Court such sum of money as he shall consider to be due to the plaintiff, together with the costs (as of a suit originally instituted for the amount so paid into Court) incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sum shall immediately be paid out of Court to the plaintiff. If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, he shall be charged with all costs incurred by the defendant subsequently to such payment; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall (including the sum paid into Court by him in the first instance on account of costs) be charged with costs as upon a suit originally instituted for the whole amount for which the plaintiff ultimately obtains a decree.

Costs if plaintiff goes on with the suit.

Survey and measurement of lands.

IX. Every proprietor of an estate or tenure or other person in receipt of the rents of an estate or tenure has a right of making a general survey and measurement of the lands comprised in such estate or tenure or any part thereof, unless restrained from doing so by express engagement with the occupants of the lands. If any person intending to measure any land which he has a right to measure is opposed in making such measurement by the occupant of the land; or if any under-tenant or ryot, having received notice of the intended measurement of land held or cultivated by him which is liable to such measurement, refuses to attend and point out such land, such person may make application to the Collector, and the Collector shall thereupon proceed to enquire into the case in the manner provided for suits under Act X of 1859, and shall pass an order either allowing or disallowing the measurement, and, if the case so require, enjoining or excusing the attendance of any such under-tenant or ryot. If any under-tenant or ryot, after the issue of an order enjoining his attendance, neglects to attend and to point out the land, it shall not be competent to him to contest the correctness of the measurement made or any of the proceedings held in his absence.

Measurement of lands where it cannot be ascertained who the ryots are.

X. If the proprietor of an estate or other person entitled to receive the rents of an estate is unable to measure the same or any part thereof by reason that he cannot ascertain who are the persons liable to pay rent in respect of the lands or any part of the lands comprised therein, such proprietor or other person may petition the Collector in respect of the lands which he cannot measure as aforesaid, and the Collector thereupon and on the necessary costs being deposited with him by the applicant, shall proceed to measure the land and to ascertain and record the names of the persons in occupation of the same, or, on the special application of the proprietor or other person aforesaid, but not otherwise, shall proceed to ascertain, determine, and record the tenures and under-tenures, the rates of rent payable in respect of such lands, and the persons by whom, respectively, the rents are payable. The provisions of Section LXVII of Act X of 1859 shall apply to any proceeding of the Collector instituted under this Section. If after due enquiry the Collector shall be unable to ascertain who are the persons having tenures or under-tenures in such lands or any part thereof, he may declare the same to have lapsed to the party on whose petition he has made the enquiry. If any person within fifteen days after the Collector shall have so declared a tenure to have lapsed shall appear and shew good and sufficient cause for his previous non-appearance, and shall satisfy the Collector that there has been a failure of justice, the Collector may, upon such terms or conditions as he may think proper, alter or rescind his declaration according to the justice of the case. Save as aforesaid the decision of the Collector on all matters enquired into and determined by him under this or the last preceding Section shall be final, unless the same shall be reversed on appeal therefrom to the Civil Court. Provided that no appeal shall lie against any decision of a Collector under this or the last preceding Section, unless such appeal shall be presented within one month after such decision shall have been given.

XI. All measurements made under this Act shall be made by the Standard Pole of measurement of the Pergunnah in which the land is situated.

Measurements to be made by the Pergunnah Pole.

XII. In any suit hereafter to be brought for the recovery of an arrear of rent the statement shall specify the name of the village and estate and of the Pergunnah or other local division in which the land is situate, the yearly rent of the land, the amount (if any) received on account of the year for which the claim is made, the amount in arrear, and the time in respect of which it is alleged to be due. If the arrear is alleged to be due from any ryot, the statement shall further specify the quantity of land, and, where fields have been numbered in a Government Survey, the number (if it be possible to give it) of each field.

Form of plaint in suits for arrears of rent.

XIII. In all cases in which the Collector shall pass an order under Section LVIII of Act X of 1859 for setting aside a judgment, the order shall be final; but in all appealable cases in which the Collector shall reject the application, an appeal shall lie from the order of rejection to the tribunal to which the final decision in the suit would be appealable, provided that the appeal be preferred within the time allowed for an appeal from such final decision and be written upon Stamp Paper of the value prescribed for petitions to the Collector where a Stamp is required for petitions.

Order to set aside judgment shall be final; but rejection of application to set it aside shall be appealable.

XIV. So much of Section LXXI of Act X of 1859 as directs that no fee for any Agent shall be charged as part of the costs of suit in any case under the Act is hereby repealed. In awarding costs to either party in any suit hereafter to be brought under the said Act or under this Act, it shall be competent for the Collector to award to such party, on account of the fees of any Agent or Mooktear employed by him, such a sum, not exceeding the rate of fee chargeable under the provisions of Section VII of Act I of 1846 for Pleaders in the Civil Courts, as the Collector may direct. It shall be also competent to such Collector to include in the costs to be so awarded such sums as may appear to him to be reasonable for the expenses of witnesses who may have been summoned to give evidence in any suit or proceeding under the said Act X of 1859 or under this Act.

Fees to Agents and Mooktears, and expenses of witnesses to be allowed as costs of suit.

XV. The Collector shall pronounce judgment in all cases tried under this Act or under Act X of 1859 in open Court. The judgment shall be written in the vernacular language of the Collector and shall contain the reasons for the same, and shall be dated and signed by the Collector at the time when it is pronounced. Provided that if the vernacular language of the Collector be not English, and the Collector be sufficiently conversant with the English language to be able to write a clear and intelligible decision in that language, and prefer to write his judgment in it, the judgment may be written in English.

Language in which the Collector is to write his judgment.

XVI. The provisions relating to attachment before judgment contained in Sections LXXXI to XC, both inclusive, of Act VIII of 1859 (for simplifying the procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature not established by Royal Charter), are hereby extended to all suits hereafter to be brought under this Act or Act X of 1859.

XVII. Process of execution in any suit hereafter to be instituted under this Act or under Act X of 1859 may be issued against either the person or the property of a judgment debtor, but process shall not be issued simultaneously against both person and property. It may be issued on the oral application of the judgment creditor, his Agent, or Mooktear, made at the time the judgment is pronounced, or thereafter upon the written application of the judgment creditor, his Agent, or Mooktear, addressed to the Court by which the judgment was given. Process of execution against the person or moveable property of a debtor shall be in the form (E) or the form (F) contained in the Schedule to Act X of 1859 or in a form as nearly resembling those forms as the circumstances of the case may admit.

Execution to issue at time of decree on oral application: afterwards on application in writing.

XVIII. If any person shall, after the date of the passing of this Act, be arrested under Section CXLV of the said Act X of 1859, he shall be brought before the Collector with all convenient speed, and the Collector shall proceed forthwith to try the case. If the case cannot be at once heard and determined, the Collector may, if he think fit, require the person arrested to give security for his appearance whenever the same is required. In default of such security the person arrested shall be committed to the Civil Jail till the case is heard.

If person is arrested under Section CXLV of Act X of 1859, case to be disposed of at once.

XIX. All the powers vested in the Collector by any of the Sections of this Act or of Act X of 1859 may be exercised by any Deputy Collector in cases referred to him by a Collector, and in all cases without such reference by any Deputy Collector placed in charge of any Sub-Division of a District or who is specially authorized by Government to receive such cases; and all applications and reports allowed or required by the said Act X of 1859 or by this Act to be made to the Collector, may be made to any Deputy Collector having such local jurisdiction or such special authority as aforesaid.

Deputy Collector's powers.

XX. Whenever any suit under this Act or the said Act X of 1859 shall be brought by appeal before a Zillah Judge, a special appeal shall lie against the decision of such Judge subject and according to the provisions with regard to special appeals contained in Chapter X of Act VIII of 1859.

Special Appeal from Zillah Judge.

XXI. Suits under this Act or under Act X of 1859 shall be preferred in the Revenue Office of the District, or when a Sub-Division of a District has been placed under the jurisdiction of a Deputy Collector, in the Revenue Office of the Sub-Division in which the cause of action shall have arisen, or when the cause of action shall have arisen within the limits of the local jurisdiction of any Deputy Collector not in charge of a Sub-Division, but who has been specially authorized by Government to receive such suits then in the Office of such last mentioned Deputy Collector. Provided always that the Collector may withdraw any suit from any Deputy Collector and try it himself or refer it to another Deputy Collector. If the lands comprised in any talook, farm, or other tenure, or any lands held under one lease or engagement, or at one entire rent in respect of which arrears of rent may be due, are situated in more than one District or Sub-Division, or within the local limits of the jurisdiction of more than one Deputy Collector so specially authorized as aforesaid, the District or Sub-Division or local limits in which the greater part of such lands is situate shall be held to be the District or Sub-Division or local limits in which the cause of action has arisen, and if any question shall be raised respecting the District or Sub-Division, or local limits within which the greater part of the lands is situate, the Board of Revenue, or, if all the lands be situate in one District, the Collector of the District, shall decide the question, and such decision shall be conclusive on the point of jurisdiction.

East.—By the Bhugerutpore Done.

This Estate lies on the east bank of the Bullissur, a fresh water river within a tide's journey of the Perozepore Sub-Division, and near the well known Morrellgunge Grant. It is densely populated. The lands are highly productive. The chief cultivation is Rice, but a large quantity of Sugarcane is grown, and the soil is said to be well adapted for the production of Cotton. The Estate contains many fields of thatching Straw, numerous Orchards and Plantations of Cocoanut and Beetlenut. Intending purchasers will be supplied with every information regarding this Estate at the Soonderbuns Commissioner's Office at Allipore, and the Settlement Records are available for the scrutiny of all persons wishing to inspect them. A settlement of the Estate has recently been concluded, and the Jummabundee made by the Soonderbuns Commissioner has been signed by all the resident Cultivators.

N. B.—A suit has recently been instituted in the Civil Court for 19,494 Beegahs of land included in this Estate. The purchaser will necessarily be made a party to it, and will have to take all the risks and liabilities incident to that position; but the Government will guarantee to the purchaser a reduction of the public assessment on the leases of the late Settlement proportionate to the loss of area which the Estate may sustain under a Decree of Court.

Home Department.

Final Report of the Police Commission.

From the Police Commission, to W. GREY, ESQ., Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 5, dated the 17th January 1862.)

SIR,—WE have now the honor to report finally the proceedings of the Indian Police Commission, composed of the Officers named in the margin. Of these Messrs. Court and Robinson are absent; the duty of submitting the present Report, therefore, devolves on ourselves.

M. H. Court, Esquire.
S Wauchope, Esquire, C. B.
W. Robinson, Esquire.
R. Temple, Esquire.
Lieut.-Colonel H. Bruce, C. B.
Lieut. Colonel A. P. Phayre.

2. The Commission was appointed in August 1860, under the orders marginally noted, for threepurposes:—

Government Resolution, Home Department (Judicial), dated 17th August 1860.

I.—To propose a new system of Police applicable to India generally, whereby economy and efficiency might be secured.

II.—To prepare for publication all available information regarding the best system of Police organization.

III.—To collate the most complete and comprehensive Statistics obtainable regarding the cost and establishment of the Police of all kinds throughout India.

3. As regards the first object, namely, the proposing of a new system, we have submitted Reports unanimously agreed to by all our Members, regarding, firstly, the regular Police; secondly, the Village Police We have since had the satisfaction of seeing that the system recommended has been approved by the Supreme Government, and carried out in the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab, together with the Provinces of Nagpore and British Burmah. For Bengal Proper it is in train to be carried out. In Madras it had previously been commenced, and had since progressed. In Bombay and Oude it had previously existed.

4. As regards the second object, we have prepared for publication full selections from the public records, illustrative of the best principles of Police.

5. It remains to report on the last object, the attainment of which necessarily occupied the longest time, namely, the statistics of the establishment and numbers of Police throughout India.

6. We should premise, however, that the preparation of such a general return has proved to be a task of much difficulty. There have always prevailed doubts as to what establishments should be included in bonâ fide Police. In general practice, the ostensible Police charges have represented only the main body of the force, while a variety, of other establishments, really Police, have been incorporated with other establishments exhibited under other headings. It has been our constant care to collate the cost of such additional establishments, whether Jail Guards, Police Orderlies, Fiscal Police, and the like, and to group them all together under the true heading.

7. We have completed, and, from time to time, reported upon the returns of the numbers and cost of the Police of every denomination that were serving under the Governments of Bengal, Bombay, Madras, Punjab, and North-West Provinces on the 1st May 1860. We have likewise endeavored to ascertain what the bonâ fide Police expenses were on the date above specified under the Administrations of Nagpore, British Burmah, and Oude.

8. Mysore and the Hydrabad Assigned Districts, and the Agencies under Central India and Rajpootana, have not been examined, as we are doubtful whether it is the intention of the Supreme Government that we should carry our scrutiny beyond the regular Governments and Administrations.

9. It may be observed, however, that when one of our colleagues (Lieutenant-Colonel Bruce) visited Mysore, he ascertained that the force which might give a financial basis for a re-organised Police for that Administration, was costing Rupees 15,87,892 per annum, and, in his opinion, the new system could be efficiently introduced into that State for something less than 10 lakhs.

10. The following is an estimate of the Returns in para. 7, which we have collated :—

		Rupees.
Total cost of Military and Civil Police of every denomination on 1st May 1860.	Bengal (exclusive of Arracan)	45,31,342
	Bombay (including Scindh) ...	45,81,220
	Madras	47,28,010
	Punjab	52,91,069
	N. W. Provinces	76,64,325
	Total, Rupees ...	2,67,95,966

11. We must here state that the cost of the Police set down against Bengal does not agree with our local Report No. 138, dated the 15th April 1861, for we discovered, subsequently to its submission, that the cost of some of the separate Jail Guards, amounting to Rupees 44,576 per annum, had been overlooked. Then again, the Report was written a few days before the issue of the General Order No. 400, dated 3rd May 1861, re-organizing the Native Infantry of the Army of Bengal, which at once set at rest the doubts expressed in paragraphs 15 and 16 of our Report respecting certain local Corps and other Levies being accepted as Police or rejected as Soldiers. Taking, therefore, the Corps, Levies, &c., &c., assigned to the Police Department by the General Orders in question, and adding to them the Jail Guards above specified, together with the figures shewn in the other columns of the return, the result will appear as above recorded.

Cost, Rupees 45,31,342.

12. With this single exception, the figures dealt with are precisely those that have been exhibited in our various Reports* upon the Police of the different Governments.

* No. 215 A., dated 23rd July 1861.
„ 217 A., „ 10th Sept. „
„ 229 A., „ 6th Nov. „
„ 239 A., „ 21st Nov. „

13. We have not been able to view the Police of every denomination, as they stood on 1st of May 1860, for the Administrations noted in the margin, but we have carefully ascertained what is fairly claimable as bonâ fide Police expenditure, so as to compare the cost of the old with the new force. In round numbers, we may state that the expenditure for these Provinces could not have been less than the following sums :—

Nagpore.
British Burmah.
Oude.

	Rupees.
Oude ...	16,50,387
Burmah (Pegu and Tenasserim)	11,60,519
Nagpore ...	9,24,370
Total, Rupees ...	37,35,276

14. If, then, the total of the last preceding paragraphs be added to that of paragraph 10, the grand total will amount to Rupees 305,31,242, or more than three millions sterling.

15. It would not be possible to compare this aggregate with the charges of former periods, for, until the year 1859-60, the Police charges were included in the judicial expenditure, and were not separately exhibited, but previous to 1857 the Military Police in Bengal was increasing, and still further increased after that period. In 1858-59 the extensive Military Police in the North-Western Provinces was created, but we believe some reductions had been made previous to 1st May 1860. In the Punjab, the Military Police had been augmented. In Oude, the Police was organized. In Bengal, Military Police had already existed. It may therefore be said that a considerable accession of Police expenditure occurred after 1857.

16. In our various Reports alluded to in paragraph 12, we have rejected different items as susceptible of discussion or dispute, or that the Government may wish to reject as not coming under bonâ fide Police available for the reorganization of the new Constabulary. But we have been careful to include bonâ fide Police of all denominations whatsoever, and we are sanguine that the local Government and Administrations will admit that, generally speaking, our revised returns have represented the real and true aggregate of Police charges.

17. Making then all proper deductions, we find that the force which was incontestably Police, or engaged upon the duties of Police on the 1st May 1860, and might be either abolished or else absorbed into the new force, was costing the State as follows :—

	Rupees.
Bengal (exclusive of Arracan) ...	40,89,870
Bombay (including Scindh) ...	39,69,688
Madras (before the introduction of new Constabulary) ...	16,93,992
Punjab ...	43,33,465
North-Western Provinces ...	62,52,712
Nagpore ...	9,24,370
British Burmah (including Arracan, Tenasserim, and Martaban) ...	15,40,863
Oude ...	16,50,387
Total, Rupees ...	2,44,55,347

or, say, 244 lakhs, or nearly 2½ millions per annum: this, then, was the Police charge for India prior to the introduction of the new system.

18. In the several Divisions of the Empire the sums above set down will suffice, or more than suffice for the new Police, except in the case of Madras. In the last-named Presidency the sum previously allowed will not suffice in future, and indeed amounts to a little more than half that which is now believed to be requisite. But, then, it must be remembered, that in Madras, besides the force paid for by the above sum, there were about twelve thousand Native Infantry of the Line, and 1,487 Veterans, engaged upon duties which have since been taken over by the new Constabulary. The Veterans have been disbanded, and if a corresponding reduction be made in the Madras Native Infantry, as was contemplated in the Minute by the late Governor of Madras, No. ——, dated 2nd May 1860, the financial result will be a considerable gain to the Government of India.

19. The Bengal and Bombay Armies were likewise engaged upon many Police duties that have been taken up by the new Constabulary.

20. The Bombay Police system, which is substantially the same as the new system, has been in force ever since 1852 with very good results. In Scindh a similar system, with a like good result, existed from the year 1843.

21. With the above exception, the Constabulary Force is of entirely new creation, Oude and Madras having commenced nearly simultaneously in 1859, and successively the North-Western Provinces, Punjab, British Burmah, Nagpore, &c., after the approval, by the Supreme Government, of the system recommended by the Police Commission in 1860.

22. Bengal Proper now is the only one in which the new system remains to be introduced, and we understand that the measure is about to be introduced into the Territories under that Government. But it is to be borne in mind that this reform, however desirable on other grounds, will not result in any considerable direct financial saving.

23. Such being the past expenditure, and the existing state of Police reorganisation, we have now to advert to the future cost of Police for India.

24. We are aware that in the preparation of the last Budget for 1861-62, this question engaged earnest attention. In the case of every local Government the sum proposed was reviewed in connexion with other Civil charges by the Civil Finance Commission in reference to the conclusions at that time arrived at by the Police Commission. But it will be found that, despite all the trouble taken, the data available here were incomplete, and often erroneous, chiefly owing to the novelty of the Budget system; that a variety of extra grants had been made; that these grants must apparently include in some cases other expenditure besides Police; and that, on the whole, practically the result is a higher range of Police expenditure than had been anticipated.

25. The following is the abstract of Actual Police grants sanctioned for 1861-62 as per Budget, and according to a return with which we had been favored by the Auditor-General:—

	Rupees.
Bengal	56,90,688
North-Western Provinces ...	38,78,932
Punjab	24,00,000
Madras	49,75,780
Bombay	25,62,288 }
Scindh	6,97,766 }
General and Political ...	1,85,154
Eastern Settlement ...	39,642
Oude...	15,58,358
Nagpore	4,44,847
Pegu...	5,10,000
Tenasserim and Martaban ...	2,28,489
Grand Total, Rupees ...	2,31,71,944

or upwards of 2¼ crores or millions £.

It certainly appears from the monthly returns of audited accounts (with which also we have been favored by the Auditor-General) that the above margin of expenditure is not being exceeded in actual disbursement, in few cases only is there likely to be any material excess.

26. But it is certain, that in some cases, the above grants include other expenditure besides Police, for instance, the sum of fifty-two lakhs set down for Bengal, includes several lakhs of Magisterial Establishments. Again, the forty-nine lakhs set down for Madras, includes some six lakhs for Village Police, and an additional grant of eight lakhs, which is disputed by the Madras Authorities as not being really Police Expenditure. We are not aware of the exact grounds of the grant, but apprehend that it may be for adjustment of arrears in other cases. Again, the grants are certainly not too high, as, for instance, the North-Western Provinces and Punjab; in the former the original grant applied for amounted to forty-four lakhs, and in the latter to 31, both of which were modified to the present grants of thirty-six and twenty-four lakhs, after a review of the Budget by the Civil Finance Commission. The Nagpore grant of 4½ lakhs is now known to be too low by about two lakhs. On the whole, however, the grand total is probably somewhat in excess of the present actual expenditure for Police in India.

27. Since the formation of our Commission, the different local Governments and Administrations have, we believe, undertaken to keep their Police expenses within the following bounds:—

		Rupees.
	Bombay ...	27,87,877
	Madras	38,24,620
	Punjab ... } Derajat ... } Peshawur, &c. }	33,15,155
	North-Western Provinces ...	32,16,412
Now formed into new Central Provinces ...	Nagpore ... } Saugor ... } Jubbulpore ... }	16,36,930
	British Burmah	11,60,519
	Oude	13,80,276
	Bengal	40,89,870
	Total, Rupees ...	2,14,11,659

28. A Committee, constituted by the Bengal Government to report on the proposals of the Police Commission, have submitted, we understand, a schedule of fifty-three lakhs for a complete Police, but we believe that the Bengal Government admit that forty lakhs, proposed by the Police Commission, will suffice, provided that a sufficiency of Native Troops be allowed. Assuming, then, that the Military requirements of Bengal will be fully provided for by the Supreme Government, we have ventured to set down forty lakhs for Bengal.

29. The Government of Bombay have intimated that they will eventually be able to effect a reduction of Rupees 1,65,606 per annum upon the present cost of their Police, thus leaving the entire expenditure within that Presidency (inclusive of Scindh) at Rupees 26,22,271. For the North-Western Provinces again, the 38 lakhs, including the Saugor and Nurbudda Territories, transferred to the Government of the new Central Provinces. That Section of the Police has been ascertained to amount to 6½ lakhs, and Colonel Elliot, the Chief Commissioner, has agreed with our colleague, Mr. Temple, to reduce it to 4½ lakhs, which should be added to the charge of the Central Provinces.

30. But although the local Governments and Administrations may endeavour to keep within their estimates, and may believe that they are doing so, as far as the new Constabulary is concerned, it is very necessary to understand what further establishments are engaged upon the duties of Police, and perform the identical duties that we estimate for in the Constabulary cost. It has indeed been ascertained by our colleague, Colonel Bruce, during his recent deputation, that charges properly belonging to Police, such as Political Contingents, Cantonment Police, and the like, do sometimes appear under other headings.

31. Taking the above sums into consideration, the following is the difference between our estimate and the present actual cost, to which the different forces have been or are being reduced to within the last year:—

		Rupees.
Bengal	...	89,870
Bombay	...	2,37,877
Madras	...	7,70,620
Punjab	...	9,15,155
North-Western Provinces	...	2,16,412
Central Provinces	...	5,86,930
British Burmah	...	1,34,027
Oude	...	3,80,276
Total, Rupees	...	33,31,167

32. Thus, we believe, that a reduction of Rupees 33,31,167 may still be, or is being, actually effected, but we solicit that it be clearly understood that, when we specify any particular limit, we mean that it should include every description of Police paid out of the revenues of the State, whether for river, road, cantonment, or thuggee and dacoitee. This rule is not, we fear, always observed with the estimates of the local Governments.

33. It may be observed that one great difficulty we have experienced throughout, arose from the multiplicity of isolated bodies that we found to be employed under numerous local authorities, the very names and designations of which we were sometimes in previous ignorance of. Many of these Levies appeared in neither Military nor Police returns, some derived their origin from having been temporarily entertained, and not again discharged, owing to the responsibility of reduction resting with no one.

34. This renders it very important that it should be clearly understood that every armed man must, even if engaged only for a week, be supplied by some responsible Department, and exhibited in the accounts of such Department.

35. If the broad distinctions repeatedly laid down be enforced, that every armed man must be either Soldier or Policeman, and embodied either in the Military or Police Budget estimates, our object will be fully attained.

36. Again, during the scrutiny made by our colleague, Lieutenant Colonel Bruce, into the present state of the Police of the different Governments, he represents that it was sometimes a work of much labor to ascertain whether all the duties really appertaining to the Police, were taken up by and performed by the Police Department. On several occasions it was discovered, that extra Levies or Detachments doing purely Police duties, but paid by a District Department, or from other extraneous sources, and completely out of ordinary sight, ought to be added to the Police cost, for they were, in fact, nothing but Police under another denomination.

37. All this may be prevented in future, if, after a thorough scrutiny by the Supreme Government, a Resolution be passed that no extra men are to be raised, except under the Military or Police Authorities, who will have to exhibit these forces respectively in their Budgets.

38. To show that our opinions regarding the probable cost of the new Constabulary have been, to some extent, practically tested, we will quote a few observations made by the Inspector-General of Police in the Punjab. He writes:—"When we "commenced introducing the new system of Con- "stabulary into the Punjab, no attempt was made "to allot to each district a certain body of Police "in proportion either to area or population.

"The actual local wants of each district were "most carefully considered and reviewed, and the "necessity for each Policeman ascertained. After "two or three careful revisions by the Civil and "Police Officers, a very fair and accurate estimate "was obtained of the actual requirements.

"Working upwards from the bottom, guided "solely by the actual wants of our districts, and "with the one object of doing the work with the "greatest possible efficiency and economy, we "have fixed the strength of the Police of each "district, without reference to any general rules "as to area or population, and solely with reference "to actual wants.

* * * * *

"The result, upon the whole, shows a proportion "of one Constable to 5·91 square miles or to 1,012 "inhabitants.

"This proportion is, I believe, very nearly that "which obtains in other parts of India, and "which, if applied to a province containing "districts where the sparsely and densely popula- "ted parts nearly counterbalance each other, will "give a result which may be relied on."

39. It now remains for us to submit an approximate estimate of what the Police Expenditure of India may probably amount to. It has been already stated in our para. 27, that the several local Governments have already agreed to expenditure aggregating to 214 lakhs. We trust that some further reductions may be found practicable. The Bengal Government will, we hope, consent with the Military aid now solicited, to keep down its Police to 40 lakhs. With the reduction now introduced or in progress in the Bombay Presidency, including Scindh, a limit of 25½ lakhs may be hoped for there. The Madras Government having agreed to 30 lakhs, may, we presume, be depended upon for that limit, though the expenditure may be now in excess, more or less. The same remark applies to the Punjab Government, where an observance of the 24 lakhs limit is accordingly to be anticipated. The North-Western Provinces Government have agreed to 38 and once also, as we understand, to 36 lakhs, including Saugor and Nurbudda Territories. As that last-named Territory is now transferred to the Central Provinces, and has a Police of 6½ lakhs, we may assume 30 lakhs for the North-Western Provinces. For the Central Provinces, including Nagpore and Saugor and Nurbudda Territories, the Chief Commissioner has agreed, in conjunction with our colleague, Mr. Temple, to a Police, costing in all 11 lakhs. For British Burmah we expect that the arrangements now being made under Colonel Phayre (also a Member of this Commission), that the expenditure will be reduced to 10¼ lakhs. Relying on the special local experience of our colleague, Colonel Bruce, we venture to set down 10 lakhs for the Oude Police. The following, then, would be the total in round numbers, as we now finally submit them:—

	Rupees.
Bengal	40,00,000
Bombay	25,50,000
Madras	30,55,000
Punjab	24,00,000
North-Western Provinces ...	30,00,000
Central Provinces ...	10,50,000
Burmah	10,26,492
Oude	10,00,000
Total, Rupees	1,80,80,492

40. It is proposed then that 180 lakhs, or rather more than 1¾ millions should be fixed as the general limit for the bonâ fide Police of all denominations in India. This will give a saving of 63¾ lakhs below the Police charge of 1859-60, (paragraph 17) and upwards of 33¼ lakhs below the sum the local Governments consented to for the current financial year (paragraph 27). When our Commission first assembled, we supposed the Police charge to be from 2¼ to 2½ millions, and to be susceptible of reductions to 2 millions We now, however find, that one and three-fourth million will suffice.

41. We do not wish to rely unduly on general averages and abstract calculations, but it may be a matter of interest to append copy of a statement, showing what the Police of India might be expected to amount to, according to calculations of area and population, as made by the Civil Finance Commission. It is generally supposed that there should be one Policeman to every 5 square miles, and to every thousand inhabitants, and that the mean of the two should give the nearest approximation to the truth, and that the average cost of a Policeman should be Rupees 130 per annum. Now a reference to the statement will show that, assuming the population of the British Territories to be 132,758,168 souls, and the area at 835,837 square miles, then the former estimate would give 132,756 Policemen at Rupees 1,72,58,280, and the latter, 167,171 at Rupees 2,17,32,230, and that the mean of the two would amount to Rupees 1,94,95,325. Now, without laying under stress on such calculations, we may yet remark that in the abstract at least, the Police expenditure we have proposed, would appear to be fair and moderate.

42. Further, we find that, on reviewing the general expenditure for the Budget of 1861-62, the Civil Finance Commission urged a limitation of Police charges to 184 lakhs for that year. Here again is the concurrence of opinion in an aggregate sum of upwards of 1¾ millions.

43. We find that it is not in our power at present, pending the ultimate organization of the Police, to give exact figures as to the numbers of men, nor can these be accurately deduced from the expenditure: but it is our duty to draw attention to the broad fact that the new organized Constabulary for India cannot be less than 130,000, and not more than 160,000 men. This force will be all trained to arms, while only a small portion of them, say one-fourth, would, at any given moment, be actually bearing arms. They are also composed of every variety of race and language, and are scattered in small portions all over the Empire, there being no considerable body collected at any place. We trust that these general facts may be of assistance in the determination of the proper strength of the Native Army in India.

44. It must not be supposed that Rupees 2,41,55,347 is the whole cost of all the armed bodies that are not under the Military Department; this is merely the sum that was disbursed by the State, but in addition to it, there is a very large number of Police supported and maintained chiefly out of local cesses and likewise from municipal sources. There likewise exists many Political Corps, defrayed entirely from contributions made by Native States, and the Police and local forces of the Mysore Territory and Hydrabad Assigned Districts are quite distinct.

45. We adhere to the general principle mentioned in paragraph 8 of our original proposition of September 1860, regarding the incorporation of the general Thuggee Department with the Police But we are sensible of the practical difficulty of breaking up so valuable a Department pending the complete organization of the new Constabulary. Still, supposing that Department to continue for some time to come, we submit that it might be advantageously placed upon a definite, and at the same time, reduced footing. We certainly think that the bodies of men termed Nujeebs, might be dispensed with. We are aware that our colleague, Mr. Temple, has been engaged, in concurrence with the General Superintendent, in framing a plan with this object.

46. We continue more strongly than ever to perceive that, until the new Constabulary is fully organized, it will be necessary to continue a central examination. Without this, we apprehend, that the Police Expenditure of India will not be actually reduced to the minimum of necessary requirements so soon as might be expected, for it is only by practically comparing the establishments of one Government or province with another, which it is impossible for the local authorities to do, that a correct appreciation of actual wants can be arrived at. Nothing is more natural than that Officers who have grown up in one province, and have never been employed in any other, should consider their system the best, if not the only feasible one. The organization of a vast Police of tolerable uniformity for the different local Governments of all India, upon a concertive system, must necessarily, for the present, proceed more or less tentatively, and as it would not be possible to give our Inspectors General the benefit of moving about from administration to administration, comparing their own organization with that of other Governments, it seems highly desirable that some central scrutiny, which does not cramp the authority of the Governments, should, for the present, be temporarily maintained, for probably every Presidency or Administration exhibits some points of economy which the others might, with advantage, adopt.

47. Hitherto there has been difficulty in ascertaining what the Police, under any one Government, may be costing. The Finance Department can no doubt, give extracts from the Budgets, still there do not always exist the means of analyzing whether the debits under the Police head of that estimate be bonâ fide all that is taken for the purpose of Police. Then again it is only by special scrutiny that it can be ascertained whether the whole of the duties that legitimately appertain to Police, are really being performed by the Police Department; great diversity of practice exists, and often extra expenditure goes on under one Government on account of duties which, under another, are performed by the Police, and therefore included in the Police Expenditure.

48. It is a well-known fact that when new establishments are first of all created, the tendency is always to over-estimate, and we believe that in Railways and Canals and other large works requiring an extensive dispensing of labor, great reductions upon the first distribution are almost invariably found practicable. We doubt not that when the Police system is fairly set in movement, a considerable diminution in numbers and cost will be proved feasible. By some it is represented that a reduction of as much as 10 or 15 per cent. may be effected. As yet little more has been done than the putting of the Policemen into their places. In the course of a year they will be well instructed in their work, and at the expiration of that period, a thorough examination and review should be made. In the mean time, information might be constantly accumulated, in order that such scrutiny and comparison may be effectually made, especially with reference to the annual Police Budget Estimates, &c.

49. We would venture to represent to the Supreme Government that very great saving may be effected by extending Act XX. of 1856 to all Cities above a moderate size; for at present we believe Lucknow,* Lahore, and Rangoon are the only principal Cities in India that defray the whole of their Police expenses. As an instance of the great saving to be effected under some Municipal Law, whereby a cess for Police purposes may be levied, we may instance the case of the three Capitals employing a Police force, costing—

Calcutta	...	Rs. 2,44,959
Madras	...	,, 2,32,484
Bombay	...	,, 2,30,361

Of this large sum only Rupees 61,868 is contributed by the municipality of Bombay. The rest is entirely defrayed by the State.

* Lucknow ... Rs. 92,244
Lahore ... ,, 32,400

50. Again, some instructions are requisite respecting the European Officers, for in some parts, their salary is consolidated, whilst in other parts they receive a staff allowance, which latter only is debited to Police. We recommend that all salaries of European Officers be made consolidated and be charged in full to the Police Department. It is of great importance that the full amounts of all charges should be, in the first instance, debited to the Police, and that, if required, transfers to other heads should be made only in the shape of subsequent deductions from the aggregate amount of the charges first of all ascertained.

51. We would advocate that in the Non-Regulation Provinces, the Police grades, as regards salaries, should be made to correspond and rise up with similar grades in the lower ranks of Revenue and Magisterial Departments, and that this principle should be kept in view as much as possible elsewhere. The advantage of such a plan is, that it gives the local authorities a greater range for selection, and facilitates the employment of every Officer according to his particular speciality and upon work that he may really have a turn for. Several instances have occurred, since the introduction of the new Police, of young Officers wishing to exchange from the Civil Administration to the Police, but the differences in the allowances have prevented such transfers.

52. We would also represent how advantageously many of the unemployed young Officers might be made use of as Supernumeraries attached to the Police Force, instead of drawing their full pay in comparative idleness at the various principal stations.

53. It would not be difficult to form a sort of preparatory class from those who were willing to do duty with the Police Force, on the chance of being absorbed or admitted into that force upon their qualifying and proving, by an industrious apprenticeship, that they would be likely to turn out well. Their position, as attached to the Police, would be much better than as mere unemployed Officers doing general duty, for they would, at any rate, have prizes before them in a regular Department, which is hardly the case so long as they may remain without Regiments, with no opening to eventual advancement, and attached to no particular line. Such additional strength in district European supervision, would prove highly beneficial to the new Police, and would probably be the means of saving many of the young Officers from subsiding into a life of indolence and uselessness.

54. We will now recapitulate the recommendations contained in this letter, which we beg to commend to the consideration of the Supreme Government.

1*st*.—That a general financial limit for Police in India of 180 lakhs (or nearly that sum) be imposed, and that for the furtherance of this end, the present central scrutiny be maintained temporarily.

2*nd*.—That Act XX. of 1856 be so adapted, extended, and applied, as to make the Capitals and other large Cities contribute the funds requisite for their own Police. (Vide paragraph 49 of this letter.)

3*rd*.—That the salaries of all European Officers should be consolidated, and the whole of the salaries of Military Officers should be charged in full to the Police Department. (paragraph 50.)

4*th*.—That the full amount of all charges should be debited to Police, and if required, transfers to other heads should be made only in the shape of deductions from the aggregate amount of charges first of all ascertained. (paragraph 50.)

5*th*.—That in the Non-Regulation Provinces, the European Police grades should be made to correspond, as far as possible, in salary with similar grades in the lower ranks of the Revenue and Magisterial Departments, and that the principle should be kept in view as much as possible elsewhere. (paragraph 51.)

6*th*.—That as many young unemployed Officers as may be available, should be attached and made to do duty with the Police. (paragraphs 52 and 53.)

55. In conclusion, we beg to submit, that the duties assigned to us under the instructions contained in the Government Resolution, dated 17th August 1860, appear to have now been completed, and if anything further be required of us, we hope to be favored with orders accordingly.

We have, &c.,

Read the final Report by the Police Commission No. 5, dated 17th January 1862.

RESOLUTION.—In the Resolution, dated the 17th of August 1860, by which the Police Commission were appointed, the objects of their appointment were stated to be—

(I).—To ascertain the numbers and cost of all Police of every description then serving in each Province throughout the British Territories in India, paid from the general revenues.

(II).—To suggest any measures whereby expenditure might be economised, or efficiency increased in the existing Police Forces.

2. In partial fulfilment of the first object the reports noted in the margin have been submitted to Government, giving Returns of the numbers and cost of the Police under the Governments of Bengal, Bombay, Madras, the Punjab, and the North-Western Provinces on the 1st of May 1860.

Dated 15th April 1861.
" 23rd July 1861.
" 10th September 1861.
" 6th November 1861.
" 21st November 1861.

3. In fulfilment of the second object of their appointment the Police Commission submitted, in September 1860, a Report accompanied by a series of Propositions which they recommended for adoption as the basis of a Police system and of an organized Constabulary. They explained in their Report that this was the only manner in which it appeared to them that they could give effect to the second object of their appointment, as any alterations which they could propose would be based on the principles set forth in their propositions, and they added that the alteration which they would really propose was in fact this—"that the present Police, Civil and Military, be abolished, and an organized Constabulary substituted in all the Provinces of India where such a system does not already exist." They expressed a confident opinion that this arrangement would increase efficiency and diminish expense; but they added that should there be any delay in working out the improved system which they recommended, they had no doubt that some reduction might be at once effected in the expensive Establishments of Military Police then existing, and they suggested an immediate financial examination of those Establishments for that purpose.

4. The Governor General in Council thinks it proper here briefly to advert to the orders which had been issued, before the Police Commission was appointed, with a view to the reduction of these Establishments.

5. In July 1859 the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal was instructed not to complete the Military Police up to the full strength of 900 men for each Battalion, which had been authorized in 1858, but to limit the numbers of each Battalion to 600 or 700 men.

6. In Oude, during the same year, reductions in the cost of the Police were effected to the extent of nearly 11 lacs of Rupees.

7. So early as November 1858, at a time when the necessity for a strong repressive force in the North-Western Provinces had not yet passed away, Committees were appointed by the Governor General at Agra and Allahabad to report on the organization of the Police in those Provinces. At that time the cost of the Police, Military and Civil, including, of course, large bodies of men specially raised during the disturbances, amounted to at least the sum named in the Report of the Police Commission, namely, 62½ lacs. The Lieutenant-Governor submitted a scheme of Police towards the close of 1859 on the 'mixed system,' that is to say, a Police partly Military and partly Civil, the estimated cost of which was about 47 lacs. This scheme was carefully reviewed by the Governor General, and in April 1860 definitive instructions were conveyed to the Lieutenant-Governor for the reduction of the Military branch of the force to the extent of 14 lacs, thus reducing the whole sanctioned cost from about 47 lacs to about 33 lacs. At the same time it was suggested to the Lieutenant-Governor whether it might not be preferable to abandon the 'mixed system' of Police, and to adopt the organization on which the Oude Police had been formed.

8. Reductions in the Police were also pressed upon the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab in a letter written from Simla by order of the Governor General in May 1860.

9. Large reductions were indeed obviously and imperatively called for in the Punjab, the North-Western Provinces, and Oude, because during the period of the disturbances large semi-Military bodies of men had been raised under the name of Police by the Civil Authorities, which became unnecessary when order and quiet were re-established.

10. This should be borne in mind in order to understand the true financial effect of the reorganization of the Police throughout India which is being carried out. Both the Army and the Police in Northern India were largely and exceptionally increased during the disturbances of 1857 and 1858. The increase in the Police was for the most part made in immediate connection with what were really Military operations; and at the time, the levies and other bodies that were raised constituted in effect an extra Military Force acting under the Civil Authorities.

11. When peace and order were thoroughly restored, these bodies should in due course have been discharged, and the country left as before to the Civil Police and to the Army, the latter being fixed at such strength as seemed expedient with reference to past events.

12. The existence of these extraordinary levies, and the large reductions and changes in the constitution of the Bengal Army which have necessarily ensued from the events of 1857-58, will make it very difficult, if not impossible, to fix with accuracy the real Financial effect of the organization of the new Police in the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab. In Bengal and Madras, however, it should not be difficult to do this, and it will be useful to examine somewhat closely how far the results in these two Provinces can be already estimated.

13. In the 7th paragraph of their final Report, the Police Commission refer to the previous Reports which they submitted with Returns showing "the numbers and cost of the Police of every denomination serving under the Governments of Bengal, Bombay, Madras, Punjab and the North-Western Provinces, on the 1st of May 1860," and in the 10th paragraph they set out these returns. The sums shown in this paragraph against Madras and Bengal, as representing the cost of Police of every denomination on 1st of May 1860, are respectively Rupees 47,28,010 and Rupees 45,31,342. But these sums are admitted by the Commission to include much that is not really Police. This is conspicuously the case as regards Madras, the sum of Rupees 47,28,010 including upwards of twenty lakhs for Revenue Police (so termed in the Report) and nearly ten lakhs for Village Police and for Orderlies. In a subsequent paragraph, therefore, the Commission reduce the amount to Rupees 16,93,992 for Madras, and to Rupees 40,89,870 for Bengal.

14. There is still some uncertainty as to the actual cost of the Madras new Police. It is stated in one Report of the Police Commission at 43¼ lakhs exclusive of the Madras City Police, and in the final Report again it is mentioned that the Madras Government has undertaken to keep the cost down to 38¼ lakhs, but it is not specified whether this is exclusive or inclusive of the Madras City Police. On the whole, however, it is certain that the new Police will cost from fifteen to twenty-five lakhs more than the old Police did; and whether there will be a real saving of expenditure will depend of course upon the extent to which reductions in the Army are carried out in consequence—1*st*, of the actual relief given to the Troops by the employment of the Police on duties heretofore performed by the Army; and 2*ndly*, of the greater efficiency of the Police. The first result should be immediate and obvious. The second can only be gradual and may be somewhat difficult to trace with accuracy. Colonel Bruce in his Report, dated 10th September 1861, says that he gathers from a letter from the Military Finance Department that the new Police has relieved nearly 9,500 Native Troops of the Regular Army, and he observes that "if a corresponding reduction has taken place in the Madras Army, it may be estimated that a saving of more than eighteen lakhs has been effected."

15. In the case of Bengal, the Commission, as already stated, take the cost of the existing Police which may be either abolished, or absorbed into the new Force, at Rupees 40,89,870, and they put the cost of the new Police at 40 lakhs, thus estimating that the new system may be introduced into Bengal not only without extra expense, but with a small saving. It is, however, very uncertain whether the Establishments marginally noted, which are included in the sum of Rupees 40,89,870, can be provided for by the new Constabulary within the limit of 40 lakhs. But the doubt as to the soundness of the estimate for Bengal chiefly arises from the circumstance that the amount of Rupees 40,89,870, taken as available for the new Constabulary, includes a sum of nearly 19 lakhs said to be expended for Military Police and other Levies. The argument of the Police Commission is, that these men are all employed on duties which properly belong to a Police, and which a Constabulary of the strength estimated by the Commission will find no difficulty in discharging. But, on the other hand, it has been represented by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal that these men, though no doubt to some extend employed on duties which are Police duties, are not wholly so employed. It is strongly urged that they do in fact occupy the place of regular Troops in Bengal, and that they have been actually to a large extent employed as Soldiers during the last two or three years, and that if they are abolished, it will necessarily follow that the number of Troops in Bengal must be greatly increased. His Honor has indeed distinctly and emphatically stated his opinion, that the Lower Provinces will not be safe if the Military Police are abolished without being replaced by regular Troops.

Revenue Police	Rs.	10,482
Orderlies	„	1,57,924
Customs and Salt Police	„	1,67,254
Total	Rs.	3,35,660

16. Giving every weight to His Honor's opinion on this point, it must be borne in mind that, as in the North-Western Provinces, a considerable reduction in the Military or quasi-Military force raised during the mutiny is possible; and on the decision which the Government may arrive at upon this point will depend the extent to which the present cost of the Military Police in Bengal can be taken as a set off against the cost of the new Constabulary. It remains, therefore, to be seen how far a Constabulary, on the system of the Madras Constabulary, can be introduced into Bengal without a real increase of expenditure, debitable to Bengal, either in the Military Department, or in the Civil Department.

17. It is certain then, that in Madras the organization of the new Constabulary will cause a large increase of expenditure in the Civil Department, but it is probable that this may be counterbalanced by reductions in the Military expenditure.

18. In Bengal it seems possible that the introduction of the new Constabulary may cause an actual increase of expenditure either in the Civil or the Military Department.

19. In the North-Western Provinces it may be confidently assumed that a large saving will be effected in the Civil Department without any increase of Military expenditure. It will be a question for future enquiry how this reduced Police expenditure in the North-Western Provinces will contrast with the expenditure on the old Civil Police previous to 1857.

20. In paragraphs 39 and 40 of their final Report the Police Commission propose that 180 lakhs should be fixed as the general limit for the Police expenditure of India, giving the sums noted in the margin for each Government and Administration. The Governor General in Council thinks that the information at present before Government will not warrant the unconditional adoption of this estimate. Forty lakhs is a minimum estimate for Bengal. The Bombay Police has been lately very carefully revised, and nearly every item of it elaborately reviewed by the Governor in a Minute of last October, in which His Excellency fixes the cost at Rupees 26,81,672, and though some hope of further reduction is held out, nothing very definite is stated of the amount There does not seem to the Governor General in Council to be sufficient ground for expecting that the Police of Madras will be brought down at any early date to Rupees 30,54,000, or that of the Punjab to 24 lakhs. The lowest estimate of the Punjab Government is 26 lakhs, exclusive of the Derajat Contingent. Thirty lakhs is a lower limit than the Government of the North-Western Provinces have yet admitted to be practicable, and the latest detailed estimate from the Central Provinces amounts to nearly 12 lakhs, which the Chief Commissioner has been told must be brought down to 11 lakhs. The organization of the Police in Burmah is not yet complete. It does not appear that the local Authorities in Oude have been communicated with by the Police Commission in regard to the further large reduction which the Commission suggests as practicable in that Province.

	Rupees.
Bengal	40,00,000
Bombay	25,50,000
Madras	30,54,000
Punjab	24,00,000
North-Western Provinces ...	30,00,000
Central Provinces ...	10,50,000
Burmah	10,26,492
Oude	10,00,000
Total, Rupees ...	1,80,80,492

21. But the stimulus which has been given to reductions, and the special attention which has lately been directed towards Police, might possibly in course of time get the Police cost down to something not very far off the sum the Police Commission deem sufficient, provided the pressure on the local Governments and Administrations be not relaxed, and with this object in view the Commission recommend that the present central scrutiny be maintained temporarily. They remark on this point in the following terms:—"We continue more strongly "than ever to perceive that, "until the new Constabulary "is fully organized, it will be necessary to con- "tinue a central examination. Without this we "apprehend that the Police expenditure of India "will not be actually reduced to the minimum of "necessary requirements so soon as might be "expected, for it is only by practically comparing "the establishments of one Government or "Province with another, which it is impossible for "the local Authorities to do, that a correct "appreciation of actual wants can be arrived at. "Nothing is more natural than that Officers who "have grown up in one Province, and have never "been employed in any other, should consider "their system the best if not the only feasible "one. The organization of a vast Police of "tolerable uniformity for the different local "Governments of all India, upon a concertive "system, must necessarily, for the present, pro- "gress more or less tentatively; and as it would "not be possible to give our Inspectors General "the benefit of moving about from Administra- "tion to Administration, comparing their own "organization with that of other Governments, it "seems highly desirable that some central "scrutiny, which does not cramp the authority "of the local Goveruments, should, for the "present, be temporarily maintained, for pro- "ably every Presidency or Administration exhibits "some points of economy which the others might, "with advantage, adopt."

Paragraph 46.

22. The Governor General in Council concurs in these observations. The exertions of the Police Commission have already been instrumental in reducing the Police expenditure in some Provinces, and if their recommendations be followed out, there are grounds for hope that this expenditure may be still further reduced. But if some efficient control and scrutiny be not established to continue the efforts of the Police Commission, the Police estimates so far from falling are sure not only to rise, but to get complicated, so that, in a few years, there will be as great confusion and uncertainty as before in regard to the real amount expended on Police.

23. The only question indeed to be considered is, not whether a central control is desirable or otherwise, but whether a central control can be usefully exercised without cramping the authority of the local Governments.

24. It is right that the Supreme Government should decide upon all questions of general principle, that they should have the power of preserving some uniformity of practice and of securing the reduction of the general expenditure to the lowest point consistent with efficiency; but, on the other hand, the authority and the responsibility of the local Governments should not be trenched upon, nor their legitimate functions in any manner superseded.

25. These objects, the Governor General in Council thinks, may all be attained by the appointment of an Officer as Inspector-General of Police. Such an appointment, he thinks, it is very expedient to establish, at any rate until the new system has been every where introduced, and the Constabulary Force thoroughly organized, and its strength adapted to local circumstances as tested by actual experience.

26. This will take some years to accomplish, and during that time the employment of a general Inspector will be most useful both in hastening the attainment of the object in view, and in ensuring uniformity of principle in the formation and employment of the new force, with reference to its own proper duties and to its relation towards other departments of the services, and uniformity of practice as far as local considerations will allow.

27. Much, however, will depend upon the exact position and duties assigned to the Inspector-General.

28. His Excellency in Council considers it most important that the Inspector-General's duties should be strictly confined to those of inspection and report, and that he should have no authority whatever over the head of any local Government or Administration, or over any of the Officers or men of the Constabulary Force employed under any local Government or Administration. But all sources of official information should be freely open to him.

29. As an inspecting Officer it will be his duty to go from Province to Province and submit a Report to the head of the local Administration, pointing out defects, calling attention to instances of departure from the general principles prescribed by the Supreme Government, suggesting measures of economy and improvement, and offering generally any remarks he may consider necessary. A copy of every Report of this kind should be sent for information to the Home Department of the Government of India. The head of the local Administration should be left to take such action on the Report as he may think proper.

30. Another most important function that will devolve upon the Inspector-General is that of consultative Officer to the Government of India in matters of Police.

31. No recommendation involving any departure from the recognized principles of the system, or any increase or decrease in the number of men or Officers employed in the Constabulary Force, or any increase or diminution of expense will, as a general rule, be acted on by the Government of India, until it has been referred to the Inspector-General for scrutiny and report. The annual Budgets of Police expenditure will be revised by him, and he will submit his remarks on them to the Government of India before they are finally confirmed. The Inspector-General will be required to make an annual Report of his proceedings to the Government of India in the Home Department, from which Department exclusively he will receive his instructions.

32. The local Governments and Administrations may consult the Inspector-General on any subject connected with the Constabulary, and take his opinion upon any question which they may wish to refer to the Government of India for decision.

33. The salary of the Inspector-General the Governor General in Council is pleased to fix at Rupees 2,700 a month, with a separate allowance of Rupees 300 a month to cover all travelling and other expenses of every kind, including house and Office rent. As his Office will not be one of audit or account, nor entail the necessity of voluminous records, a very moderate Establishment of Clerks will suffice; and they had better continue to be paid, as at present, by contingent bill till the number of Clerks likely to be required can be better ascertained.

34. With regard to the specific recommendations of the Police Commission, the Governor General in Council does not consider that it is possible, at all events in the first instance, to fix the general financial limit for Police in India at less than 200 lacs. This was the minimum at first supposed by the Police Commission to be necessary, and their reasons for reducing it are not conclusive. To ensure the success of the system some liberality is required at first; when the force is thoroughly instructed in its duties some reduction may be practicable, and, with the constant aid of an inspecting Officer, will not be difficult to enforce.

35. The proposal that the salaries of all Military Officers should be charged in full to the Police Department, must be qualified by the recent Resolution laying down a contrary rule, except as regards Officers of the Staff Corps.

36. The remaining recommendations of the Commission, as summarised in the 54th paragraph of their present Report, are approved.

37. The labors of the Police Commission having closed with this Report, the Governor Genera in Council hereby dissolves it, and desires that the cordial acknowledgments of the Government of India be conveyed to the several Members of it for the intelligence and industry with which they have given effect to the objects of Government in their appointment.

Public Works Department.

Extract from a Report by Captain F. T. Haig on the Progress of the Works on the Godavery, dated 1st March 1852.

Para. 2. First Barrier.—Permanent Works. I find every thing in readiness here for commencing building the Anicut; 200 tons of limestone broken to the proper size for burning and a large quantity of firewood are deposited beside the kiln, which when lighted will furnish a supply of lime sufficient for about 150 bricklayers, 100 of whom are ready for work. The foundations, 300 yards in length, for the flooring of the shoot at the left end of the Anicut, are cleared and sufficient stone ready quarried and deposited along the work for this part of it, and for about 250 yards more of the Anicut. This work consequently will be commenced forthwith.

3. First Barrier.—Tram-way Works. The earthwork of six and a half miles is within four days of completion, and about three miles more of the heaviest part of the line, where the road has to be carried on top of the Canal Embankment, is in hand. The Bridges and Culverts in the first six and a half miles are under construction, the largest one approaching completion.

Two and half miles of sleepers laid on the formed road.

The foundations are being cleared for the Seetumpett Tunnel, two lacs of bricks have been moulded for it, and half lac burnt; 800 cubic yards of granite are quarried, and other building materials collecting on the spot.

About 2,800 work people are employed on the works, permanent and temporary, at this Barrier.

4. I should mention that several new boats are in various stages of progress at this place, and seventeen of the Tram-way Goods Waggons approaching completion.

5. Second Barrier.—Tram-way. The earthwork of seven miles completed, I cannot exactly ascertain what length of the road work is laid, but I think about three miles. The Sub-Engineer in charge speaks hopefully of the completion of the whole line by next freshes, but a fresh outbreak of fever during my absence caused him the loss of 400 out of 1,000 Coolies, and laid himself up twice with many of his best men. About 700 Coolies, besides Carpenters, present

6. Third Barrier.—Tram-way. The earthwork of about three miles finished. Timber is being collected. About 600 Coolies on the works besides Carpenters. Boats in progress, but I have no information to what extent.

7. Mr. DeGronsilliers in charge of the work in the River bed below Baddrachellam reports little progress made as yet. The Sappers were busy hutting themselves when he wrote.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Stamp Duties.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Stamp Duties; It is enacted as follows :—

Governor-General in Council to prescribe the form, &c., of Stamps to be used.

IV. The Governor-General of India in Council, shall prescribe the form, size, and material of the Stamps to be used, and the mode and place of impressing, affixing, or denoting thereupon the value of the same under the provisions of this Act, and may from time to time alter and vary the orders which he may so issue. Deeds inadvertently executed on paper not bearing proper Stamp may be duly stamped on payment of proper Stamp Duty and penalty, if brought to the Collector within six weeks.

Remission of penalty.

Clause 2.—If any Deed, Instrument, or Writing requiring to be stamped under Section II of this Act, which shall have been executed on unstamped or insufficiently stamped paper, shall be brought to such Collector for the purpose of being properly stamped after six weeks from the date of its execution, but within four months from that date, such Collector, if satisfied that the omission or neglect to execute such Deed, Instrument, or Writing on paper bearing the proper Stamp, did not arise from any intention to evade the payment of the Stamp Duty prescribed by this Act for such Deed, Instrument, or Writing, or otherwise to defraud the Government, may, on payment of a sum sufficient to make up the proper amount of Stamp Duty, and as a penalty treble the amount required to make up the same, direct that the requisite Stamp be impressed on such Deed, Instrument, or Writing; or if such Deed, Instrument, or Writing shall not be brought to such Collector until after the expiration of four months from the date of its execution, the requisite Stamp may be ordered to be impressed on payment of the sum required to make up the proper amount of Stamp Duty, and as a penalty twenty times the amount required to make up the same.

A Deed, Instrument, or Writing so stamped shall be received in evidence as properly stamped in any Court of Justice.

Provided that no such certificate shall be granted if the adjustment between the parties be such as to require a decree to pass, on which process of execution can be taken out, or in any appealed suit.

The 14th April 1862.

M. WYLIE,
Deputy Secy. to the Govt. of India,
Home Department.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th April 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a week :—

A Bill to amend Act XIV of 1859 (to provide for the limitation of Suits).

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to postpone the operation of so much of Act XIV of 1859 as limits the period for the commencement of suits for the amount of bills for articles sold by retail; It is enacted as follows :—

Suits now pending or instituted before 1st January 1865, for articles sold by retail, in cases where cause of action arose before the passing of Act XIV of 1859, to be tried and determined as if that Act had not been passed.

I. All suits that may now be pending or that shall be instituted before the 1st of January 1865, to recover the amount of bills for any articles sold by retail, shall, in all cases in which the cause of action arose before the passing of the said Act XIV of 1859, be tried and determined as if that Act had not been passed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to save from the operation of the new Law of Limitation (Act XIV of 1859) certain debts of the nature of Tradesmen's Bills specified in Clause 8 of Section I of that Act, if the suit be instituted before the 1st January 1865, and the cause of action in respect of them arose before the passing of that Act. Transfers of business, and new adjustments between retiring partners and the remaining partners, or new partners, are commonly made on a calculation of the value of the Book-debts as well as of the stock of the firm, and it appears probable that many such arrangements may have been made in this Country on the faith of the expectation that the old period of limitation would apply to such debts as were outstanding prior to the passing of the Act of 1859. It was the intention of the late Mr. Ritchie therefore to introduce a Bill to meet this case, and the present Bill is designed to effect that purpose. It is confined to suits to recover debts of the nature mentioned.

No. 67.

Fort William, the 21st April 1862.

Notifications.—Under Orders contained in a Despatch from the late Court of Directors, No. 31 of 1849, dated the 18th December, it is prescribed that the Medical Certificate of unfitness, which is submitted by an applicant for superannuation pension, should state that his incapacity for further service is not the result of his own imprudence or intemperance; but pensions have hitherto been granted in very many cases on Medical Certificates containing no such declaration.

A pension, however, having been recently refused on the ground that disqualification for service was the result of intemperance, His Excellency the Governor-General in Council is pleased to direct the re-publication, for general information, of the following Extract from the Despatch referred to:—

Para. 16.—"To enable us to decide upon the "propriety of allowing the retirement upon pen- "sion of the Uncovenanted Servants of Govern- "ment, it is desirable that we should be placed "in possession of detailed information regarding "their several cases. 17. "We beg this may be attended to in "future."

For the future, pensions will in no case be granted to applicants whose incapacity for further service is the result of their own intemperance.

No. 455 of 1862.—The following paragraph of a Military Letter from the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India, No. 100, dated 17th March 1862, is published for general information and guidance :—

"The Secretary of State for War having decided that, under Clause 5 of the Good Conduct Warrant, Soldiers who have completed 16, 21, and 28 years' service, and whose names have not been entered in the Regimental Defaulters' Book for the last 14 years preceding their claim, are entitled to receive at once the rates of Good Conduct pay granted after 18, 23, and 28 years' service, respectively. I have no objection to this interpretation of the Warrant being made applicable to the Troops in India, and request that the necessary instructions may be issued accordingly.

No. 456 of 1862.—Hitherto, on a British Regiment in the Bengal Presidency leaving India, the Pay Master has been allowed to remain in India for one month after departure of his Corps, in order to settle his accounts, and for the whole of that period, if not embarking before its expiration, he has retained Indian Allowances.

2. This indulgence was necessary while British Corps throughout the Bengal Presidency were paid by advances issued from the Presidency Pay Office, a system which led to open accounts.

3. In future, however, the detention of the Pay Master will not usually be necessary, consequent on British Regiments being now paid through Divisional Pay Masters, whereby the advances taken up for the issue of Pay to Soldiers for the current month are settled on the presentation of the Abstracts on the first day of the month following, and open accounts are not allowed to exist.

4. The period for a Pay Master to settle his accounts is accordingly restricted to one week, or to the first departure of a Mail Steamer on or after expiration of that week. Permission to remain in India, or draw Indian Allowances, for a longer period, will only be granted when reasonable cause can be shewn, and on special application in each case. The Controller of Military Finance in submitting the request will explain fully the progress made by the Examiners in auditing the accounts, as also the state of the Pay Master's transactions.

No. 266.

Allahabad, the 8th April 1862.

The following Notification, issued by the Government of India, in the Financial Department, is re-published for general information :—

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

No. 52.

Fort William, the 27th March 1862.

Resolution.—The arrangements with the Bank of Bengal having now been completed for the transfer of the Treasury business at Calcutta, Patna, Mirzapore, Benares, and Dacca, and for undertaking the Agency of the Government Currency in the Circle of Calcutta, the time has arrived when the Government desire to extend similar arrangements to the North-Western Provinces, including Oude and the Punjab.

Where there are no existing Banks, arrangements will be made with the Bank of Bengal for the establishment of Branches, if that Bank is willing to undertake them on fair terms for the Public, but at the following places, viz :—

Allahabad.

Agra.

Delhie.

Lucknow, and

Lahore.

There are one or more existing Banks or one or more Banks so connected with the Districts that they might reasonably claim some preference if willing to do the Government business on terms as favorable for the public as other Banks.

It is impossible for the Government to reconcile the conflicting claims of such Banks, and at the same time do justice to the public interests which require the currency business to be transacted by one and the same Government Agency within the same Circle by any selection among those Banks, and accordingly His Excellency in Council resolves to invite Tenders for undertaking the Treasury business at the abovementioned places under the following conditions :—

The cash at each Treasury will be divided into three parts. The first, a minimum balance, which the Government will undertake to keep in the hands of the Bank without interest, or to pay interest at 5 per cent on any portion of it which may be for a time overdrawn. The second, the difference between such minimum and a maximum balance, the whole of which may be employed by the Bank, as they think fit, as an ordinary customer's deposit. The third, to be appropriated strictly to Government purposes and to remain under Government control.

The competition will turn on the lowest amount of minimum and maximum balances for which any Bank will undertake the business at a particular place.

The Government do not bind themselves to accept the lowest or any Tender.

A preference in case of equality will be given to the oldest established Bank in the place, or any Bank in whose favor they may waive their claim.

Security may be required by the Government, if it thinks it requisite, for an amount equal to the Cash Balance placed at the control of the Bank.

Any Bank obtaining the Treasury business must bind itself to undertake, if required by the Government, a Sub-Agency from the Bank of Bengal for the currency business, on terms to be settled, if the parties cannot agree, by arbitration, the Government naming an Umpire, if the arbitrators on each side cannot agree on one.

The term of the agreement, both for the Treasury business and Currency, will be the same as that of the Bank of Bengal's agreements with the Government, viz., for five years from the 1st March 1862.

Tenders will be received by the Financial Secretary to the Government of India up to the 30th April 1862, inclusive.

Banks proposing to tender and wishing for more detailed information may apply to the Financial Secretary at his Office, where they may see copies of the Clauses in the Agreements with the Bank of Bengal for establishing Branch Banks at Mirzapore, &c., which will be required as far as they may be applicable in other cases.

Order.—Ordered, that the above Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette for general information.

Government of India.

Abstract of the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor-General of India, assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations under the provisions of the Act of Parliament 24 and 25 Vic., C. 67.

THE Council met at Government House, on Wednesday, the 16th April 1862.

PRESENT :

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India, presiding.
His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.
The Hon'ble Cecil Beadon.
Major-General the Hon'ble Sir R. Napier, K. C. B.
The Hon'ble S. Laing.
The Hon'ble H. B. Harington.
The Hon'ble H. Forbes.
The Hon'ble C. J. Erskine.
The Hon'ble W. S. Fitzwilliam.
The Hon'ble D. Cowie.
The Hon'ble Rajah Deo Narain Singh Bahadoor.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON moved that the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Stamp Duties be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. BEADON presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to repeal in part Act II of 1835.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for a new Silver and a new Copper Coinage.

Also the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to repeal certain Regulations and Acts relating to Criminal Law and Procedure.

The Hon'ble MR. LAING introduced the Bill to amend Act XIV of 1859 (to provide for the limitation of suits,) and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee with instructions to report in a week.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. HARINGTON postponed the introduction of the Bill to repeal Act XVI of 1852 in those parts of British India in which the Indian Penal Code is in force, and to re-enact some of the provisions thereof with amendments, and further to improve the administration of Criminal Justice in Her Majesty's Supreme Courts of Judicature. He stated that he regretted that the Bill was still in the Printer's hands.

The Hon'ble MR. LAING moved for leave to bring in a Bill to amend Act X of 1860 (to amend Act VIII of 1859, to alter the Duties of Customs on Goods imported or exported by Sea.) He said :—

In bringing forward the Budget of the Government of India for 1862-63, the first point is to state the result of that of 1861-62.

The circumstances of the last Budget were remarkable.

A chronic deficit, continued with scarcely an intermission for twenty years, had added £50,000,000 to the national debt of India. That deficit had been increased by the effects of the Mutiny, until, in the three years from 1857 to 1860, it reached the enormous average of £12,000,000 a year, and all the efforts of the Government, aided by the imposition of new Taxes which convulsed Indian society had still left us in 1860-61 with an apparently hopeless deficit estimated at £6,000,000.

This state of things had caused a general and wide-spread alarm, and so affected credit that a Loan was well nigh impossible, while the steady decline of the Cash Balances seemed to be bringing us rapidly to the point where, without a Loan, the expenses of the State could no longer be met.

Under these circumstances, the Government of India applied itself vigorously to the further reduction of Expenditure,—so vigorously that, as I shall presently show, out of an Expenditure of £29,000,000, open to revision, a saving of £5,000,000 was effected in a single year. Then, as often happens when a patient suffering from a lingering malady resolutely breaks of his old habits, Nature comes to the aid with its restorative powers, and, in a wonderfully short time, he passes from prostration to health. So, in our case, the Famine was mercifully arrested; the growing prosperity of the country gave buoyancy to the Revenue, the produce of the Stamps surpassed expectation, and the aspect of affairs changed so suddenly that, after finding myself in January struggling with an apparently hopeless deficit, I was able, in April, to my own great surprise, and I believe that of every one else, to produce a Budget in equilibrium.

If the feeling here was one of astonishment, in England it amounted almost to incredulity.

Indian Estimates had been for years proverbially fallacious, and when I went home in June, the first thing every one said to me was, "Surely, this is too good to be true." Even high Official Authorities thought that I had been too sanguine, and estimated my deficiency at upwards of £1,000,000.

My reply was that time would show; but knowing how carefully the Estimates had been taken on the safe side, I felt confident that, provided the Military reductions which had been ordered were carried out, the result would confirm the Budget.

It has more than confirmed it, and if things had remained as they were in April, there would have been a large surplus.

As it is, although we have spent £1,458,140 more than was contemplated in April, on Public Works and Opium Advances, and have given up the License Tax, we have no deficit.

This result is so vitally important that I am anxious you should understand the process by which the figures are arrived at, and judge for yourselves how far they can be relied upon.

We are now in April, the last month of the Financial year, and we have Returns of the actual Receipts and Expenditure nearly perfect, in all cases, for nine, and in most for ten or even eleven months.

I will not say that these Returns are absolutely perfect, for our Financial Machinary is new, and cannot make men Accountants, or make them understand novel Forms, in a day. Reforms are being introduced by which we hope to make the machinery of Financial Administration perfect in India as it is in England, but in the mean time it is greatly improved, and with Returns of all the more important actual results for ten months of the year carefully checked, the margin of possible error in our revised Estimates must be very narrow.

Moreover, there is one test which may be applied with unerring accuracy, in ascertaining the general result of our Financial situation, viz., that of the Cash Balances.

If a man makes all his receipts and payments through his Banker, and contracts no debts or obligations, the Balance in his Bank Book at the end of the year must show whether he has or has not lived within his Income.

So, in our case, we have incurred no fresh debt during the present year, our outstanding liabilities have diminished rather than increased, and therefore the state of our Cash Balances affords an answer of mathematical certainty to the question whether we have or have not realized an equilibrium.

But, as in taking the Sun's altitude to ascertain a ship's place on the waste of waters, certain corrections are necessary, so, in finding the Financial latitude of the ship of the State by the Cash Balances, we must be careful to distinguish between what is real and what is only apparent.

I fear these details are wearisome, but the importance of firmly establishing our actual Financial position is so vital, that I must ask your forbearance.

The apparent aggregate Cash Balance in the different Treasuries of India on the 30th April 1861 was £14,608,121.

On the 31st March 1862 it was £17,690,000, and I will assume it to continue at the same amount up to the close of the Financial year on the 30th April, though it showed a large increase in April last year.

The apparent increase of Balance during the year is therefore £3,082,000.

But, in the first place, we ought to deduct from the Cash Balance of last year a certain amount, not properly belonging to it, consisting of Bullion deposited at the Mint for the purpose of coinage. It seems that at Bombay a practice has grown up of leaving large sums of Bullion for a considerable time at the Mint, and using the Certificates as a sort of large Bank Notes. The amount of such outstanding Certificates, on the 30th April 1861, was £930,000, and in the Balance of the 31st March 1862 there is no such amount, the operation of the new Currency Act having led to a discontinuance of the practice.

This makes the increase of true Cash Balance during the year equal to £4,012,000. But from this must be deducted what we owe to England on the balance of transactions of the year.

Our Revenue is all received in India, but of our Expenditure nearly one-fourth, or about £9,000,000, takes place in England.

This is met to the extent of about £6,000,000 by Expenditure on Railways, the Capital for which is raised in England and retained there, and to a smaller extent by other payments made by India on account of the Imperial Government.

The Balance, which, according to the most careful Estimate I can make for the current year, is £3,000,000, as due to England, and ought to be remitted, or set aside for remittance.

In addition to this, a remittance of £1,000,000 in Bullion was received early in the Financial year from England, under the apprehension that the Famine might have involved us in serious difficulties. Of this £700,000 only has been returned up to the present time, so that in the entire transactions of the year we owe England £3,300,000.

This reduces the true increase of Cash Balance on the 31st March 1862, over the 30th April 1861, to £712,000. But I am aware of no other corrections, and am totally unable to assign any reason, other than that of bonâ fide excess of Income over Expenditure, why the Cash Balance should show any increase. This indicates a result better by £570,000 than is shown by taking the aggregate of the separate Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure revised with the experience of ten months' returns of actual results.

In using the figures, therefore, of this revised Estimate, I think you will feel that I am very near the truth, and, if any thing, rather within it.

Now what results do these figures show?

First, as regards Expenditure, which is the keystone of our Financial situation, I invite your attention to the salient fact that out of a total of £29,000,000 of Expenditure which was open to revision, we have, in one year, effected an actual saving of upwards of £5,000,000.

The Interest of Debt, the Home Expenditure, payments under Treaties, and the cost and charges of collecting the Revenue, are not susceptible of reduction. On the contrary, the latter charges tend necessarily to increase with the growing prosperity of the country and the increase of Revenue.

Deducting these, the aggregate of Military, Naval, and Civil Expenditure of every description was £29,365,066 in 1860-61, and £24,293,787 in 1861-62, the difference being £5,071,279.

And out of this we shall have spent fully £750,000 more on useful Public Works in 1861-62, than in the preceding year.

The larger part of this great saving is in Military Expenditure, which has been reduced from

to £12,800,000 in 1861-62.

This is the fruit of the measures by which the Native Armed Force, including Military Police, has been reduced in two years from 350,000 to less than 130,000 men, and the European Army, in round numbers, from 90,000 to 70,000. I cannot refrain, however, from stating publicly how much the Government of India has been indebted to Colonel Balfour, and his colleagues of the Military Finance Department, for the satisfactory result we have been enabled to realize.

I have pleasure also in stating my conviction that this large saving, and the further saving which I shall presently show for the ensuing year, have been attained without any sacrifice of efficiency or of the comfort of the Soldier. On the contrary, I believe, that what with the improvements of Modern Science in Armaments and Sanatary arrangements; the increased facilities for moving Troops and Supplies by Roads, Railways, and Steamers; the concentration and secure hold of all Fortresses, Arsenals, and Artillery, and the weeding out of elements of weakness and danger in the Native Army: at no moment of our previous history did our Military power in India ever stand on such a sound and secure basis as it does at the present day.

The other reductions in the current year have been £426,000 in the Navy and Marine, and about £1,500,000 in the various branches of Civil Expenditure chiefly under the head of Miscellaneous and Contingent Expenses.

If we compare the actual Expenditure of 1861-62, not with the results of 1860-61, but with the Budget Estimate of last April, there is an increase of 1,714,370, of which £1,458,140 is accounted for under the two heads of Opium Advances and Public Works.

We shall pay £714,000 more for Opium Advances than was estimated, owing to the advance of price to the Cultivator and large increase of Cultivation.

As regards Public Works, it was intended that £500,000 should be transferred to Local Budgets, and provided for by Local Taxation. This intention has not been carried out, for a very obvious reason, vi., that new constitutions having been given to the three Presidencies, it would have been manifestly improper to anticipate the action of the local Legislative Councils, in a matter which is so peculiarly their province.

I am as strongly as ever in favor of the principle of local Taxation for local objects. In fact, if this Great Empire is ever to have the Roads, the Schools, the local Police, and other instruments of Civilization, which a flourishing country ought to possess, it is simply impossible that the Imperial Government can find either the money or the management. The mere repair of the Roads, where anything like a sufficiency of good Roads has been made, is a matter altogether beyond the reach of any central bureau.

It is of the first importance to break through the habit of keeping everything in dependance on Calcutta, and to teach people not to look to the Government for things which they can do far better themselves.

It is, however, in entire accordance with this policy, not to force local Taxation upon them by an Imperial Fiat, but to leave each Government, with the aid of its own Legislative Council and of its own Officers, to work out the problem in its own way, subject only to an Imperial control.

In the mean time we give as much we can afford towards Public Works, so as to make whatever may be raised from local sources a clear addition.

In the present year we have not only taken upon ourselves the £500,000 which was to have been provided from local Taxes, but we have further assigned another £500,000, of which half will probably be spent in the course of the year, viz., £380,000 on account of the one per cent. Income Tax, and £120,000 as a special grant for Cotton Roads.

Apart from these two unforeseen causes of Expenditure, viz., Opium and Public Works, the net increase of actual Expenditure of 1861-62 over the Budget Estimate will not exceed £256,130, a result which, in a total Indian Expenditure of £36,463,000, will not be considered as inaccurate for a first attempt at a Budget.

The Revenue, on the other hand, shows an increase of £1,616,492 on their Budget Estimate.

Of this £100,000 arises from Land, including Sayer and Aultarry; £340,000 from Stamps; and £370,000 from Customs; arising in each case from the Estimates in April having been taken with too wide an allowance on the safe side.

Income Tax has yielded almost exactly the estimated amount, or £1,942,990, instead £1,948,094.

Salt shows a decrease, which can, however, be satisfactorily shown not to have resulted from any falling-off of consumption, but from a large decrease in the stock of duty paid Salt.

All the other branches of Revenue show continued buoyancy.

On the whole, therefore, the result is, that although we have remitted the License Tax and spent £1,458,000 more than we expected on Opium and Public Works, we arrive at April 1862 with as nearly as possible the same result as we promised in April 1861, viz., with a substantial equilibrium, or, as the Cash Balances indicate, with a surplus of £700,000.

Now for the year 1862-63. As the simplest plan, I will begin by taking the Budget as it would stand, with no changes of Taxation, and no special additions to last year's grants for Public Works and Education.

The Revenue of 1861-62 is £42,911,090,—that of 1862-63 is estimated at £43,796,200, showing an increase of £885,110.

The most important point in this Estimate is to know how Opium has been taken.

The latest price was 1,471 Rupees per chest. I have assumed that, with the increased supply coming forward after 1st January next, prices may gradually fall to 1,000 Rupees a chest, and that, taking the year through from 1st May 1862 to 1st May 1863, we may realize, on the average, half way between that limit and the present price, or 1,237 Rupees a chest; but, to keep on the safe side, I have taken it at 1,200 Rupees.

I believe this to be a fair and moderate Estimate, especially as the price is no longer a speculative one, but is apparently based on the bonâ fide demand of the China Market, and has been remarkably steady for some months.

The principal heads of increase in Revenue are,—Land £400,000; Stamps £300,000; and Public Works £200,000: the two latter not so much from assumed increase of receipts in 1862-63, as from finding on closer investigation that the actual receipts of 1861-62 had been greatly under-estimated. Of the increase in Land Revenue, £110,000 is a mere transfer from another head, and the remainder is mainly owing to the cessation of the Famine in the North-West and Punjab.

The other branches of Revenue generally show buoyancy; but, wishing to keep on the safe side, I have, generally speaking, taken them at the figures indicated by the actual results of 1861-62. The general result is that the Revenue of 1862-63 would be better than that of 1861-62 by £885,110, supposing no changes to be made in existing Taxation.

The total Indian Expenditure of 1862-63 is £35,905,521, as against £36,463,309 in 1861-62, or less by £557,788, assuming for the moment no extra grants for Public Works and Education beyond those of this year.

This Expenditure may be readily analysed into two parts, as we did in comparing 1861-62 with 1860-61; the first consisting of charges beyond our control, as Interest on Debt, Home Charges, and cost of Collection; the second of charges open to revision, like those for the Army, Navy, Police, Law and Justice, and Civil Administration.

The former class of charges amounted to £11,043,173 in 1860-61;
£12,169,522 in 1861-62;
And they will be £12,350,500 in 1862-63.

The main causes of increase in 1862-63 are, the extension of Opium Cultivation; of Revenue Surveys; of Post Office and Electric Telegraph charges, owing to more work and better administration; of Mint charges, owing to Copper Coinage; and of Stamps, owing to increased Revenue.

The second class of charges open to revision amounted to £29,365,066 in 1860-61; £24,293,787 in 1861-62, and £23,454,087 in 1862-63; or £839,700 better in 1862-63 than in 1861-62 which was itself £5,071,279 better than 1860-61.

The greater part of this improvement is owing to our Military Expenditure, which again shows a reduction.

The cost of the Army defrayed in India stands as follows for the last four years:—

£15,838,980 in 1860-61;
£12,800,000 in 1861-62;
£12,200,000 in 1862-63.

The saving of £600,000 next year, as compared with 1861-62, is due partly to further reductions of the Native Force, and partly to the strength of the European Army having come down more nearly to the established strength.

Since the commencement of the present year the Government has ordered, in addition to the large reductions of last year, the reduction of eight Madras Native Regiments, eight Corps of Bengal Military Police, and some other reductions which will have the effect of bringing the total Native Armed Force of every description down to about 125,000.

A still larger saving results from the absorption of European Supernumeraries.

During the year 1861 we have had, on the average, fully 4,000 European Soldiers in India above our established strength, who cannot cost, including every thing, less than £45 per head. We have had also to provide in 1861-62 for a Home Military charge almost identical with that of 1860-61.

A reduction is at length effected in this charge, and I am too happy to receive it to scrutinize closely whether it might have been made earlier.

I certainly thought that although it would have been unreasonable to expect England to take back Regiments without notice, it was not too much to hope that when the established strength of Europeans for India had been determined upon at home within a very narrow margin of its present amount, as long ago as the autumn of 1860, steps might have been at once taken to stop recruiting and bring the depôts in England down from the excessive strength at which they had been kept for English not Indian objects, so that the Finances of India, then in a very critical state, might have received more effectual aid at an earlier period.

However, "all's well that ends well." We have surmounted our crisis and at length got the European Force nearly down to its established strength, and have assurances from home that recuiting is suspended for all Regiments still in excess; I have no wish therefore to prolong controversy, and although perfectly ready to prove and justify every word I have said on the subject, I am ready, speaking for Indian Finance, to let "bye-gones be bye-gones."

At the same time I am not sorry that public opinion in England has been directed to the subject, and that the Secretary of State can now reckon, as I believe he can, on the support of influential interests, in resisting any attempts to revive the practice, so pleasing to an English Chancellor of the Exchequer, and so displeasing to an Indian one, of keeping 10,000 or 15,000 additional Soldiers in England at the charge of India.

The expense of the Navy and Marine is brought down to £472,000, or £150,000 lower than it was last year, and £576,224 lower than it stood at in 1860-61.

Other charges nearly balance each other. We save £135,000 in Police, and spend £110,000 more in the extension of Law Courts and the administration of justice.

Miscellaneous and Contingent Expenses are diminished, while Salaries and Superannuations are slightly increased, the cause in each case being mainly a more accurate classification.

The general result is that we are better, in our voluntary Expenditure, by £839,700, and worse in our involuntary Expenditure, by £281,912, making us better in our total Indian Expenditure by £557,788.

On the balance of Home Charges and Receipts, as shown by the Estimate sent by the Secretary of State, a copy of which I lay on the table, we have £43,774 less to provide than was estimated for in 1861-62.

But, on the other hand, we have £200,000 more to provide for the excess of Railway guaranteed interest over net traffic receipts, a result which is not surprising with such a great extent of unfinished line in course of construction.

This concludes the comparison of 1862-63 with 1861-62.

We are, in all, £1,286,672 better than in 1861-62, and as the revised accounts of that year showed a surplus of £142,021, we have a surplus in 1862-63 of £1,428,693, irrespective of the changes now to be proposed.

In the first place, we propose to give £146,453 more than will be spent this year, to Education, Science, and Art, bringing the grant for these objects up to £500,000.

This amount will not appear inconsiderable when it is recollected that it is more than England gave for Education ten years ago, and is even now in a larger proportion to our total Expenditure than the present English grant is to that of England. At the same time, it is a small sum compared with the magnitude of the field, which we wish to reclaim from ignorance, and I am persuaded that no Member of this Council will grudge the money for such an object. I will not touch on the mode of applying this increased grant, for any attempt to do so would lead me too far from the proper object of what is merely a Financial Statement.

As regards Public Works we propose to provide as follows:—This year, as I have shown, we have provided for £1,000,000 more than was estimated for in April, and have given from Imperial Revenue, 1st, an original grant of £3,680,000; 2ndly, an extra grant of £120,000; and 3rdly, £380,000 on account of the one per cent. Income Tax.

The latter goes to the local Governments in aid of their local Funds, and is spent by them, subject only to our general control. They have not spent £300,000 of this money, owing to the late period at which the allotment was made, and, strictly speaking, we might postpone a second year's allotment until twelve months after the first one, and thus throw the bulk of it into 1863-64.

But we think it better to credit the local Governments with the £300,000 standing over from 1861-62 out of the surplus balance of that year, and credit them at once with the further £380,000 due for 1862-63. This will place the Imperial Government in advance, instead of in arrear to the local Governments under the Income Tax Act, and give those Governments an opportunity of commencing as much useful work as they can profitably undertake by the next cold season. It will give them, with their own local Funds proper, a very large sum of upwards of £1,000,000, available for 1862-63, irrespective of Imperial Assignments; but we trust to them not to hurry forward work so as to cause useless expense, especially as any portion of this local money remaining unspent at the end of the year will be carried forward as a Balance to the credit of their Local Funds, and will not affect their next year's assignment.

For the Imperial Assignment which is spent under the direct control of our Public Works Department, we propose to give £200,000 beyond last year's assignment of £3,680,000.

We shall thus give in all £4,260,000 for Public Works from Imperial Revenue, and shall provide for an Expenditure from all sources, Imperial and Local, of over £5,000,000 in the year, of which not above £500,000 will be for Military works.

This absorbs another £380,000 of our surplus, and, with the increased grant for Education, leaves a surplus of £903,880.

The question how to apply this surplus is one for the gravest consideration.

At all hazards we must keep clear of a recurrence of financial embarrassments; on the other hand, investing, as we do so largely in Public Works, it is not politic to keep up objectionable Taxes for the sake of retaining a further money surplus, which would only invite to extravagance.

The question is, can we, or can we not, safely apply our present surplus in relief of Taxation?

To answer this it is absolutely necessary to look beyond the present year, and take a general view of Indian Finance.

In any estimate of the Financial prospects of India, Opium necessarily demands our first consideration. We are deriving a net Income of £4,000,000 a year from this source, and if, as is sometimes asserted, this Income is altogether precarious, our position is still one of great hazard.

I have thought is right, therefore, to take every means in my power of thoroughly satisfying myself on this head, before I ventured to propose any reductions of existing Revenue.

The result is, that I can see no reason why the Revenue derived by India from Opium should be considered more precarious than that derived by England from Gin or Tobacco.

I believe the cry of the precariousness of the Opium Revenue has originated very much from the strong aversion felt to it in certain quarters on moral grounds.

This is not the place to go into any lengthened argument as to the moral bearings of the question. I have heard the most contradictory opinions advanced, in perfect good faith, by respectable men who had been in China, some denouncing Opium as a deliberate poisoning of the Chinese for the sake of filthy lucre, others contending that it had produced a most beneficial effect by substituting a comparatively tranquil stimulus for the wilder excitement of intoxicating drinks, which led to bloodshed and crimes of violence.

My own belief is that the truth lies between the two extremes, and that Opium is neither very much better, nor very much worse, than Gin.

This much seems certain in speculating on the probable continuance of a demand for Opium in China: Every civilized or semi-civilized race of mankind seems to affect some peculiar form of nervous stimulant, and as the natives of Northern Europe take to Alcohol, so the Chinese take to Opium. Possibly, in each case, the craving is for something to supply an innate want. The Englishman, the Dane, the German, and the Russian resort to that, the specific effect of which is to raise the spirits, and produce temporary exhilaration.

The Chinese, whose greatest deficiency, as shown by the whole history, religion, and literature of the race, is in the imaginative faculties, resorts to that which stimulates the imagination and makes his sluggish brain see visions and dream dreams.

Be this as it may, the fact is certain, that under all circumstances and in all climates, as the Englishman is a drinker of Beer, so is the Chinaman a smoker of Opium.

We have, therefore, at the bottom of our Opium Revenue, one of those great natural instincts of a large population upon which English Chancellors of the Exchequer confidently rely for half their Revenue.

It is, of course, theoretically possible, in the case of Gin, Whiskey, Rum, and Tobacco, that the exhortations of the Temperance advocates in the former case, and of the Ladies in the latter, might, at any moment, so far prevail, as to induce the population generally to abstain from habits which are in many cases pernicious, and in many more wasteful and disagreeable.

Should they so prevail, the Finances of England, and, indeed, of almost every country of the civilized world, would collapse far more suddenly and hopelessly than ours would in India by the failure of Opium.

But, as I have said, an English Chancellor of the Exchequer goes on with equanimity, relying on a taxation of 400 or 500 per cent. ad valorem on Spirits and Tobacco for £20,000,000 of his Revenue, and while this is the case, I can see nothing in any general considerations as to Opium, to prevent us from doing the same.

The question is altogether a specific one of selling price and cost of production. Is there anything in the actual condition of our Opium Revenue to render precarious the continuance of that which has gone on steadily growing for the last ten or fifteen years?

With the short supply and excessive prices of the last two years, no doubt this was a case.

We were not in the least degree [illegible] Chinese from the use of Opium, [illegible] meaning the stimulating the production of a [illegible] that we were which, although inferior in quality, was fast entering into competition with us.

But the question is not one of maintaining a price of 2,000 or even 1,500 Rupees a chest for Indian Opium.

Measures have already been taken which will increase the average production of Bengal Opium to about 50,000 chests a year, while that of Malwa exceeds 40,000, and the question is, at what price is China likely to take this quantity off our hands?

On referring to the Returns of the last ten years, I find the following results as to the supply of Indian Opium exported to China each year, the average price, and the approximate amount, which China has paid to India each year for Opium.

This Table shows that notwithstanding great fluctuations of price and of supply from year to year, the Opium trade with China is amenable to certain general laws.

There has been a progressively increasing demand, which being met by a stationary supply of about 70,000 chests a year, has, in ten years, nearly doubled the price, and called into existence a supplemental native supply, estimated by those acquainted with the trade at from 20,000 to 30,000 chests, selling at perhaps two-thirds of the price of Indian Opium.

There is conclusive evidence, therefore, that as matters stand, China requires every year a supply of 100,000 chests of Opium, and is prepared to spend from £12,000,000 to £15,000,000 on the article.

When I say China, I mean that part of the vast Empire with which we have commercial relations, for of the interior we know very little. It is probably supplied largely by native Opium, as the late Expedition saw an extensive Poppy cultivation above Hong-Kow.

Now, to maintain our existing Revenue, all we require is not to maintain existing prices, but that China shall, one year with another, take from us either 80,000 chests at 1,000 Rupees a chest, or 100,000 chests at 800 Rupees a chest. We can produce Opium in Bengal, even with the present high price to the Cultivator, at 400 Rupees a chest, and experience has proved that with a Pass duty of 400 Rupees a chest, Malwa Opium admits of rapid extension.

In fact, the cultivation of Opium is so profitable to the Ryot, and so popular, that we can get almost any quantity we like at those prices, specially in our own territories, where the profit to the Cultivator is not curtailed by excessive land assessments, transit duties, profits to middlemen, and usurious interest on advances.

This year our net Revenue from Opium is at a low point, for we are paying a high price for double the production which we are bringing into the market.

Our gross receipts are about £6,000,000, but we are paying, not £1,000,000, which would suffice for the quantity we have to sell this year, but £2,000,000, for the crop which will only come into the market next year.

The conclusion, therefore, is irresistible, that there is no risk of our actual Opium Revenue diminishing, unless the demand in China should so far fall off as to be unable to spend £8,000,000 a year on Indian Opium, while this year, and for the average of the last five years, they have been spending £11,000,000.

Should they continue to spend £11,000,000, our net Revenue from Opium must infallibly improve, and if, as some think, Indian Opium, if it could be sold at about 450 Dollars a chest in China, would almost supersede the native article, there is really no limit to the progressive increase of Revenue from this source, I think myself, viewing the matter as dispassionately as I can, that the probabilities are rather in favor of an increase than a decrease of Opium Revenue for the next few years, but I am satisfied if I have established that the existing Revenue is not more precarious than any other Revenue depending on a widely diffused artificial taste among a vast population.

This being so, I proceed to examine what are the prospects of the other great branches of Indian Revenue and here the result is most satisfactory.

The total Revenue of India, ten years ago, was £29,210,000—it is now £43,750,000.

The average Revenue of the three years before the Mutiny, or 1854-55 to 1856-57, was £31,980,000,—that of the three years, 1860-61 to 1862-63, is £43,203,000.

We have therefore an increase of £14,500,000 a year in ten years, and of £11,000,000 a year in five years.

Of this increase not quite £1,500,000 is due to Opium, and about £5,000,000 to new Taxes, as the Income Tax and enhanced Duties on Salt, Stamps, and Customs. Another £1,000,000 may be due to acquisitions of territory.

There remains, therefore, an inc[illegible] £7,000,000 in ten years, or of £4,500,000 in [illegible] years, which is due solely to the elasticity of existing Revenue:—Land, for instance, including Sayer and Abkarry, and Salt, irrespective of enchanced Duty, have each risen upwards of £2,000,000 in the last five or six years.

It is an incontrovertible fact, therefore, that the progressive increase of ordinary Indian Revenue has averaged £700,000 a year each year for the last ten years, and that the tendency of this rate is to increase rather than diminish. Nor can it be doubted that if, during this period, £5,000,000 a year had not been added by new Taxation, the increase of the old Taxes must have been somewhat greater.

I confess that I was hardly prepared myself for this result.

I came out here under the impression of the gloomy and almost despairing views of Indian Finance which were universally prevalent a year ago, and it is only by degrees, and is the result of close enquiry, that the conviction has forced itself on my mind, that the Revenue of India is really buoyant and elastic in an extraordinry degree.

I know of no other country of which it can be said that her ordinary Revenue is increasing by £750,000 a year, while her Expenditure has in one year been reduced by £4,000,000; and that she is maintaining an equilibrium, while expending out of Revenue upwards of £4,000,000 a year on Public Works, and another £1,000,000 for Interest on unfinished Railways.

Nor can I see any reason, looking to the futu[illegible] why, if by the blessing of Providence, peace [illegible] maintained, this prosperity should not go on increasing. On the contrary, we are apparently commencing a period when, by the opening of communications, the improvement of Agriculture, the extension of Commerce, and the tranquillity resulting from a strong Government directing all its energies to peaceful pursuits, India will enter on a career of material prosperity hitherto unexampled.

Without speculating, however, on any such future advance, it is enough to say that, under existing circumstances, the Government feel justified in dealing with any surplus shown by the Estimates, as a bonâ fide surplus available for improvements or remissions; and that they do not think it would be good policy to maintain in addition to the large Expenditure on Public Works, which is really a sinking fund admirably invested, a further Cash Surplus, against remote contingencies, which would only be a temptation, both here and at home, to relapse into extravagance.

There is one objection, however, to any reduction of existing Taxes, which I am anxious to meet in order to show that the Government is not acting without a full consideration of all circumstances.

It is this, that a war or some unforeseen event, may suddenly cause increased Expenditure, and that it is imprudent to part with any established Tax, which, in such a case, might be needed.

I quite agree that it is wrong for a Government to speculate on Financial prosperity, and to leave itself bare of resources in case of difficulty.

But what are our Reserves, and how should we be prepared to face a crisis if it arose?

In the first place, we have got, and, if prudent, shall always keep, a very large Cash Balance beyond our immediate wants.

Under the old system a Cash Balance of £[illegible]0,000 has sufficed, and with Railways, an [illegible] Currency, and arrangements with Banks [illegible] could carry on the ordinary business of the Government with perfect ease, with a Balance of £7,000,000 or £8,000,000.

Now we have actually got over £17,000,000, and, after allowing for all liabilities to the Home Government or otherwise, fully £14,000,000 of this is our own undoubted property. We could, therefore, in case of need, get over two or three little wars, or the first year of a great war, without either Loans or new Taxes; and I earnestly trust that no Government of India will ever leave itself without this, which is the first and best of all Reserves, an available £3,000,000 or £4,000,000 in hard cash, on which it can lay its hands at a[illegible] moment.

[illegible] this the credit of a Government is its [illegible] if, by two or three years of tran[illegible] raise our Funds to a comparatively [illegible] as we infallibly shall do, our money [illegible] of an emergency is proportionately [illegible]

[illegible] to resort to increased Taxation, it would [illegible] with the experience of the Income Tax, to [illegible] a measure, partly Poll Tax and partly [illegible] Tax, to produce £1,500,000 or £2,00[illegible] year. The Duty on Salt could also be [illegible] sufficied, in case of need, the Customs [illegible] increased, so that probably £3,000,000 [illegible]0,000 a year could, at any moment, be [illegible] new Taxation, which would be submit[illegible] Duty [illegible] readily, as the country had learned from [illegible] to trust the assurances of Government that war-taxes would be repealed with the return of peace.

Moreover, at least £2,000,000 a year of our Expenditure on Public Works is optional, and could be suspended in an emergency.

I trust we may never be driven to such a measure, but the Reserve is not the less there if needed, and I know of no other State, not even England, which possesses such a Reserve to the same extent.

I hope, therefore, I have satisfied the Council that the Government has not been unmindful of the maxim, "si vis pacem para bellum," and that whatever reductions we propose may be accepted with a safe conscience.

I have now established two points,—

First,—That we have a surplus for the ensuing year of £903,814, after allowing for additional grants for Public Works and Education.

Secondly,—That there is nothing in the general circumstances of Indian Finance which should make us hesitate to use this surplus for purposes of remission.

I have dwelt upon the second point at a length, which must, I fear, have wearied the Council, but many watch these statements with interest, and it is important, both for myself personally, as I may not have another opportunity of expressing my general views respecting Indian Finance, and, what is of far more consequence, it is important for the credit of the Government, to show that in proposing to remit Taxes, in little more than twelve months after we were supposed to be in a state of hopeless insolvency, we are not acting on a spasmodic impulse, but on a comprehensive and deliberate review of the whole circumstances of our position.

I proceed to state, what is of more immediate interest, how the Government propose by the with this surplus of £900,000.

Three Taxes were proposed as special nce sures to meet the late Financial crisis; the Income Tax, the License Tax, and the enhanced Customs Duties on manufactured Goods.

Of these the two former pressed directly on the native population and European residents of India, while the latter pressed mainly on English interests, and on the operations of Commerce.

The License Tax, which would have affected 5,000,000 of Native Traders, Artizans, and Mechanics, representing, with their families, a population of not less than 20,000,000, has been arrested after it had become law.

This being the case, the time has what pric arrived when the extra Duty imposed to hands? emergency should be remitted, unless we ar ten pared to retain it as part of our regular Finan ply system.

Some think this ought to be done, and no less an authority than His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has recorded an opinion that a 10 per cent. Duty on imported Manufactures is "one of the most legitimate sources of Revenue we have."

The Government, however, are of a different opinion for two very plain and obvious reasons.

Firstly, the duty applies almost exclusively to British Manufactures. Now, as long as England and India remain parts of our great Empire, it is impossible to apply precisely the same rules as if they were separate and independent countries. I have opposed, as stoutly as any one, any attempt to ease English Finance unduly at the expense of India; but I cannot deny that England, having founded the Indian Empire, and being ready to sustain it, and having given up all pretensions to exact a tribute, as Holland does from Java, or Spain from Cuba, and all claim on a monopoly of the Indian Market and carrying trade may, with some reason, ask India so to levy the necessary Revenue as not to interfere injuriously with trade between the two countries.

In fact, so completely has England given up those claims which other countries have enforced on their dependencies, that speculative reasoners have even argued that the parent State would be better without its Foreign and Colonial Empire.

That is an opinion which no practical Statesman will for a moment entertain; but it cannot be denied that, apart from moral and political considerations, the extension of Commerce is the most direct and palpable advantage derived by England from the possession of India.

A heavy import duty, therefore, on trade between England and India, comes very near in principle to a transit duty between different parts of the same Empire, and what is more important spe an any theory, it is a Tax which, in practice, is ar not likely to be permanently maintained.

To those who argue this point on abstract grounds, and overlook the practical considerations arising from our actual position with regard to England, I would simply put two questions:—Do you believe that if Ireland found it more convenient to tax Manchester Goods than to levy a poor rate, she would be allowed to do so? or do you believe that if it were found that 25 per cent. would give India a better Revenue than 10 per cent., we could raise the Duty to that amount with the slightest chance of retaining it?

But, secondly, there is another argument, even more conclusive, against the permanent retention of a 10 per cent. Duty.

Either the Clothing of the people is a proper subject for Taxation, or it is not. If it be so, on what possible principle can we impose a considerable Duty on Clothing which comes from abroad, and levy no Duty at all on Clothing produced at home?

It is the old question of the Corn Laws over again.

Free trade does not mean that there shall be no Taxes, but that Taxes shall be levied solely with a view to Revenue, and not partly for Revenue and partly for protection.

That every Customs Duty on an imported article should have a corresponding Excise Duty on similar articles produced at home, has therefore become sun axiom, and it only admits of one exception, but ere the amount of Import Duty is so moderate int at it does not seriously affect trade, while it makes it obviously inexpedient to establish an Excise Machinery for the sake of levying a trifling Duty.

This is the case with regard to Corn in England, where a Duty of 1*s*. a quarter, equal to 5 per cent. on the cheaper sorts of Foreign Grain, is retained, and it is precisely our case with regard to Piece Goods.

We cannot dispense with Customs Duties on our Imports generally, and while this is the case, no reasonable man can object to our retaining an old accustomed Duty of 5 per cent. on manufactured Goods; but when this is raised to 10 per cent., which, in effect, may often amount to 15 or 20 per cent. on the cost price of the article at home, no one who is not prepared to abjure the principles of free trade can deny that this is a rate which, if it is to be maintained, requires us at once to impose a countervailing Excise Duty on every loom in India.

The Government do not think that this would be desirable.

We do not wish to discourage Manufactures in India. On the contrary, I believe, there are many Manufactures in which India is calculated to excel.

With cheap raw material, cheap labor, and many classes of the native population, patient, ingenious, and endowed with a fine touch and delicate organization, I see no reason why the interchange between India and Europe should be confined to Agricultural produce against Manufactures, and why, in course of time, Manufactures of certain descriptions, where India has a natural advantage, may not enter largely into her staple Exports.

But because I desire to see this, I am the more anxious not to bestow on Indian Manufactures the fatal boon of a temporary and precarious protection.

Whatever step they make forward in fair competition with Manchester will be a solid and substantial advance, but they will never thrive while the progress of one year creates the panic of the next, by changes, or rumours of changes, in a protective Duty of so high an amount as necessarily to form a vital element in all their calculations.

I may add this, that although the benefit to India, generally, from a reduction of this Import Duty, is not so palpable and immediate as from the remission of a direct Tax, it is not the less real.

There can be no question that the population of India are, on the whole, insufficiently clothed, and that whatever may be the case under the temporary conditions of an over-stocked market, an extra Duty of 5 per cent. on imported Cotton Clothing does, in the long run, raise the price of all Cotton Clothing in India to the consumer, to a level, higher by one Rupee in every 20, than it would have stood at otherwise.

It is certain also that the Export Trade, on which so much of the prosperity of India depends, depends itself very much on the Import Trade. The more we take from England, the more will England take from us; and a cessation of Imports would soon translate itself into a reduced price to the Ryot for his Oil-Seeds, his Cotton, and his Jute.

This is especially important at a time when India is hoping to secure the largest share of a trade of £20,000,000 a year in Raw Cotton, thrown suddenly open by the failure of the American supply.

For these reasons the Government of India has determined to reduce the Import Duties on Piece Goods and Yarns to the old rates of 5 and 3½ per cent. respectively.

The question arises, when this reduction should take place.

All public interests point to its being immediate. Trade must be paralyzed to a great extent by a prospective reduction, and if, for a period of several months, purchasers hold back and stocks accumulate in Bond, there is every reason to apprehend a greater fall of price than could possibly be caused by an immediate reduction.

This could only be met by fixing a very distant period for the reduction, but I confess that, in the present state of things in Lancashire, I should be very unwillling to postpone, for a single day, any benefit they may get from this reduction.

The only argument I know of for delaying the reduction is that there are large stocks of duty paid Goods.

Now, I must say, the holders of such Goods have had fair warning. I have repeatedly stated in public in the course of the last year that the Government of India did not consider the 10 per cent. as a permanent one, and in reducing the Duty on Yarn twelve months ago, we gave a practical proof of our intention to reduce the Duty on Piece Goods at the first possible moment. The state of the Cash Balances has shown for months past that such a result was possible, and, since the remission of the License Tax, no one could doubt that it was highly probable, or rather, almost certain.

Throughout this period we received Memorials from the Chambers of Commerce of Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras, urging reduction, and either expressly deprecating delay, or making no allusion to it.

It is only at the last moment that Memorials have been received from a few highly respectable Firms at Calcutta and Bombay, asking that the reduction should be postponed for a long period, or, in the latter case, I may say indefinitely, until the state of the market is changed. Other Firms in Calcutta have sent a counter-memorial for immediate reduction.

It appears, therefore, that opinions here are divided, and that the opinion in favor of delay is apparently not a very clear and decided one, or it would never have left itself to be expressed as an after-thought at the last moment. Moreover, it is apparently confined to Merchants who might have bonded, but who preferred paying Duty, and who, therefore, probably were on the right side when the Duty was raised three years ago.

And what is more material, the Merchants and Manufacturers in England, who, I apprehend, would generally bear the loss if there is a fall of price consequent on the reduction, which I do not expect, have not only not asked for delay, but have pressed most earnestly in all the reports I have seen of their proceedings for an immediate reduction of the whole 10 per cent.

Under these circumstances, the Government see no sufficient reason to depart from the usual and accustomed course in such cases, which is clearly best for the interests of the public; and I accordingly propose that the reduction of the Duty shall take effect from the passing of the Act on Wednesday next.

Under ordinary circumstances, I should expect a large part of the loss to be recovered from increased importation; but, with the market still over-stocked and the price of Raw Cotton extremely high, I do not calculate on any improvement for the ensuing year, though I have no doubt that, with the first favorable change in the trade, a large portion of the loss will be recovered

The same arguments for reduction, as in the case of Piece Goods, do not apply to other articles of the Tariff which are not extensively produced in India as well as imported. A moderate Duty, such as 10 per cent., on such articles, is not an objectionable mode of raising Revenue. There are, however, a few articles in the Tariff where relief is required, and may be given at a trifling cost to the Revenue.

Paper is taxed 10 per cent. on its value, and yields little more than £10,000 a year. Now, I am not going to enter on the large question, which for two years agitated the British Parliament, whether a Tax on Paper is so obnoxious as a Tax on Knowledge, that it ought to be repealed even at the risk of creating a deficit. It is enough to say that a Duty on the raw material, "Paper," is indefensible, while the manufactured article, "Books," are admitted free, and that practically cases have arisen where, owing to this anomaly, it has been cheaper to send manuscripts of Works intended for Indian circulation to be printed in England than to print them here. We do not propose to tax Books, and therefore we place Paper on the free list.

I may add that though I should not have been prepared to give up a large existing Revenue from Paper without a clear surplus, I have real pleasure in finding that the state of things in India enables us to give any contribution, however trifling, towards cheapening the cost of an article which enters so largely into the Statistics of Elementary Education, and of the diffusion of knowledge, through the Press.

I pass to a very different subject, that of Beer.

The Duty before 1859 was 5 per cent. ad valorem; it has since been four annas per gallon, which I find has averaged nearly 20 per cent. on the value of the Beer imported. The importation has greatly fallen off, and though this may be attributed mainly to the excessive importation of 1859, which glutted the market, still it cannot be denied that a Duty of nearly 20 per cent. is excessive, and calculated to check seriously the importatation of an Article which, in this climate, is to many European constitutions almost a necessary.

Accordingly, I propose to reduce the Duty by one-half, or to two annas per gallon, and here again I feel a very disinterested pleasure,—for I am no beer-drinker myself,—in being able to propose any boon, however slight, to the class who have perhaps suffered more than any other from recent Taxation, that of Europeans residing in India.

The reduction at the present rate of Imports will not cost above £10,000 a year.

From Beer to Tobacco the transition is easy and natural.

The Duty on Tobacco is so absurdly high, that it is clear we are driving all but the superior sorts out of the market, and losing Revenue. The Duty of one Rupee per seer is fully 100 per cent. on ordinary American Tobacco, and its effect has been to reduce the importation in three years from 1,200,000 lbs. to about 360,000 lbs., a striking proof of the impolicy of excessive Import Duties. I propose to reduce the Duty to 20 per cent. ad valorem, which I have no doubt will cause a slight gain rather than a loss to the Revenue.

The Duty on light Wines is also so high as to be almost prohibitory as regards the cheaper descriptions. I propose to reduce it from two Rupees to one Rupee per gallon, in the case of light Wines declared of less value than 12 Rupeee per dozen.

There are some other slight reforms in the Tariff which do not appreciably affect Revenue, and are made with a view to correct anomalies.

For instance, there is an Export Duty of 3 per cent. on Coals and Iron, the produce of India. This is as yet of no great practical importance, but it is manifestly wrong that a cargo of Raneegunge Coal should be burdened with an Export Duty, if shipped to Ceylon or Java, to compete with Coal from England.

There can be no reason why Carriages should be imported free, while all the chief materials used in carriage-making pay an Import Duty.

These, however, and other minor matters can be dealt with in Committee on the Customs Bill, and for the present it is enough to state that the total effect of the reductions proposed in Customs Duties may be taken at £475,000 for the ensuing year.

This reduces my surplus to £428,880.

One question only now remains for consideration, viz., how to deal with the Income Tax.

Some action is requisite, for the Act of last year, continuing the first year's assessments, will soon expire, and it is necessary to provide before August, whether the Notices and Forms of Return prescribed by the original Act shall or shall not be again issued.

Upon this point there is, I believe, no second opinion among men practically acquainted with India, that they ought not to issue. It is admitted on all hands that the alarm, the vexation, the oppression, and the extortion, inseparable from calling for complicated Returns of individual Incomes in a country like India are a far greater evil than the Tax itself, and that, assuming such a Tax to be indispensable, a rough classification at fixed rates, somewhat on the plan proposed by my Hon'ble Friend, Mr. Harington, would have been infinitely preferable to any attempt to ascertain individual Incomes.

Accordingly, I had thought last year, when it seemed certain that both an Income Tax and a License Tax would be required to maintain an equilibrium, that the opportunity of passing the License Tax Act should be taken to mould the two together into one measure on the principle of a fixed classification.

Circumstances led, during my absence, to the License Tax being passed in the form originally proposed, and a temporary Act was passed continuing the existing assessments under the Income Tax for one year.

Since then Financial prospects have materially improved, and we have been able to arrest the License Tax on the very eve of its imposition, thus saving 5,000,000 of tax-payers from the incidence of a direct Tax, and the annoyance of classification.

The situation of matters with regard to the Income Tax is thus materially changed. If we were now imposing it for the first time, or if it were clear that it would be permanent, I should have no hesitation in recommending that it should be commuted into a Tax on the principle of Mr. Harington's Bill, and probably made over to the local Governments to deal with on this principle according to their own local circumstances and for their own local requirements.

A proposal of this sort has been made by the Government of Bombay, and it has much to recommend it.

It is most desirable to break through the system of barren uniformity and pedantic centralization which have tended in times past to reduce all India to dependance on the bureaux of Calcutta, and to give to local Governments the power and the responsibility of managing their own local affairs.

The great branches of the Expenditure, such as the Army and National Debt, are Imperial, and while this is the case, the great branches of Revenue must remain Imperial also.

But there is a wide field both of Revenue and Expenditure, which is properly local, which in England is met by local rates, and which, in fact, must be met locally, or not at all.

I hail, therefore, every proposal which shows signs of independance and self-reliance, and if the Income Tax were to be perpetual, I would much rather see it transferred into a local Tax, than continued as an Imperial Tax.

But before acting on this view, there is one paramount consideration which has to be weighed, viz., whether the Income Tax is to be looked upon as a permanent or a temporary measure.

Upon this point I have myself no doubt. The Tax was imposed for a limited term, and at all hazards we must strive to keep faith with the people of India by not prolonging it.

It is, of course, impossible to give any absolute pledge as to what may occur three years hence. Necessity knows no law, and unforeseen events may upset all calculations. But the question is, are we to look on the implicit pledge given by passing the Income Tax Act for five years only, as a serious promise which we may strain every nerve to fulfil, or are we to follow the example of England, and treat it as one of those common forms, which, like "lover's vows," are only made to be broken.

It is my firm conviction that the latter course would be alike wrong and impolitic

The people of England can understand that whatever a Chancellor of the Exchequer may say to round a period, or elicit a cheer, the Income Tax cannot be repealed unless they are prepared either to abdicate the position of a first-rate power by disarming, or, to retrace the steps of Sir Robert Peel's legislation by imposing crushing duties on Commerce and Consumption.

But the people of India see no such reasons for continuing the Indian Income Tax, and they would simply feel that the Government having got the Tax on false pretences was [illegible] ouncil might be aole keep it. [illegible] re the expiration of Measures which, like the famous, [illegible] and especially to its the 4 per cents, cast even a plausib[illegible]rred with Mr. C[illegible] the character of the Government [illegible] Tax, and co[illegible] forward and open honesty in its finance as [illegible] dealings with its subjects, are, above all others, to be deprecated.

Hence, without in any way pledging the Government as to what may or may not be possible three years hence, I venture to say this—that in my judgment the main object to which the Financial policy of the Government should now be directed is to keep faith with India by getting rid of the Income Tax. That will be the great object of my endeavors as long as I continue responsible for Indian Finance, and when I leave, it is the legacy I should wish to leave to my successor.

I will say also that although it is impossible to anticipate what the future may have in store, there is, as matters now stand, every fair and reasonable probability that we may in three years or sooner be able to dispense with the Income Tax. If, for three years, the Revenue increases at the average rate of the last ten years, and if the Expenditure be kept within its present bounds, the object would be easily attained.

In the mean time, although with a remaining surplus of less than half a million, it is manifestly impossible for us to make any large present reduction of the Income Tax, there are certain measures which the Government propose, in the hope that they will afford a most material alleviation of its pressure.

In the first place, we propose to renew for the next three years the temporary Act of last year, dispensing with all further Returns and Enquiries, and to take the first year's assessment for the remainder of the Tax, unless in cases of fraud or manifest inadequacy, or where the party assessed himself wishes to re-open the question.

We add a provision that parties who desire it, may pay up once for all their remaining assessments.

The vexation and oppression incidental to calling for fresh Returns, and renewing each year an inquisitorial enquiry, are thus, we hope, completely obviated.

There is, however, a still greater and more beneficial change which we propose to make. We find on enquiry that the number of persons who pay the lower rate of 2 per cent. on Incomes between 200 and 500 Rupees a year, amounts to nearly two-thirds of the whole who pay the Tax, while the money they pay is not above one-fifth of its whole proceeds.

In other words, between 500,000 and 600,000 persons are taxed to produce a gross Revenue of not more than £350,000.

I do not put the case for the exemption of these persons on the ground that they are poor, for I have no sympathy with the Socialist legislation which would place Taxation exclusively on the rich. On the contrary, I believe that poor as well as rich, and often even more than rich, are interested in the support of the State and the maintenance of [illegible]pecial order, and that the middle and [illegible]sses are those who, in the long run, [illegible]rom the seductions of political dema- [illegible]rom the sickly sentimentality of into bri[illegible]anthropists.

(for re[illegible] present instance there are very the m[illegible]nds on which to justify the exemp- Provinces o[illegible]estion.

X[illegible] of 18[illegible] cost of collecting the Income Tax was last [illegible]ear £160,934, and of this by far the greater part is due to the numerous class of small payers. With the number of payers reduced to one-third, and existing assessments continued, nearly the whole extra establishment may be dispensed with, and I am quite within the mark in saying that we shall save at least £100,000,

Now a Tax which affects 600,000 persons, to produce £350,000 gross, of which at least £100,000 is absorbed by cost of collection, is condemned by the mere statement of figures.

Nor is this all, for I much fear the large cost of collection must be taken as an index to a large amount of annoyance and oppression. The mere numbers show that two-thirds of the objections to the Income Tax will be got rid of by relieving two-thirds of the Tax-payers.

But the numbers alone do not adequately represent the real relief, for it is beyond all question that men of property and intelligence can defend themselves against mistakes or attempts at extortion by native officials, far better than the classes who just come within the limits of the 2 per cent. assessment.

This alone is a conclusive argument against any attempt to substitute for a total repeal of the 2 per cent. Tax, a partial relief to all Income Tax payers by a reduction from 4 to 3 per cent. in the rate of payment.

We could barely afford a reduction of 1 per cent. all round by maintaining some of the most objectionable import duties, and such a reduction would not in the slightest degree diminish the cost of collection, or the annoyance and oppression incidental to it.

I know that the Tax presses unduly upon many who pay their full 4 per cent. on an honest account of their incomes, while others escape.

But those are classes to whose intelligence and public spirit we may confidently appeal. We have endeavored to deal frankly with them for some time past in all matters of Financial policy, and our reward for so doing is that on occasion like this, we are able to take them as it were into our confidence, and explain to them without disguise our real position.

I do not believe in "ignorant impatience of Taxation" on the part of educated gentlemen, like the great majority of the Official and Non-Official Europeans in India, when they are fairly dealt with. On the contrary, I am convinced that however strongly they may feel the natural desire of every body to escape his own peculiar burden, they will be satisfied with the assurance that the Government is sincerely desirous not to perpetuate the Income Tax, and with the pledge given for the future by the remissions already made.

The prosperity of India is their prosperity, and I am much mistaken in their intelligence and right feeling if they are disposed to use the dog-in-the-manger argument, that because we cannot afford to relieve them, 600,000 of our fellow subjects of the humbler classes shall, for the sake of £250,000, which we do not want, be kept under the bondage of an unpopular Tax.

At any rate, such is not the decision of one class, who will continue to pay the full Income Tax, viz., His Excellency the Governor-General and the Members of the Supreme Council, and we therefore propose that from the superior sort. The from the termination of the second year of the present. come Tax assessments on Incomes under 500 Rupees a year shall cease, collections for the present year being of course completed

I estimate the cost of this great boon at £250,000, i. e. I shall lose £350,000 of Revenue and gain £100,000 in Expenditure. This reduces my surplus to £179,814, which is as low as it is prudent to go; nor indeed, should I have ventured to go so low, but for the fact that we are already investing such a large surplus in Public Works.

The estimate of Cash requirements shows that we may expect to arrive at the 30th April 1863 with a Cash Balance of £17,050,673 after setting apart all we shall owe England in the transactions of the year.

I have endeavored to make this latter Estimate more intelligible than it has hitherto been. It is the estimate of Cash transactions of the year as distinguished from Revenue and Expenditure.

A man who is a Trustee for others, or who is borrowing and paying off Capital for improving his Estates, will have Cash transactions in the course of the year very different from his current Income and Expenditure.

So it is with us; we have receipts and disbursements on various Deposit Accounts for Service Funds, Suitors' Funds and otherwise, which are classed under the general head of "Debt." Our receipts in 1862-63 under this head will be £11,053,360; our payments £11,799,150; the excess of £745,790 showing that we shall have diminished our outstanding liabilities to that extent principally by the payment of all remaining instalments of Prize-money.

The other entries in the Estimate are adjustments, between India and England, of sums paid here and received there as for Railway construction, or vice versa, and a final entry is made of the Remittance which, according to the Estimate received from Home, is necessary, after these adjustments, to discharge all the remaining liabilities of India to England, on account of Home Expenditure for the year 1862-63.

This amounts to £3,727,732, viz., £2,200,000 for guaranteed Railway Interest, and a balance of £1,527,732 in General Account.

The result leaves an estimated Cash Balance of £17,050,673 on the 30th April 1863, which will exist in actual Rupees and be entirely our own, subject, as far as I am aware, to no extraneous claims or liabilities whatever.

It only remains now briefly to sum up the results which I have endeavored to convey to the Council in this necessarily long statement.

The year 1860-61 closed a long series of deficits with one still estimated at £6,000,000, and which in reality was upwards of £4,000,000.

1861-62 sees this deficit extinguished by a reduction of £5,000,000 of Expenditure effected within twelve months in a total Expenditure of £29,000,000 open to revision.

Further reductions and continued buoyancy of Revenue find us in 1862-63, notwithstanding the remission of the License Tax, and a large increase of outlay on Opium and Public Works, with a surplus of £1,428,693

We apply the surplus.

First,—In further augmenting by £524,813, the grants for Public Works and Education.

Secondly,—In reducing to the normal rate the exceptional Import Duties imposed on Manufactures.

Thirdly,—In relieving two-thirds of the payers of Income Tax from all further assessments.

We close the year 1861-62 with a Cash Balance of £17,650,000. We have every reason to believe that our Estimates are on the safe side, and that we shall close the year 1862-63 with a Balance of more than £17,000,000.

This is the simple state of facts laid before you, without exaggeration or embellishment.

There is no doubt that it contrasts favorably with the Financial Statements which India has been accustomed to receive, and with those which other great Empires of the civilized world have been recently making.

Let us not be too confident in this prosperity, or relax that wise economy which has been the principal means of effecting so beneficial a change.

And, above all, let us not forget, that while thankful to the Almighty Ruler of events for giving us peace and tranquillity and this foretaste of material prosperity, we shall best merit the continuance of these blessings by using them as means for higher ends, for the diffusion of civilization, the moral and intellectual elevation of our people, and all that goes to the mighty task of building up solidly and securely the foundations of a great and enduring Empire.

It is, I trust, a happy augury, that as our late Vice Roy was able to close his career in India by relieving 5,000,000 of Her Majesty's Indian subjects from the imposition of the License Tax; His Excellency the present Gevernor-General is enabled to inaugurate his Government by relieving two-thirds of the Income Tax-payers, and reducing duties which press on the Commerce of India with the mother country.

I closed my statement last year with the expression of a confident hope, that India might become the brightest jewel of the British Crown.

I close it now with a still more confident expression of the same hope, and with a feeling that the twelve months had not elapsed without something being done towards its realization.

The Hon'ble Mr. Cowie said that, as an unofficial Member, he felt it to be his duty to express the gratification with which he had listened to the statement which had just been made, respecting the surplus revenue and the objects to which it was to be devoted. To the high duties on imports he had always objected as wholly indefensible, except upon the ground of necessity, and he regarded their reduction as a simple act of justice quite irrespectively of any pressure from Manchester or any other quarter. He also cordially approved of the abolition of the 2 per cent. Income Tax. At the time of the introduction of the Tax by the late Mr. Wilson, he (Mr. Cowie) thought that the limit had been fixed too low, and two years' experience as an Income Tax Commissioner had convinced him that the greater part of the oppression on which complaint was made in the collection of the Income Tax was exercised in respect of the 2 per cent. levied on the smaller Incomes. With reference to the continuance of the remainder of the Tax for three years more, he trusted that the prosperity of the country would be so progressive that the Council might be able to remove it altogether before the expiration of that period.

The Hon'ble Mr. Fitzwilliam said that he was happy to join in the congratulations of his colleague on the Financial Statement which the Council had just heard. He considered that the reduction of the Import Duties would afford an important relief to the country, and especially to its commerce. He fully concurred with Mr. Cowie in his views of the Income Tax, and could, in like manner, speak from experience as a Commissioner for its collection. The Tax had the effect of promoting both oppression and immorality, more particularly in its operation on the large class who would now be relieved. As a Member of that Council, he felt happy to give his cordial assent to the present partial remission of the Tax, and he hoped that the time might soon arrive when the Tax could be dispensed with altogether.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor said that, as his views on the Import Duties had been alluded to by Mr. Laing, it might be necessary to explain them for the satisfaction of those Members of the Council who were not Members of the Executive Council, and therefore had not seen the papers on the subject. No Member of the Council objected more strongly than he did to all duties in the nature of protective duties; and if he had thought that the question of protection was involved in the difference between a 5 per cent. and 10 per cent. duty, he should have considered that the additional 5 per cent. should be the first to be remitted, or if the whole tax partook of the character of a protective duty, he should have been in favor of its being taken off altogether. But looking at the Tax merely as one for Revenue, in preference to the License Tax which was then about to be imposed, he thought that it was free from objection. The License Tax, however, had been given up, and thereby a considerable burden of anxiety had been removed from his mind. His impression was that the next Tax to be assailed should be the Income Tax, in preference to the duties on importations. But if practical men said that those duties acted as protective duties, then no one more heartily approved of their remission than himself.

The motion was then put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Laing then applied to His Excellency the President to suspend Rules 15 and 16 for the conduct of business in order that he might introduce the Bill.

His Excellency the President declared the Rules in question suspended.

The Hon'ble Mr. Laing then introduced the Bill, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee with instructions to report in a week.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Laing moved for leave to bring in a Bill to amend Act XXXII of 1860 (for imposing duties on profits arising from Property, Professions, Trades, and Offices.)

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Laing then applied to His Excellency the President to suspend Rules 15 and 16 for the conduct of business in order that he might introduce the Bill.

His Excellency the President declared the Rules in question suspended.

The Hon'ble Mr. Laing then introduced the Bill and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee with instructions to report in a week.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Harington moved for leave to bring in a Bill to extend Act XIV of 1843 (for regulating the levy of Customs Duties and the manufacture of Salt in the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Bengal), and Act XXXVI of 1855 (to empower Officers of Customs and Land Revenue to search houses and other enclosed places for contraband Salt in the North-Western Provinces) to the Province of Oude, and to amend the last mentioned Act. He said that an Act was passed last year by the late Legislative Council to regulate the manufacture of Saltpetre by requiring that such manufacture should be carried on under license, and to enable the manufacturers of Saltpetre to refine the Salt produced in the manufacture of Saltpetre, and to sell the same on payment of the Government dues. The Act, as it passed, took effect at once only in the North-Western Provinces, but it contained a provision authorizing the Governor-General in Council to extend its provisions to other parts of India. This power had lately been exercised in the case of Oude, to which Province the Act was extended by an order of the Governor-General in Council, dated the 9th April, but the Act of last year referred in one of its provisions to two previous Acts relating to Salt which were not in force in Oude; and the local authorities, with whom the Government of India concurred, considering it desirable that these Acts should also be extended to the Province of Oude, with effect from the date on which the Act of last year was extended to the Province, the present Bill had been framed to effect such extension. It was also proposed to take the opportunity of the introduction of the present Bill to amend one of the Sections of the two Acts which they were asked to extend to the Province of Oude, in so far as it related to forcible entries in cases of search for contraband Salt and to bring the law in respect of such searches into conformity with the Code of Criminal Procedure.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The following Select Committees were named :—

On the Bill to amend Act XIV of 1859 (to provide for the Limitation of Suits)—the Hon'ble Messrs. Laing, Harington, Erskine, and Fitzwilliam.

On the Bill to amend Act X of 1860 (to amend Act VII of 1859, to alter the Duties of Customs on Goods imported or exported by Sea)—the Hon'ble Messrs. Laing, Harington, Fitzwilliam, and Cowie.

On the Bill to amend Act XXXII of 1860 (for imposing Duties on profits arising from Property, Professions, Trades, and Offices)—the Hon'ble Messrs. Laing, Harington, Fitzwilliam, and Cowie.

The Council adjourned till Wednesday, the 23rd instant, at 11 A. M.

CALCUTTA,
The 16th April 1862.

Public Works Department.

Note on the experimental Iron Works, lately established at Burwai, in Nimar.

THE design of establishing works to utilize some of the numerous iron deposits in Nimar, beyond the limited extent to which they are worked by Native Miners, and in supersession of their primitive and wasteful mode of working, was first brought forward by Major Keatinge, of the Bombay Artillery, when Political Agent and Superintendent of Nimar. At his suggestion a small Steam Engine and a Rolling Mill, suitable for rolling into bars the lumps made by the Native method, were obtained from England, and were erected in the Mundlaiser Jail Workshops.

While Major Keatinge was on furlough in England in 1859, he learnt that great difficulty was experienced in working the machinery, from the want of proper re-heating furnaces, and that the furnaces, erected from Drawings in English Scientific Books, were found to be useless with wood and charcoal fuel. He accordingly obtained permission to visit, at the expense of Government, some of the Iron Works in Germany, to learn the methods of conversion of cast-iron into bars and sheets with vegetable fuel only.

On his return Major Keatinge obtained the permission of the Secretary of State to make arrangements for the erection of a small experimental Iron Work at Burwai, in Nimar, and to obtain in addition to the Rolling Mill and Engine, already on the spot, a blast furnace and forges, the blowing cylinders to be driven by a 15 Horse Power Engine, a small steam hammer, and steam pump, and a small fitting shop, sufficient in fact to make cast-iron, and to convert it into wrought-iron, on a small but practical scale.

It was not found possible to engage a properly qualified Manager for the works in England, and Major Keatinge proposed to the Secretary of State to depute him to Sweden to engage one, and also to improve his own knowledge of the manufacture of charcoal iron. This proposal was based on the advice of Dr. Percy, the Professor of Metallurgy, in the Government School of Mines, in Jermyn Street, from whom Major Keatinge had from the first received the greatest assistance. The Secretary of State acceded to Major Keatinge's proposal. On his arrival at Stockholm he formed the acquaintance of Director A. Grill, the head of the Swedish Iron Comptoir, and the most esteemed Consulting Engineer and Metallurgist in Sweden, in all matters connected with the manufacture of iron. The designs for the works proposed were drawn out under Mr. Grill's superintendence. On Director Grill's recommendation too, Mr. Nils Mitander was selected as Manager of the proposed works at Burwai. This gentleman had been educated at the Government School of Mines at Fahlun, and had been practically employed on Iron Works in Sweden for some years.

Major Keatinge returned to India in August 1860, and he was shortly followed by Mr. Mitander, who arrived in Bombay in November 1860.

A Report has lately been received from Mr. Mitander, giving an account of the progress of the works from the commencement to the end of September 1861, of which the following is the substance :—

I.—MINES AND ORE.

The Nandia Mine is an old Native working which had become almost filled up. A considerable excavation has been made, and the Mine has been worked both at the sides and at the bottom; 419½ tons of ore have been raised at the following cost per ton :—

For labour ...	Rs.	3	2	7
For buildings, material, and dead stock ...	,,	1	5	3
Total Rs. ...		4	7	10

A Contractor has lately undertaken to raise it at Rs. 2-6-0 per ton. The richer specimens have yielded 57·95 per cent of iron, and fair specimens from 48·5—50·63 per cent; an average of eight trials on ore taken at random showed a yield of 34·78. A fair specimen calcined yielded 56·4 per cent. The ore is a hydrated oxide of iron in globular lumps, occurring in thin seams in a yellow ochery rock. The impurities are chiefly Silica and Crystalline Carbonate of Lime.

The Mines at Kuroondia, Kummulpoor, Kumlia Ghatee, and Soorgam, were merely trial shafts and soon abandoned. The ore in all of them is hematite, commonly mixed with Silica. The average yield of iron is 43·6 per cent. Nearly 52 tons were raised at an average cost per ton of Rupees 10-15-2, but this includes building, materials, &c.

The discovery of a number of pieces of rich ore on the surface of the ground led to the sinking of a trial shaft at a place named, by Major Keatinge, Mitanderpoor. Isolated pieces of splendid ore were continually met with, and at a depth of ten feet a solid bed of ore was found. The work has hitherto been carried out mainly with a view of ascertaining the extent of the deposit, but in two places the ore has been worked to a depth of about five feet, and 630 tons have been raised at a cost per ton

For materials	,,	0	6	1
Total Rs. ...		2	4	11

The ore is a Crystalline massive hematite or specular iron ore, the impurities being chiefly Silica. A picked specimen from the seam yielded 62·22 per cent of iron. An average from the trial of several pieces from the lowest part of the working gave 45·98 per cent, and the general average of all dug ore yielded 43·6 per cent. From the appearance of the ore in these places, it is thought that there is a considerable deposit here.

II.—Flux.

Lime-stone is abundant in the neighbourhood of the works, and that obtained at Nandia has been analyzed by the Chemical Analyzer to the Bombay Government, and has given the following result :—

Lime	...	32·47
Magnesia	...	19·25
Carbonic Acid	...	41·95
Silica	...	3·02
Aluminum, with a little peroxide of iron		2·05
Water	...	·50
Alkaline Salts and loss	...	·76
		100·00

The cost of lime obtained from this for building purposes was Rupees 16-0-3 per 100 cubic feet.

III.—Fuel.

Wood has been cut for charcoal to the extent of 1,682 cords, each cord being 10′ × 4′ × 4′, or 160 cubic feet, at a contract price of ten annas per cord. Also 460 cords, each 5′ × 4′ × 2′, or 40 cubic feet, have been cut for lime burning, and for calcining ore, at a contract price of three annas nine pie per cord.

IV.—Works.

The building of the blast furnace has proceeded as far as it can, without the iron work expected from England. It is a building 30 feet square at the base, with three tuyer-houses. It is of stone masonry, and is at present nine feet high.

The Casting-house, 50′ × 20′, has been completed. The sides consist of a series of arches; it has a gable end, containing a large doorway.

The Rolling Mill-house is a building of a similar description. The Mill with its Steam Engine and three Boilers, and Pumping Engine, are ready to work. Chimney 25 feet high.

Two Charcoal-houses are in course of construction, and the foundations of a third are in progress.

Two Charcoal ovens, or charring pits, have been dug, and the brick lining is in progress. Each of these pits will contain about 500 cubic feet of wood for conversion into charcoal.

A calcining kiln on the Swedish model has been erected for calcining the ore before smelting. It is 14 feet high and 5½ feet interior diameter.

Attempts at making fire bricks have hitherto proved unsuccessful, owing to the impurity of the clay, but it hoped that greater success may be attained with a new clay found at Chundgurh.

V.—Miscellaneous.

Road-making, to connect the principal parts of the works, is in progress.

The Superintendent's Bungalow has been completed.

A Powder Magazine has been constructed within the Burwai Thannah, in which to store Gunpowder kept for blasting operations.

It is understood that good progress has been made since the date of this Report.

THE following Act of the Governor-General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor-General on the 17th April 1862, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. X OF 1862.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Stamp Duties.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Stamp Duties; It is enacted as follows :—

Repeal of Laws.

I. THE following Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd April 1862:—

HOME DEPARTMENT.

LEGISLATIVE.

WE, the undersigned, the Members of the Select Committee of the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations, to whom the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure was referred, have the honor to report that we have considered the Bill, and the Paper embodying an abstract of the opinions of the Principal Officers of the Non-Regulation Provinces which was laid before us.

As we consider that the power granted to the Executive Government of varying the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure in its application to Non-Regulation Provinces should not be larger than the circumstances of the case absolutely require, and as we think that there are only two points on which any modification has been shewn to be necessary, we have amended the Bill so as to confine it to those points.

The first Section will enable the Government, in giving effect to the seventh Enumeratory Note of the Schedule (whereby the powers granted by the Code may, in Non-Regulation Provinces, be entrusted to other Officers than those named in the Code), to extend the powers of an Officer in charge of a District to the trial of all cases not punishable with death, with a limit as to punishment similar to that prescribed in Section 22 of the Code for Assistant Sessions Judges of the Bombay Presidency, namely, imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years (including such solitary confinement as is authorized by law), or fine, or both.

The second Section provides that when, under the definition in the 14th Section, the Sudder Court may consist of a single Judge (as in the case of a Chief Commissioner of a Province), the power of confirming a sentence of death under Section 398 of the Code, and the power of confirming, modifying, amending, and reversing sentences or orders under Sections 401 and 420 may be exercised by him. Those Sections require the concurrence of two or more Judges.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd April 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a week :—

A Bill to extend to the Province of Oude certain provisions of Acts XIV of 1843 and XXXVI of 1855 relating to the manufacture of contraband Salt, and to amend the last named Act.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to extend to the Province of Oude certain provisions of Act XIV of 1843 (for regulating the levy of Customs Duties and the manufacture of Salt in the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Bengal) and of Act XXXVI of 1855 (to empower Officers of Customs and Land Revenue to search houses and other enclosed places for contraband Salt in the North-Western Provinces), and to amend the last named Act; It is enacted as follows :—

Certain provisions of Acts XIV of 1843 and XXXVI of 1855 extended to Oude.

I. So much of the said Act XIV of 1843 as relates to the manufacture of alimentary Salt, and the prevention and punishment of the illicit manufacture and importation of such Salt, and the said Act XXXVI of 1855 as hereinafter amended shall be held to have been and are hereby extended to the Province of Oude from the date on which Act XXXI of 1861 (to regulate the manufacture of Saltpetre and the sale of Salt educed in the refinement thereof) was extended to the said Province in the manner provided in Section XVIII of the said Act.

Forcible entry into zenanahs.

II. Section IV of Act XXXVI of 1855 is hereby repealed, and the following Section is enacted in lieu thereof, and shall be read and construed in the same manner as if it formed part of the said Act, namely,—

"If the place to be searched is a zenanah or apartment in the actual occupancy of a woman who, according to the custom of the country, does not appear in public, the Officer making the search shall give notice to such woman in such zenanah or apartment that she is at liberty to withdraw, and after giving such notice and allowing a reasonable time for the woman to withdraw, and affording her every reasonable facility for withdrawing, such Officer may enter such zenanah or apartment for the purpose of completing the search, using at the same time every precaution consistent with these provisions for preventing the clandestine removal of any Salt. Provided that the responsibility for the act, and the determination whether to force an entry or not, shall rest with the Officer of Customs or Land Revenue only."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

An Act (XXXI of 1861) was passed last year by the late Legislative Council to regulate the manufacture of Saltpetre by requiring that such manufacture should be carried on under license, and to enable the manufacturers of Saltpetre to refine the Salt produced in the manufacture of Saltpetre, and to sell the same on payment of the Government dues. The Act, as passed, takes effect at once only in the North-Western Provinces, but it contains a Section authorizing the Governor-General in Council to extend its provisions to other parts of India. This power has lately been exercised in the case of Oude, to which Province the Act was extended by an order of the Governor-General in Council, dated the 9th instant. But the Act of last year refers in one of its provisions to two previous Acts relating to Salt which are not in force in Oude, and the Local Authorities, with whom the Government of India concurs, considering it desirable that these Acts should also be extended to the Province of Oude with effect from the date on which the Act of last year was extended to the Province, the present Bill has been framed accordingly.

It is also proposed to take the opportunity of the introduction of the present Bill to amend one of the Sections of the latter of the two Acts abovementioned in so far as it relates to forcible entries in cases of search for contraband Salt, and to adopt the language of the Code of Criminal Procedure where the place to be searched is in the occupancy of a respectable native female.

Court may amend certain variances not material to the merits of the case and by which the defendant cannot be prejudiced in his defence and may either proceed with or postpone the trial to be had before the same or another Jury.

I. Whenever, on the trial of any indictment for an offence, there shall appear to be a variance between any statement in such indictment and the evidence offered in proof thereof, it shall be lawful for the Court before which the trial shall be had, if it shall consider that by the amendment of the indictment the person indicted will not be prejudiced in his defence on the merits, to order such indictment to be amended, according to the proof, by some Officer of the Court or other person, both in that part of the indictment where such variance occurs, and in every other part of the indictment which it may become necessary to amend, on such terms as to postponing the trial if the person indicted apply for a postponement, or ordering the same to be had before the same or another Jury as such Court shall think reasonable; and after any such amendment the trial shall proceed, whenever the same shall be proceeded with, in the same manner in all respects and with the same consequences both with respect to the liability of witnesses to be indicted for giving false evidence and otherwise, as if no such variance had occurred, provided that in all such cases where the trial shall be so postponed as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for such Court to respite the recognizances of the prosecutor and witnesses, and of the person indicted and his surety or sureties, if any, accordingly, in which case the prosecutor and witnesses shall be bound to attend to prosecute and give evidence respectively, and the person indicted shall be bound to attend to be tried at the time and place to which such trial shall be postponed, without entering into any fresh recognizances for that purpose, in such and the same manner as if they were originally bound by their recognizances to appear and prosecute, or give evidence at the time and place to which such trial shall be so postponed. Provided also, that where any such trial shall be ordered to be had before another Jury, the Crown and the person indicted shall respectively be entitled to the same challenges as they were respectively entitled to before the first Jury was sworn.

Similar power of amendment in other cases.

If upon the trial of any person charged with the offence of theft as a clerk or servant, of property in the possession of his master under Section 381 of the Indian Penal Code, evidence shall be given to prove that such person was guilty of the offence of dishonest misappropriation of property under Section 403 of the said Code, or the offence of dishonest misappropriation of property possessed by a deceased person at the time of his death under Section 404 of the said Code, or of such dishonest misappropriation under the said Section 404, the offender being at the time of the person's decease employed by him as a clerk or servant, or the offence of criminal breach of trust under Section 405 of the said Code, or the offence of criminal breach of trust as a clerk or servant under Section 408 of the said Code, in respect of the property stated in the indictment, the Court may order the indictment to be amended under the provisions of Section I of this Act.

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

This Bill is introduced at the request of the Honorable and learned Chief Justice at Calcutta. The principal object of the Bill is to adopt the procedure of Her Majesty's Supreme Courts of Judicature to the trial of offences punishable under the Indian Penal Code. On the 1st January last the substantive Criminal Law relating to offences and persons within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Courts of Judicature underwent the same complete change as in places beyond the limits of the jurisdiction of those Courts There is now one uniform substantive Criminal Law for all India, namely, the Indian Penal Code; but while, contemporaneously with the introduction of the Indian Penal Code, a Code of Criminal Procedure has been given to the Mofussil Courts, which has been prepared in reference to that Code and is well suited to carry out its provisions, the Code of Criminal Procedure previously in force in the Supreme Courts of Judicature is still in force in those Courts. Two Criminal Sessions for the trial of offences punishable under the Indian Penal Code have already been held at Calcutta, in the course of which the unsuitableness of the present law to offences falling under the Indian Penal Code was very apparent, and some inconvenience was experienced. Similar inconvenience will continue to be experienced until this Bill is passed, and I have therefore been desired, in introducing the Bill, to ask for the suspension of the Rules of the Council with a view to the Bill being passed into law at once.

The Bill has been prepared by the Honorable and learned Chief Justice, Sir Barnes Peacock, with the assistance of his Honorable and learned colleagues.

With regard to Madras and Bombay I may mention that, although the Bill is so framed as to make it of general application, it is proposed to leave the time at which the Bill should take effect in those Presidencies to be determined by the Local Governments. This will give the Honorable and learned Judges of Her Majesty's Supreme Courts of Judicature at Madras and Bombay, whom there is not time to consult, an opportunity of stating, in communication with the Local Governments, any objections they may have to any of the provisions of the Bill before it comes into operation in their Courts.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Stamp Duties.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Stamp Duties; It is enacted as follows :—

Repeal of Laws.

I. In respect of any such Deed, Instrument, or Writing, the provisions of the Acts and Regulations which were in force at the time such Deed, Instrument, or Writing shall have been made or executed, or such proceeding or matter shall have taken place, shall be applicable in the same manner as if this Act had not been passed.

Stamp Duty payable under Schedule A.

II. For every Deed, Instrument, or Writing which shall be executed from the time when this Act shall come into force, and which shall be of any of the kinds specified as requiring Stamps by the Schedule A annexed to this Act, there shall be payable to Government a Stamp Duty of the amount indicated in the said Schedule to be proper for such Deed, Instrument, or Writing.

Penalty for drawing, &c., unstamped or insufficiently stamped Bill of Exchange, &c.

III. If any person shall draw, or, except as provided in Section XXIV of this Act, shall accept, endorse, negotiate, pay, or receive payment of any Bill of Exchange, Promissory Note, Draft, Cheque, or other similar Instrument, or if any person shall make, execute, sign, or be a party to any Deed, Instrument, or other Writing, engrossed on unstamped or insufficiently stamped paper or other material, which should bear a Stamp of the value set forth in Schedule A annexed to this Act, every such person, so offending, shall (unless in any case in which a higher penalty is imposed by this Act) forfeit a sum not exceeding one hundred Rupees, or a sum equal to ten times the value of the Stamp omitted to be used, if the sum so calculated exceed one hundred Rupees.

Governor-General in Council to prescribe the form, &c., of Stamps to be used.

IV. The Governor-General of India in Council shall prescribe the form, size, and material of the Stamps to be used, and the mode and place of impressing, affixing, or denoting thereupon the value of the same under the provisions of this Act, and may from time to time alter and vary the orders which he may so issue. The orders made by the Governor-General of India in Council under this Section shall be published in the Official Gazettes of the several Presidencies and places in which such orders are to be in force.

VII. It shall be lawful for the Governor-General of India in Council, by an order to be published in the Official Gazette, to authorize the use in the whole or in any part of the British Territories in India to be mentioned in such order, of adhesive Stamps for any Deeds, Instruments, or Writings required to bear a Stamp other than the Instruments mentioned in the last two preceding Sections.

Obliteration of adhesive Stamp when used.

VIII. In any case where an adhesive Stamp shall be used as hereinbefore authorized, the person making the Deed, Instrument, or Writing to which such Stamp is affixed, shall, before the Deed, Instrument, or Writing shall be delivered out of his hands, custody, or power, cancel the Stamp so used, by writing thereon his name or the initial letters of his name, or in such other manner as to show that such Stamp has been made use of, and so that the same shall not admit of being used again; and if any person who shall write or give any Receipt or discharge or make or sign any Draft or Order, or any other Deed, Instrument, or Writing with an adhesive Stamp thereon when an adhesive Stamp is allowed to be used, shall not bonâ fide in manner aforesaid cancel such Stamp, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding one hundred Rupees.

Penalty for drawing, &c., post-dated Bills of Exchange.

XIII. If any person, in order to avoid the payment of the duty prescribed by Schedule A annexed to this Act, shall make or draw any Bill of Exchange bearing a date subsequent to the date on which such Bill is actually made or drawn, or if any person, knowing that such Bill has been so post-dated, shall take or receive such Bill, or shall accept, pay, endorse, transfer, or in any manner negotiate the same, every such person so offending shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five hundred Rupees.

Proviso.

XV. Clause 1.—If any Deed, Instrument, or Writing requiring to be stamped under Section II of this Act, shall have been executed on paper not bearing the proper Stamp, the Collector of Stamp Revenue of the District, if satisfied that the omission or neglect to execute such Deed, Instrument, or Writing on paper bearing the proper Stamp did not arise from any intention to evade payment of the Stamp Duty prescribed by this Act for such Deed, Instrument, or Writing, or otherwise to defraud the Government, may, on payment of the proper Stamp Duty, or if the Deed, Instrument, or Writing shall be insufficiently stamped, on payment of such sum as with the amount of the Stamp upon such Deed, Instrument, or Writing, shall suffice to complete the prescribed amount and, as a penalty, double the amount required to make up the same, direct that such Deed, Instrument, or Writing be duly stamped; provided that such Deed, Instrument, or Writing be presented to such Collector for the purpose of having the proper Stamp affixed to or impressed upon it within six weeks from the date of its execution. If the Collector be satisfied that the omission or neglect to execute such Deed, Instrument, or Writing on paper bearing the proper Stamp arose solely from urgent necessity or unavoidable accident, he may remit the penalty prescribed by this Section.

Deeds inadvertently executed on paper not bearing proper Stamp may be duly stamped on payment of proper Stamp Duty and penalty if brought to the Collector within six weeks.

Remission of penalty.

Clause 2.—If any Deed, Instrument, or Writing requiring to be stamped under Section II of this Act, which shall have been executed on unstamped or insufficiently stamped paper, shall be brought to such Collector for the purpose of being properly stamped after six weeks from the date of its execution, but within four months from that date, such Collector, if satisfied that the omission or neglect to execute such Deed, Instrument, or Writing on paper bearing the proper Stamp, did not arise from any intention to evade the payment of the Stamp Duty prescribed by this Act for such Deed, Instrument, or Writing, or otherwise to defraud the Government, may, on payment of a sum sufficient to make up the proper amount of Stamp Duty, and as a penalty treble the amount required to make up the same, direct that the requisite Stamp be impressed on such Deed, Instrument, or Writing; or if such Deed, Instrument, or Writing shall not be brought to such Collector until after the expiration of four months from the date of its execution, the requisite Stamp may be ordered to be impressed on payment of the sum required to make up the proper amount of Stamp Duty, and as a penalty twenty times the amount required to make up the same.

Penalty if executed on unstamped or insufficiently stamped paper and brought to be stamped after six weeks of execution but within four months of that date.

Penalty if brought after four months.

Clause 3.—It shall be the duty of the Collector of the Stamp Revenue of the District, to determine whether the requisite Stamp shall be impressed on any Deed, Instrument, or Writing falling under the last two preceding Clauses, which shall have been executed on unstamped or insufficiently stamped paper.

Collector to determine whether, on payment of penalty, a Deed, &c., executed on unstamped or insufficiently stamped paper shall be stamped.

Clause 4.—Whenever a doubt shall arise respecting the proper amount of the Stamp to be impressed under this Section on any Deed, Instrument, or Writing, the Collector of Stamp Revenue of the District shall determine the amount of Stamp to be impressed upon such Deed, Instrument, or Writing.

Collector to decide the proper amount of Stamp Duty to be impressed upon any Deed, &c., under this Section.

Clause 5.—In any case falling within this Section in which it shall appear to the Board of Revenue or the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority that a Collector of Stamp Revenue has directed an improper Stamp to be impressed upon any Deed, Instrument, or Writing, such Board or other Authority as aforesaid, may, if the Stamp ordered by the Collector to be impressed upon such Deed, Instrument, or Writing shall not have already been impressed thereupon, order the proper Stamp to be impressed upon such Deed, Instrument, or Writing upon payment of the proper amount of Stamp Duty and the penalty to which the holder of such Deed, Instrument, or Writing is liable under Clause 1 or Clause 2 of this Section.

Board of Revenue, &c., may in certain cases order the proper Stamp to be impressed.

Clause 6.—The Board of Revenue or other Chief Controlling Revenue Authority may, upon petition, order any penalty imposed under this Section to be mitigated, and if paid, may order the whole or any part of it to be returned.

Mitigation or return of penalty under this Section.

XVI. The Stamp which shall be impressed under the last preceding Section, shall be taken in any Court of Justice to be the proper Stamp required by this Act for the Deed, Instrument, or Writing on which the same is impressed.

The Stamp impressed under the preceding Section to be taken to be the proper Stamp.

XVII. Clause 1.—In any case in which a Stamp might be impressed under Section XV of this Act, a Civil Court may receive in evidence any Deed, Instrument, or Writing not bearing the Stamp prescribed by Schedule A annexed to this Act on payment into Court of the proper amount of Stamp Duty to be determined by the Court, whose decision on the point shall be final, together with the penalty required by the said Section.

In cases falling under Section XV, Civil Courts may receive in evidence unstamped or insufficiently stamped Deeds, on payment of the proper Stamp Duty and penalty.

Clause 2.—An entry of such payment setting forth the amount thereof shall be made in a book to be kept by the Court, and shall also be endorsed on the back of the Deed, Instrument, or Writing, and shall be signed by the Court. The Court shall, at the end of every month, make a return to the Collector of the Stamp Revenue of the District, of the money (if any) which it has so received, distinguishing between the sums received by way of penalty and the sums received by way of Duty, stating the number and title of the suit, and the name of the party from whom such money was received, and the date, if any, and description of the document, for the purpose of identifying the same; and the Court shall pay over the money so received to such Collector, or to such person as he may appoint to receive the same. Such Collector or other proper Authority shall, upon the production of the Deed, Instrument, or Writing, with the endorsement hereinbefore mentioned, cause it to be stamped thereon with a Stamp of the amount paid into Court on account of such Duty. The provisions contained in Clause 6 Section XV of this Act as to the mitigation or payment of penalties paid to the Collector, shall be applicable to penalties paid into Court under this Section.

No unstamped or insufficiently stamped Deed, &c., to be stamped except as aforesaid.

XVIII. No Deed, Instrument, or Writing executed on unstamped or insufficiently stamped paper, shall be stamped at any time after the execution thereof, except as hereinbefore provided Procedure (in cases other than those provided for in Sections XV and XVII) for determining the proper amount of Stamp Duty to be impressed on any Deed.

XIX. When in any case other than the cases provided for in Sections XV and XVII of this Act, any person shall entertain any doubt respecting the proper amount of Stamp Duty for any Deed, Instrument, or Writing, he may apply to the Board of Revenue or the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority, either directly or through the Collector of Stamp Revenue of the District, for an adjudication with a view to remove such doubt, and shall at the same time pay a fee of ten Rupees, and thereupon such Board or other Authority as aforesaid shall determine the amount of Stamp which such Deed, Instrument, or Writing should bear, and on payment thereof, shall cause such Deed, Instrument, or Writing to be impressed with such Stamp, and an additional Stamp denoting that such adjudication fee has been paid. A Deed, Instrument, or Writing so stamped shall be received in evidence as properly stamped in any Court of Justice.

Cost of transmitting Deed, &c., to be stamped, by whom to be paid.

XX. The cost of transmitting by post any Deed, Instrument, or Writing required to be stamped under any of the foregoing Sections of this Act, and the cost of registering the same at the Post Office for transmission, shall, in all cases, be borne by the party applying to have such Deed, Instrument, or Writing stamped.

Government not responsible for loss or damage to Deed, &c.

XXI. THE following Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd April 1862 :—

HOME DEPARTMENT.

LEGISLATIVE.

WE, the undersigned, the Members of the Select Committee of the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations, to whom the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure was referred, have the honor to report that we have considered the Bill, and the Paper embodying an abstract of the opinions of the Principal Officers of the Non-Regulation Provinces which was laid before us.

As we consider that the power granted to the Executive Government of varying the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure in its application to Non-Regulation Provinces should not be larger than the circumstances of the case absolutely require, and as we think that there are only two points on which any modification has been shewn to be necessary, we have amended the Bill so as to confine it to those points.

The first Section will enable the Government, in giving effect to the seventh Explanatory Note of the Schedule (whereby the powers granted by the Code may, in Non-Regulation Provinces, be entrusted to other Officers than those named in the Code), to extend the powers of an Officer in charge of a District to the trial of all cases not punishable with death, with a limit as to punishment similar to that prescribed in Section 22 of the Code for Assistant Sessions Judges of the Bombay Presidency, namely, imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years (including such solitary confinement as is authorized by law), or fine, or both.

The second Section provides that when, under the definition in the 14th Section, the Sudder Court may consist of a single Judge (as in the case of a Chief Commissioner of a Province), the power of confirming a sentence of death under Section 398 of the Code, and the power of confirming, modifying, amending, and reversing sentences or orders under Sections 401 and 420 may be exercised by him. Those Sections require the concurrence of two or more Judges.

With what restrictions, &c., Code of Criminal Procedure may be extended to a Non-Regulation Province.

I. When, under the provisions of Section 445 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the said Code has been or shall be extended to any part of the Territories not subject to the General Regulations of Bengal, Madras, or Bombay, it shall be lawful for the Governor-General in Council or for the local Government of such Territory to vest the Chief Officer charged with the Executive administration of a District in Criminal matters, by whatever designation such Officer is called, with power to try all offences not punishable with death, and under the provisions of the said Code to pass sentence of imprisonment of either description for a term not exceeding seven years, including such solitary confinement as is authorized by law, or fine, or both.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd April 1862, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a week :—

A Bill to extend to the Province of Oude certain provisions of Acts XIV of 1843 and XXXVI of 1855 relating to the manufacture of contraband Salt, and to amend the last named Act.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to extend to the Province of Oude certain provisions of Act XIV of 1843 (for regulating the levy of Customs Duties and the manufacture of Salt in the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Bengal) and of Act XXXVI of 1855 (to empower Officers of Customs and Land Revenue to search houses and other enclosed places for contraband Salt in the North-Western Provinces), and to amend the last named Act; It is enacted as follows :—

Certain provisions of Acts XIV of 1843 and XXXVI of 1855 extended to Oude.

I. So much of the said Act XIV of 1843 as relates to the manufacture of alimentary Salt, and the prevention and punishment of the illicit manufacture and importation of such Salt, and the said Act XXXVI of 1855 as hereinafter amended shall be held to have been and are hereby extended to the Province of Oude from the date on which Act XXXI of 1861 (to regulate the manufacture of Saltpetre and the sale of Salt educed in the refinement thereof) was extended to the said Province in the manner provided in Section XVIII of the said Act.

Forcible entry into zenanahs.

II. Section IV of Act XXXVI of 1855 is hereby repealed, and the following Section is enacted in lieu thereof, and shall be read and construed in the same manner as if it formed part of the said Act, namely,—

"If the place to be searched is a zenanah or apartment in the actual occupancy of a woman who, according to the custom of the country, does not appear in public, the Officer making the search shall give notice to such woman in such zenanah or apartment that she is at liberty to withdraw, and after giving such notice and allowing a reasonable time for the woman to withdraw, and affording her every reasonable facility for withdrawing, such Officer may enter such zenanah or apartment for the purpose of completing the search, using at the same time every precaution consistent with these provisions for preventing the clandestine removal of any Salt. Provided that the responsibility for the act, and the determination whether to force an entry or not, shall rest with the Officer of Customs or Land Revenue only."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

An Act (XXXI of 1861) was passed last year by the late Legislative Council to regulate the manufacture of Saltpetre by requiring that such manufacture should be carried on under license, and to enable the manufacturers of Saltpetre to refine the Salt produced in the manufacture of Saltpetre, and to sell the same on payment of the Government dues. The Act, as passed, took effect at once only in the North-Western Provinces, but it contains a Section authorizing the Governor-General in Council to extend its provisions to other parts of India. This power has lately been exercised in the case of Oude, to which Province the Act was extended by an order of the Governor-General in Council, dated the 9th instant But the Act of last year refers in one of its provisions to two previous Acts relating to Salt which are not in force in Oude, and the Local Authorities, with whom the Government of India concurs, considering it desirable that these Acts should also be extended to the Province of Oude with effect from the date on which the Act of last year was extended to the Province, the present Bill has been framed accordingly.

It is also proposed to take the opportunity of the introduction of the present Bill to amend one of the Sections of the latter of the two Acts abovementioned in so far as it relates to forcible entries in cases of search for contraband Salt, and to adopt the language of the Code of Criminal Procedure where the place to be searched is in the occupancy of a respectable native female.

The principal object of the Bill is to adopt the procedure of Her Majesty's Supreme Courts of Judicature to the trial of offences punishable under the Indian Penal Code. On the 1st January last the substantive Criminal Law relating to offences and persons within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Courts of Judicature underwent the same complete change as in places beyond the limits of the jurisdiction of those Courts. There is now one uniform substantive Criminal Law for all India, namely, the Indian Penal Code; but while, contemporaneously with the introduction of the Indian Penal Code, a Code of Criminal Procedure has been given to the Mofussil Courts, which has been prepared in reference to that Code and is well suited to carry out its provisions, the Code of Criminal Procedure previously in force in the Supreme Courts of Judicature is still in force in those Courts. Two Criminal Sessions for the trial of offences punishable under the Indian Penal Code have already been held at Calcutta, in the course of which the unsuitableness of the present law to offences falling under the Indian Penal Code was very apparent, and some inconvenience was experienced. Similar inconvenience will continue to be experienced until this Bill is passed, and I have therefore been desired, in introducing the Bill, to ask for the suspension of the Rules of the Council with a view to the Bill being passed into law at once.

The Bill has been prepared by the Honorable and learned Chief Justice, Sir Barnes Peacock, with the assistance of his Honorable and learned colleagues.

With regard to Madras and Bombay I may mention that, although the Bill is so framed as to make it of general application, it is proposed to leave the time at which the Bill should take effect in those Presidencies to be determined by the Local Governments. This will give the Honorable and learned Judges of Her Majesty's Supreme Courts of Judicature at Madras and Bombay, whom there is not time to consult, an opportunity of stating, in communication with the Local Governments, any objections they may have to any of the provisions of the Bill before it comes into operation in their Courts.

WHEREAS by Act XLV of 1860 a Penal Code has been prescribed for British India, and the said Code came into operation on the 1st day of January 1862; and whereas by Act XXV of 1861 a Code of Procedure is provided for the Courts of Criminal Judicature not established by Royal Charter, and the said Code likewise came into operation on the 1st day of January 1862 in the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, and was at the same time, or has since been, or hereafter may be extended to other parts of British India; and whereas it is expedient to repeal, in the manner hereinafter provided, certain Regulations and Acts relating to Criminal Law and Procedure; It is enacted as follows :—

Repeal of Regulations and Acts providing for the punishment of offences.

I. The several Regulations and Acts set forth in the Schedule hereunto annexed, so far as they provide for the punishment of offences, shall be held to have been and are hereby repealed from the 1st day of January 1862 in the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, and in the other parts of British India in which such Regulations and Acts or any of them were in force on the said 1st day of January 1862, except in so far as they repeal the whole or any part of any other Regulation or Act, and except as to any offence committed before the said 1st day of January 1862.

Exception.

Repeal of Regulations and Acts not repealed by last Section, in places where Code of Criminal Procedure came into operation on 1st January 1862.

II. To the extent expressed in the Schedule annexed to this Act, the Regulations and Acts set forth therein, which are not repealed by the last preceding Section, shall, except in so far as they repeal the whole or any part of any other Regulation or Act, and except as to any offence committed before the said 1st day of January 1862, be held to have been and are hereby repealed from the said date in the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay, and in the other parts of British India in which such Regulations and Acts or any of them were in force on the said 1st day of January 1862, and in which the said Code of Criminal Procedure came into operation on such date.

Repeal of the same Regulations and Acts in places where the Code of Criminal Procedure did not come into operation on 1st January 1862.

III. To the extent expressed in the Schedule annexed to this Act, the Regulations and Acts set forth therein, which are not repealed by Section I of this Act, and which were in force on the said 1st day of January 1862 in any part of British India in which the said Code of Criminal Procedure did not come into operation on the said 1st day of January 1862, shall, except in so far as they repeal the whole or any part of any other Regulation or Act, and except as to any offence committed before the date on which the said Code shall have been or shall hereafter be extended to such part of British India, be held to have been or shall be repealed in such part of British India from the date on which the said Code shall have been or shall be so extended thereto.
